AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS CONTINUE PUNISHING ASSAULTS UPON AXIS IN EGYPTIAN OFFENSIVE

Americans, Japanese Begin New Round in Solomons

Battle Seems Spreading Out 400 Miles From Isles

Stimson Says Decision to Begin Operations in Solomons Was Not Purely Naval Decision; Buka Base Is Attacked

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP).—American and Japanese forces squared off today for another furious round in the spreading fight for the Solomons after a series of terrific land battles bled the enemy heavily of men and equipment.

While United States air and ground forces fought savagely to hold the Guadalcanal airbase, the battle of the southwest Pacific appeared to be surging outward 400 miles northwest of the turbulent islands.

Secretary of War Stimson told his press conference today that the decision to launch the American operations in the Solomons, which began in early August, "was made by the joint United States chiefs of staffs in accordance with agreed upon plans and was not purely a naval decision."

Superior numbers of enemy ships, planes and men were reported mobilizing at the approaches to American bases in the New Hebrides and Fiji Islands, whence they could strike at Allied communication lines to Australia.

The navy reported no new details of warship activities in the Pacific last night, but General Douglas MacArthur's Allied bombers from Australia raided the enemy again, damaging two Japanese ships in the Rabaul Harbor of New Britain and splashing the Japanese base at Buka in the northern Solomons with explosives.

One of the bomb hits at Rabaul, more than 600 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, caused an explosion on a warship, MacArthur's communique asserted today (Australian time), and another set an unidentified vessel afire. The assault on Buka's airdrome and buildings destroyed an enemy bomber on the ground and started fires visible 80 miles away.

Meantime, Australian ground troops in New Guinea continued to press the Japanese back toward their north coast invasion base, further thwarting the invaders' efforts to move on to the Allied Port Moresby base.

The Navy gave no indication that a decision was near in the Solomons struggle. The all-out assault which started October 23 had tapered by Tuesday to what the Navy communique termed "small scale thrusts" at the American positions on Guadalcanal.

These enemy attacks like the more savage Japanese thrusts preceding them were thrown back and the Navy, describing the results of the land fighting, observed:

"Enemy losses in men and equipment in troop actions on the island since October 23 have been very heavy as compared to our own."

While both sides appeared to be getting their second wind in the Solomons, naval observers kept a concerned eye on the waters north of the Santa Cruz Islands where American planes torpedoed a Japanese plane carrier Monday night and bombed a cruiser.

The enemy naval concentrations in the entire area were regarded as heavy and U. S. Navy quarters voiced expectation that another major sea battle might flare up at any hour.

The President's message was read last night at a meeting commemorating the second anniversary of Greek resistance to Axis aggression.

Convoy Men Take Ordeals Casually In Arctic Region

Those Whose Vessels Sink Under Them Return to Task With Same Stoical Attitude

By WILLIAM B. KING

With U. S. Naval forces in a United Kingdom port (Delayed) (AP)—Americans who are fighting the battle of supplying Russia through the dread "bomber lane" of the Arctic take their ordeals of fire and frigid waters in workaday stride.

U. S. Navy gunners and merchant seamen interviewed in this nerve center of convoy control were all survivors of attacks by U-boats that hunt in packs and torpedo bombers that swarm like bees—but they have but one theme: To fight through to victory, whatever the odds.

Among more than 100 naval personnel survivors brought here after their ships were shot out from under them were William Harkins of Gloucester, N. J., and Albert D. Friday of West Point, Miss., U. S. Navy gunners on a merchantman.

Their's was typical of the grim and heroic stories told without fuss or feathers.

Their vessel was dive-bombed, then attacked by a level bomber and finally sprayed with incendiary bullets by a strafing plane. When she could stand no more, her crew and gun crews took to lifeboats.

They sailed and rowed for 10 days before reaching sanctuary in Russia 350 miles away. They were two months in a Soviet hospital under treatment for frozen feet. Then they returned to Britain over the same submarine-ridden route.

And of their 10 days in an open boat with 21 other men in Arctic waters so cold a man's flesh would turn dead white in mere minutes, Friday only said, quietly:

"It wasn't so bad, except for those two days it snowed."

General MacArthur Denies Any Political Ambitions

Pacific Generalissimo Says He Started as Soldier and Will Die as One

By C. YATES McDANIEL

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Oct. 29 (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur, who has been mentioned as possible presidential timber in the United States, declared today "I have no political ambitions whatsoever" and said he planned to retire again if he survived the campaign.

"I started as a soldier and I shall finish as one," the supreme command of allied forces in the Southwest Pacific said in a statement. "The only hope and ambition I have in the world is for victory for our cause in the war. If I survive the campaign I shall return to that retirement from which this great struggle called me."

It was his first reference to various suggestions in the United States that he might be a likely candidate for the presidency in 1944 or later.

The general's disavowal of political ambition was prefaced by the observation:

"I have noted the statement quoted in morning newspapers from the Christian Science Monitor's Washington correspondent that 'political Washington was largely responsible for the establishment of two separate commands in the Pacific, partly because of the conservative opposition which launched the MacArthur-for-president campaign.'"

General MacArthur said any suggestions that he was politically ambitious "must be regarded as merely amiable gestures of goodwill dictated by friendship."

In the same statement he denied reports that the Australian war effort was not being pushed as it should be.

"No nation in the world is making a more supreme war effort than Australia," he said. "It is rapidly gearing to full capacity. Its resources are relatively meager, but it is utilizing them to the utmost. Its effort is universal and embraces equally all classes and all parties.

"It has unanimously and completely supported me in my military command and the harmony and cooperation between Australians and Americans in this area are inspirational.

"Such internal party differences as exist are largely based on the desire of one group or the other to accelerate rather than retard the war potential."

He said he was deeply grateful for their friendship and understanding.

Kingston's First November Draft Quota Is 135 Men

Kingston's first November quota of men for service in the U. S. Army calls for sending a contingent of 135 men to the army induction center in Albany for physical examination on Tuesday, November 10.

The contingent will be made up of 122 white and 13 colored men. The draft board is now busy getting out the notices to the men who will be included in the call that day to report at the draft board office.

Saturday at noon a contingent of 93 men, who have been examined and inducted into the army, will leave Kingston for Camp Upton where they will receive their preliminary training.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, grand marshal of all the parades staged for inductees, is now busy planning the details for the parade Saturday morning.

The fire department will be represented in the contingent by Fireman Julius Buchholtz, and the police department by Officer William Messing.

All of the members of the contingent will be presented with parting gifts by the Senior Girl Scouts. These gifts are purchased from the funds contributed to the committee appointed by the mayor of which Mrs. Grace Herzog is treasurer.

Gillette and Reed Propose Investigation

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—A three-pronged investigation by the Senate agriculture committee of the administration of the price control act was proposed in the Senate today by Senators Gillette (D.-Iowa) and Reed (R.-Kan.).

The two senators introduced a resolution calling on the committee to "make a full and complete, continuing study and investigation" of the maximum prices fixed on agricultural commodities, the payment of subsidies and the operations of the Commodity Credit Corp. in maintaining minimum or maximum prices on farm products.

The resolution was an outgrowth of an attack made by Senate farm bloc members on the action of the O.P.A. and the Department of Agriculture in carrying out a directive by President Roosevelt to calculate government benefit payments as a part of crop returns to farmers in fixing agricultural price ceilings.

Central Business Group To Hold Banquet Nov. 10

The banquet committee of the Central Business Men's Association reported to President Harry B. Walker last night that the 14th annual affair would be held this year on Tuesday evening, November 10, in Cuneo's Restaurant on Central Broadway. The banquet will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

President Walker said today that the committee on arrangements is preparing an interesting and entertaining program for the evening and that several prominent men would speak.

Medical Quota Is Short

Garden City, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—New York state is 36 per cent behind its goal in supplying physicians to the armed forces, says Dr. Henry W. Cave, chairman of procurement and assignment of the war manpower commission in the second service command. The state quota has been set at 8,000 by December 31. Dr. Cave told a New York state medical society meeting here yesterday that five states were not meeting their quotas, but that New York was the farthest behind. The other states, he said, were New Jersey, Massachusetts, Illinois and California. He said most of the lag was in metropolitan areas, the response being better among doctors in smaller cities and rural areas.

Earthquakes Reported

London, Oct. 29 (AP)—Istanbul, Smyrna and other places in western Turkey were shaken by earthquakes early this morning, Reuters reported today. It said no damage was reported.

Scrap Drive in Wards 10 and 11

Saturday morning at 8 o'clock trucks of the city department will be operated in the metal scrap collection drive in Wards Ten and Eleven. If this campaign is to be pushed through to a smashing success, everyone will have to cooperate. In other wards of the city the Saturday collections have added greatly to the scrap heap and the Scrap Salvage Committee looks forward to similar or greater results this week.

Kingston's scrap metal is vastly important in its own right—as a source of guns and planes. But it is very important as an inspiration to the rest of the county and other cities. If Kingston's drive is spectacularly successful, then the other communities will know that this job can be done and that the people will respond quickly and enthusiastically to their country's call.

Householders are asked not to be too quick to say, "We might need that" when considering a contribution.

There are a lot of things in America we will never need if we don't get plenty of fighting equipment into the hands of our fighting men.

Navy Forces Trade Blows in Solomons

U. S. Navy planes attacked Jap forces east of the Stewart Islands (1) and damaged two Jap aircraft carriers and a cruiser and hit a battleship during the night of October 26-27. Action in the Guadalcanal zone (2 and insert) included two small U. S. boats sunk and a Jap destroyer hit in Tulagi harbor and two enemy destroyers sunk near Guadalcanal. Army and Marine land troops held positions in land fighting. MacArthur's planes strafed the Jap base at Lae (3).

Dewey Will Give Manhattan Speech; Drive Nears End

Four Days Prior to Voting Will Be Spent Around Metropolitan Area; Pledges Action

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Republican Thomas E. Dewey charted today an intensive New York city finale of his drive for the governorship, after ending his upstate campaign with five proposals for further harmonizing industry and labor.

He planned to devote the four campaigning days before the election in touring the metropolitan area, beginning with speeches in Manhattan tonight and making his final appeal for support by radio Monday.

Dewey completed his sixth and last upstate swing last night at Buffalo, where he belabored Democrats for "shadow-boxing with the ghosts of issues of the past." He pledged, if elected, a "forward looking" Republican administration to the expansion of social and labor legislation.

To bring labor and industry "into closer cooperation and understanding," Dewey promised extension of the right of collective bargaining, expansion of the states labor relations, mediation, and unemployment insurance services, "vigorous enforcement" of laws against strikebreaking agencies, labor gangsters and racketeers.

The present breakdown in workmen's compensation, revealed by the New York city administration, shall be cleaned up, he asserted.

Dewey was introduced by State Republican chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle, Buffalo.

Dewey asserted Republicans and Democrats both "deserve their share" of credit for the leadership he said New York state has exhibited in the fields of workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance, health, welfare and labor legislation.

But in giving their share to the Democrats, he said "do not forget that no part of this record can rightly be claimed by the reactionary element which has this year seized control of the Democratic party.

"Any program of real social progress," he continued, "has always been beyond the mental scope or moral grasp of the Democratic machines in Albany, Brooklyn and the Bronx, as well as that great mutual association known as Tammany Hall.

Dewey credited the Republican-controlled legislature with expanding unemployment insurance benefits, passage of the state labor relations act and the state mediation law, outlawing of employment discrimination, and increased salaries for low-paid employes of state institutions.

The legislature, he added, "made state unemployment insurance work after its management had completely broken down under Democratic administration." Terming the Republican record "a story of living, not past achievements" and assailing Democratic emphasis on "past achievements," Dewey declared:

"There is no point in the field of social progress at which any group, or political party, or any single man or any group of men can close the book and say it is finished."

Navy to Stage Air Show For Electrol With TBF's

Type of Planes Which Blasted Japanese at Midway and Solomon Islands to Fly for Electrol Employes

According to an announcement in the Electrol Eagle, personnel paper for Electrol Incorporated, employes, the U. S. Navy soon will send a flight formation of TBF's, Naval Torpedo Bomber Planes, to Kingston.

The article published today in the form of a letter from Lt. Comdr. L. Haase to Electrol Employes says, "some day in the near future I will try to have several of the TBF fly over Kingston and operate that part of the airplane that requires Electrol equipment."

The TBF has had considerable publicity within the last 48 to 72 hours in Navy communiques about the battle of the Solomons. Prior to that, at Midway, the TBF craft did much to surprise the Japs and drive home an overwhelming victory against the Nipponese forces.

Final arrangements for the flight have not been made.

Permission to use Commander Haase's letter was granted The Freeman by Electrol authority.

The letter from Commander Haase reads:

Refer To
Inspector of Naval Aircraft, U.S.N.
Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation
Bethpage, L. I., N. Y.
LH:DL
23 October 1942

To the Employes of the Electrol Corporation:

During a recent visit to the Electrol Plant at Kingston I could not help but think how important the work at hand was to us in our effort to produce TBF (Torpedo Bomber Planes) for the Navy. At the same time I also realized how tiresome it is to continually work on the same type of equipment that in no way resembles an airplane, but without which the airplane could not possibly operate.

If it were not for the equipment you people are building, the pilot would be unable to lower or raise his landing gear and flaps. It is your equipment that folds his wings aboard the carrier, and finally it opens the bomb bay doors when he is ready to release his torpedo. In relation to this last statement, it has been brought to my attention by several of the reports I have received from the Pacific area that the Japanese were given quite a surprise by the appearance of our TBF airplanes. In all outward appearances the TBF looks like a large fighter; and this is what the Japanese believed until the ship was within firing range at which time the pilot opened his bomb day doors and released the torpedoes which helped to sink the Japanese carriers in the Battle of Midway.

I feel sure that the men and women who are employed at Electrol will do everything possible to speed up this equipment if they are told just how important the equipment is to the Navy.

Some day in the near future I will try to have several of the TBF fly over Kingston and operate that part of the airplane that requires Electrol equipment.

In closing may I ask the cooperation of all concerned to speed up our work so that we can send more and more Torpedo Planes to the men in the Navy who know how, can and will fight them.

Land Force Beats Off Nazi Thrust

Reds Stage Setback

Red Army Hits Hard in Corridor Between Don and Volga

By DON WHITEHEAD
(The Associated Press)

United States fighter pilots have added four more Messerschmitts to their steeply-rising toll of downed enemy planes in continuation of the punishing air offensive which supports the British Eighth Army's thrust against Marshal Rommel's desert lines in Egypt, official reports said today.

American and British airmen apparently were sharing three missions—to wear down the Axis strength already in North Africa, to keep the enemy from getting reinforcements across the Mediterranean and to back the British land forces grinding into the Axis' Alamein line fortifications.

While air attacks smashed at enemy supply lines and bases even across the Mediterranean to Crete, British headquarters announced that the land forces had beaten off a counter-attack in the desert and inflicted further losses on the Axis in a series of minor tank engagements yesterday.

"Fighting continues," the bulletin added tersely, but gave no further details.

The Axis air force was said to have remained on the defensive throughout yesterday as allied planes smashed at enemy landing fields and forward positions.

Allied night fighters also carried out protective patrols over the front and shot down one Junkers 88, headquarters said.

Nine enemy fighters in all were reported destroyed during the day in the Mediterranean theatre.

The attack on Crete, carried out by night, was said to have set fires at an enemy airdrome.

Allied torpedo-carrying aircraft were credited with sinking a large enemy tanker bound for North Africa last night.

"Enemy activity over Malta was ineffective and reduced in scale," the bulletin said.

From the tone of the communique it seemed evident that the Army of the Nile, bent on inflicting the maximum possible damage to the enemy at a minimum cost, was maintaining the cautious but determined pace of its land offensive while subjecting Rommel's forces to a ceaseless aerial and artillery bombardment.

The German high command likewise emphasized the weight of the British offensive, declaring:

"Bitter fighting in Egypt increased in intensity on the fifth day of the defensive battle.

"Despite extremely heavy attacks . . . the enemy failed to gain success owing to the stiff resistance put up by German and Italian troops."

Dispatches from Cairo said the main test was yet to come and that Gen. Montgomery was apparently determined not to repeat the disastrous mistake of last June when the British surged ahead too rapidly and advanced into a deadly ambush of anti-tank guns.

Russia—Adolf Hitler's Caucasus armies, in a sudden shift to a new sector, were reported attacking heavily with troops, tanks, artillery and planes against Soviet defenses on the Nalchik Plateau, 50 miles southwest of the old Mozdok battle sector.

A Berlin broadcast said the Germans had already captured Nalchik, a mountain resort of 13,000 population on the northern slope of the Caucasus chain, only 60 miles from the important Georgian military highway to Tiflis.

A Nazi communique said German and Rumanian mountain troops "stormed the strongly fortified and stubbornly defended town of Nalchik," but did not claim its capture.

"Enemy forces bottled up northeast of Nalchick were wiped out or taken prisoner," the German command said, claiming the "annihilation" of several Red Army divisions in a four-day battle.

Hitler's headquarters said the German siege armies at Stalingrad beat off several Russian counterattacks and then "gained more ground in a workers' settle-

Medical Quota Is Short

Garden City, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—New York state is 36 per cent behind its goal in supplying physicians to the armed forces, says Dr. Henry W. Cave, chairman of procurement and assignment of the war manpower commission in the second service command. The state quota has been set at 8,000 by December 31. Dr. Cave told a New York state medical society meeting here yesterday that five states were not meeting their quotas, but that New York was the farthest behind. The other states, he said, were New Jersey, Massachusetts, Illinois and California. He said most of the lag was in metropolitan areas, the response being better among doctors in smaller cities and rural areas.

Navy Forces Trade Blows in Solomons

U. S. Navy planes attacked Jap forces east of the Stewart Islands (1) and damaged two Jap aircraft carriers and a cruiser and hit a battleship during the night of October 26-27. Action in the Guadalcanal zone (2 and insert) included two small U. S. boats sunk and a Jap destroyer hit in Tulagi harbor and two enemy destroyers sunk near Guadalcanal. Army and Marine land troops held positions in land fighting. MacArthur's planes strafed the Jap base at Lae (3).

Dewey Will Give Manhattan Speech; Drive Nears End

Four Days Prior to Voting Will Be Spent Around Metropolitan Area; Pledges Action

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Republican Thomas E. Dewey charted today an intensive New York city finale of his drive for the governorship, after ending his upstate campaign with five proposals for further harmonizing industry and labor.

He planned to devote the four campaigning days before the election in touring the metropolitan area, beginning with speeches in Manhattan tonight, and making his final appeal for support by radio Monday.

Dewey completed his sixth and last upstate swing last night at Buffalo, where he belabored Democrats for "shadow-boxing with the ghosts of issues of the past." He pledged, if elected, a "forward looking" Republican administration to the expansion of social and labor legislation.

To bring labor and industry "into closer cooperation and understanding," Dewey promised extension of the right of collective bargaining, expansion of the states labor relations, mediation, and unemployment insurance services, "vigorous enforcement" of laws against strikebreaking agencies, labor gangsters and racketeers.

The present breakdown in workmen's compensation, revealed by the New York city administration, shall be cleaned up, he asserted.

Dewey was introduced by State Republican chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle, Buffalo.

Dewey asserted Republicans and Democrats both "deserve their share" of credit for the leadership he said New York state has exhibited in the fields of workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance, health, welfare and labor legislation.

But in giving their share to the Democrats, he said "do not forget that no part of this record can rightly be claimed by the reactionary element which has this year seized control of the Democratic party.

"Any program of real social progress," he continued, "has always been beyond the mental scope or moral grasp of the Democratic machines in Albany, Brooklyn and the Bronx, as well as that great mutual association known as Tammany Hall.

Dewey credited the Republican-controlled legislature with expanding unemployment insurance benefits, passage of the state labor relations act and the state mediation law, outlawing of employment discrimination, and increased salaries for low-paid employes of state institutions.

The legislature, he added, "made state unemployment insurance work after its management had completely broken down under Democratic administration." Terming the Republican record "a story of living, not past achievements" and assailing Democratic emphasis on "past achievements," Dewey declared:

"There is no point in the field of social progress at which any group, or political party, or any single man or any group of men can close the book and say it is finished."

Navy to Stage Air Show For Electrol With TBF's

Type of Planes Which Blasted Japanese at Midway and Solomon Islands to Fly for Electrol Employes

According to an announcement in the Electrol Eagle, personnel paper for Electrol Incorporated, employes, the U. S. Navy soon will send a flight formation of TBF's, Naval Torpedo Bomber Planes, to Kingston.

The article published today in the form of a letter from Lt. Comdr. L. Haase to Electrol Employes says, "some day in the near future I will try to have several of the TBF fly over Kingston and operate that part of the airplane that requires Electrol equipment."

The TBF has had considerable publicity within the last 48 to 72 hours in Navy communiques about the battle of the Solomons. Prior to that, at Midway, the TBF craft did much to surprise the Japs and drive home an overwhelming victory against the Nipponese forces.

Final arrangements for the flight have not been made.

Permission to use Commander Haase's letter was granted The Freeman by Electrol authority.

The letter from Commander Haase reads:

Refer To
Inspector of Naval Aircraft, U.S.N.
Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation
Bethpage, L. I., N. Y.

LH:DL
23 October 1942

To the Employes of the Electrol Corporation:

During a recent visit to the Electrol Plant at Kingston I could not help but think how important the work at hand was to us in our effort to produce TBF (Torpedo Bomber Planes) for the Navy. At the same time I also realized how tiresome it is to continually work on the same type of equipment that in no way resembles an airplane, but without which the airplane could not possibly operate.

If it were not for the equipment you people are building, the pilot would be unable to lower or raise his landing gear and flaps. It is your equipment that folds his wings aboard the carrier, and finally it opens the bomb bay doors when he is ready to release his torpedo. In relation to this last statement, it has been brought to my attention by several of the reports I have received from the Pacific area that the Japanese were given quite a surprise by the appearance of our TBF airplanes. In all outward appearances the TBF looks like a large fighter; and this is what the Japanese believed until the ship was within firing range at which time the pilot opened his bomb day doors and released the torpedoes which helped to sink the Japanese carriers in the Battle of Midway.

I feel sure that the men and women who are employed at Electrol will do everything possible to speed up this equipment if they are told just how important the equipment is to the Navy.

Some day in the near future I will try to have several of the TBF fly over Kingston and operate that part of the airplane that requires Electrol equipment.

In closing may I ask the cooperation of all concerned to speed up our work so that we can send more and more Torpedo Planes to the men in the Navy who know how, can and will fight them.

L. HAASE.

Red Army Hits Hard in Corridor Between Don and Volga

By DON WHITEHEAD
(The Associated Press)

United States fighter pilots have added four more Messerschmitts to their steeply-rising toll of downed enemy planes in continuation of the punishing air offensive which supports the British Eighth Army's thrust against Marshal Rommel's desert lines in Egypt, official reports said today.

American and British airmen apparently were sharing three missions—to wear down the Axis strength already in North Africa, to keep the enemy from getting reinforcements across the Mediterranean and to back the British land forces grinding into the Axis' Alamein line fortifications.

While air attacks smashed at enemy supply lines and bases even across the Mediterranean to Crete, British headquarters announced that the land forces had beaten off a counter-attack in the desert and inflicted further losses on the Axis in a series of minor tank engagements yesterday.

"Fighting continues," the bulletin added tersely, but gave no further details.

The Axis air force was said to have remained on the defensive throughout yesterday as allied planes smashed at enemy landing fields and forward positions.

Allied night fighters also carried out protective patrols over the front and shot down one Junkers 88, headquarters said.

Nine enemy fighters in all were reported destroyed during the day in the Mediterranean theatre.

The attack on Crete, carried out by night, was said to have set fires at an enemy airdrome.

Allied torpedo-carrying aircraft were credited with sinking a large enemy tanker bound for North Africa last night.

"Enemy activity over Malta was ineffective and reduced in scale," the bulletin said.

From the tone of the communique it seemed evident that the Army of the Nile, bent on inflicting the maximum possible damage to the enemy at a minimum cost, was maintaining the cautious but determined pace of its land offensive while subjecting Rommel's forces to a ceaseless aerial and artillery bombardment.

The German high command likewise emphasized the weight of the British offensive, declaring:

"Bitter fighting in Egypt increased in intensity on the fifth day of the defensive battle.

"Despite extremely heavy attacks . . . the enemy failed to gain success owing to the stiff resistance put up by German and Italian troops."

Dispatches from Cairo said the main test was yet to come and that Gen. Montgomery was apparently determined not to repeat the disastrous mistake of last June when the British surged ahead too rapidly and advanced into a deadly ambush of anti-tank guns.

Russia—Adolf Hitler's Caucasus armies, in a sudden shift to a new sector, were reported attacking heavily with troops, tanks, artillery and planes against Soviet defenses on the Nalchik Plateau, 50 miles southwest of the old Mozdok battle sector.

A Berlin broadcast said the Germans had already captured Nalchik, a mountain resort of 13,000 population on the northern slope of the Caucasus chain, only 60 miles from the important Georgian military highway to Tiflis.

A Nazi communique said German and Rumanian mountain troops "stormed the strongly fortified and stubbornly defended town of Nalchik," but did not claim its capture.

"Enemy forces bottled up northeast of Nalchik were wiped out or taken prisoner," the German command said, claiming the "annihilation" of several Red Army divisions in a four-day battle.

Hitler's headquarters said the German siege armies at Stalingrad beat off several Russian counterattacks and then "gained more ground in a workers' settle-

Scrap Drive in Wards 10 and 11

Saturday morning at 8 o'clock trucks of the city department will be operated in the metal scrap collection drive in Wards Ten and Eleven. If this campaign is to be pushed through to a smashing success, everyone will have to cooperate. In other wards of the city the Saturday collections have added greatly to the scrap heap and the Scrap Salvage Committee looks forward to similar or greater results this week.

Kingston's scrap metal is vastly important in its own right—as a source of guns and planes. But it is very important as an inspiration to the rest of the county and other cities. If Kingston's drive is spectacularly successful, then the other communities will know that this job can be done and that the people will respond quickly and enthusiastically to their country's call.

Householders are asked not to be too quick to say, "We might need that" when considering a contribution.

There are a lot of things in America we will never need if we don't get plenty of fighting equipment into the hands of our fighting men.

Plan to Salvage Ships

Los Angeles (AP)—Ships that go to the bottom through enemy torpedo action would be salvaged intact if the invention of Lieut. Harry E. Rieseberg works. A former bureau of navigation officer, he has applied for a patent on an immense pair of tongs which would be lowered from a floating dry dock and engage sunken vessels. Rieseberg, who has had experience in salvage work, believes the hulks could be hoisted to the surface at the rate of 2,500 feet in 12 hours.

Blast Cement Loose

Trident, Mont. (AP) — One of Montana's greatest quarry blasts was set off here recently when the Three Forks Portland Cement company exploded three freight carloads of dynamite. J. R. Latimer, plant superintendent, said 300,000 tons of rock were broken down by the explosion, sufficient to make 975,000 barrels of cement.

What It Means

Getting Parts for Home Appliances

By HERMAN ALLEN

You probably saw in the papers about how some 3,000 factories in 74 metal-working industries had virtually stopped manufacturing goods for civilian use.

More than nine tenths of the unfilled orders held by these plants were for war goods.

"That's fine," you thought. "Industry is really getting into the swing of war production.

"But what do we do when the washing machine finally gives out?"

I inquired about that at the War Production Board, and it looks fairly good as for getting repair parts for household goods. Production of many new items such as washing machines, electrical appliances and refrigerators have been cut off completely in many cases, of course, but most industries are continuing with at least a trickle of replacement parts.

One large sewing machine concern is doing the biggest repair part business of its history. With clothing—and almost everything else—up in price, there is a vast increase in home sewing.

"Based on the materials allotment for repair parts for agricultural machinery," a W. P. B. spokesman told me, "I would say that civilians can count on adequate repair parts for essential home equipment."

W. P. B. has granted farm equipment manufacturers 130 per cent of their 1940 consumption of material used for repair and replacement parts.

W. P. B. Chairman Nelson backs this up. "The things for civilians in a wartime economy are to be programmed and scheduled just like the army and navy," he told a recent press conference.

That probably would mean that for every 100,000 airplanes, W. P. B. expects to grant materials for 100,000 gear wheels for washing machines, for example — or for every 50,000 tanks, 50,000 essential dinguses for electrical refrigerators.

But don't expect to find too many new heating elements for electric hair dryers, or extra ice trays for refrigerators.

Essential repair parts for autos motorcycles and bicycles are sure to continue to get the green light. Transportation is too necessary to overlook.

Don't look too hopefully for new kitchen stoves made of heat-proof plastics. Plastics were one of the first things to turn up unexpectedly short soon after we got into the war. Things that go into many of them also are used to make smokeless powder and other munitions.

Radios? No new ones, of course, after present stocks are exhausted, but the Office of War Information wants a working radio in every home. The outlook is that strenuous measures will be taken to work this out.

'Our American Heritage' New School Syllabus

Albany—Building up in eighth grade pupils a full appreciation of the ideals, traditions, privileges and obligations bequeathed them by the past is the aim of a new syllabus, "Our American Heritage," just published by the State Education Department and now being adopted by schools throughout the state. The whole program is brought down to date so the boys and girls will see the significance of the purposes behind the present war effort.

The syllabus is designed to be a continuation of the program of social studies which eventually will begin in the first grade and continue through the last year of high school.

Dr. George M. Wiley, associate commissioner in charge of instructional supervision, points out in his foreword that the materials in this syllabus "follow the rich backgrounds which have been developed in the earlier grades and give increasing emphasis to the implications of democratic 'community living' as stressed in the seventh year. Through the dynamic character of local history and economic progress, these units of instruction will form the vital connecting link between early local struggles for freedom and the ideals which form the American pattern of today."

The first unit is concerned with the geography of America. The syllabus declares in this connection: "It seems logical to approach the story of our American heritage through an investigation of the geographic factors which, while furnishing the raw materials essential to the development of our great industrial nation, have also provided a natural setting in which a civilization based upon democratic ideals was free to develop."

Under a consideration of America in Colonial times, the program includes not only the traditional subjects linked with the Atlantic seaboard, but also an appreciation of the development in Central and South America of colonies of other nations. Similarly, the study of the struggle for freedom includes not only the material most adults are accustomed to expect but a review of what took place in the rest of the Western Hemisphere. Likewise, in pointing out the way the nation grew, through westward movement, expansion beyond the borders of America is included.

The story of American life is a section devoted to the development of an industrial civilization and the changes this has brought about in the culture and patterns of life for the nation. The sixth unit brings together all the foregoing and draws conclusions among which is this: "In order to be a good citizen, the individual has a two-fold obligation. He should seek to develop his talents not only for his own advantage, but also for service to society."

The final unit brings the pupil to a full consideration of national security, including the place of the President and the Congress in the defense setup, the Army and Navy and the individual citizen's responsibility toward his nation, in peacetime as well as in war.

And now each finds
OLD OVERHOLT
Suits his taste just right!

86 PROOF (Not bottled in bond)

For you folks who relish fine rye whiskey, there used to be only one answer to "what'll you have?"

The answer was always "OLD OVERHOLT!"

But now you have a further choice. For, there are now two kinds of Old Overholt:

Both have that rich distinctive Old Overholt flavor—famous for more than 132 years.

Both are full six years old.

Alaskan Highway Is Open for Use

Traffic Will Travel Road Weeks Ahead of Time to Supply Outposts

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—The entire Alaskan highway is now open to traffic, Secretary of War Stimson announced today, weeks ahead of schedule.

Motor trucks started this week moving supplies and equipment to the garrisons in the North Pacific outpost, using the entire 1,671 miles of the roadway, the secretary told his press conference.

"Thousands of trucks will operate over the route all winter, carrying soldiers and supplies to Alaska," Stimson said. "Plans are under way to bring loads of strategic materials on their return."

The formal opening has been advanced tentatively to November 15, instead of December 1. Ceremonies are planned for a point on the Alaskan-Canadian border.

Stimson also announced:

A second and larger training school for the W.A.A.C.S. will be opened December 1 at Daytona Beach, Fla. Hotels and apartments to be taken over by the army will provide facilities for more than 6,000 trainees. In temporary command will be Colonel Don C. Faith, now commandant at the original center at Fort Des Moines, Ia.

Changes soon will be announced in the Army Specialist Corps, set up shortly after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Major General Dwight F. Davis organized the corps to make use of the services of men unable to meet all army requirements for combat service.

Stimson told an inquirer that criticism of Davis and his staff was "wholly unjustified." He said the changes already had been initiated by the corps and were based on experience but did not disclose their nature.

Although the corps has received upwards of 300,000 applications, only approximately 1,300 appointments have been made thus far, Stimson said, and added that the organization "has been facing certain insuperable difficulties, but has done valuable work."

Pvt. Smith in Texas

Smith of 20 East St. James street, who enlisted in the United States Army Air Corps at Philadelphia recently, is now stationed at Foster Field, Texas, with the 99th School Squadron, where he is receiving instructions in radio communications. Prior to enlistment Mr. Smith was a radio announcer at station WHAT in Philadelphia.

Missionary Meeting

The Missionary Circle of St. James Methodist Church will meet in the church parlor Friday afternoon, October 30 at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Raymond Rignall will conduct the devotions and Mrs. O. B. Smith will present the program. The Rev. Herbert Greenland will speak on "Christian Citizenship." Hostesses will be Mrs. Charles Everett and Mrs. J. A. Simpson.

Farm Area Draft Quotas May Change

Men Deferred for Essential Farm Work Will Cause Reduction of Quota

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Selective Service headquarters acknowledged today that the new occupational deferment directive for necessary men on essential dairy, livestock and poultry farms might in time reduce draft quotas in places where such men are concentrated.

A spokesman who desired to remain anonymous said this would likely follow because national Selective Service, after receiving notice from the Army of the number of men to be furnished, apportions state quotas according to the number of 1-A men available in each state.

State directors, he added, apportion quotas for local boards on the same basis, although some leeway is allowed as was shown when state pools were established so that no board would have to call heavily upon married men while other boards had a number of single men.

The spokesman said that any quota changes caused by the directive would not be noticeable immediately because quotas were sent out in advance of current calls and there has not been time for any great number of reclassifications under the new directive.

The directive, he said, advises local boards to give occupational deferment to qualified men who already have been deferred for dependency reasons, shifting them from 3-A to 3-B, and to "give serious consideration" to granting occupational deferment to those without dependency deferment.

Ration Banking Is Tried in Albany

Would Relieve Business Men, Ration Boards of Many Burdens

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Ration banking, being conducted experimentally in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area, "will relieve business men of considerable burdens," the New York Office of Price Administration director is convinced.

After viewing the first actual operation of the program yesterday, Lee S. Buckingham commented:

"I was pleased to note the fine reception and cooperative understanding shown by both banks and business men in this area, where ration banking is being tried out before its probable use nationally."

Under the plan dealers deposit ration coupons from customers in banks, then write checks to suppliers when they seek to replenish their stocks. The suppliers clear the checks back through the bank.

Preliminary reports from banks in the area of 430,000 population indicated the receptiveness of business men to the plan, tried successfully in England.

Buckingham described the plan as a "big step forward in simplifying the handling of ration paper and relieving local war price and rationing boards of the big burden of keeping track of thousands of stamps and certificates."

Explaining how it will "relieve business men of considerable burdens," he gave as an example: "A grocer no longer will have to worry about the loss or theft of his consumer sugar coupons or certificates. He can deposit his stamps at the bank whenever he goes there to deposit his money. Opening a ration account is just as simple as opening a bank account."

Thirty-three banks in 18 communities are cooperating. Approximately 4,000 merchants in the area are expected to participate. The plan does not affect consumers.

Fireman Will Receive Gift

Held for Hearing

Plan to Salvage Ships

Los Angeles (AP)—Ships that go to the bottom through enemy torpedo action would be salvaged intact if the invention of Lieut. Harry E. Rieseberg works. A former bureau of navigation officer, he has applied for a patent on an immense pair of tongs which would be lowered from a floating dry dock and engage sunken vessels. Rieseberg, who has had experience in salvage work, believes the hulks could be hoisted to the surface at the rate of 2,500 feet in 12 hours.

Blast Cement Loose

Trident, Mont. (AP) — One of Montana's greatest quarry blasts was set off here recently when the Three Forks Portland Cement company exploded three freight carloads of dynamite. J. R. Latimer, plant superintendent, said 300,000 tons of rock were broken down by the explosion, sufficient to make 975,000 barrels of cement.

What It Means

By HERMAN ALLEN

You probably saw in the papers about how some 3,000 factories in 74 metal-working industries had virtually stopped manufacturing goods for civilian use.

More than nine tenths of the unfilled orders held by these plants were for war goods.

"That's fine," you thought. "Industry is really getting into the swing of war production.

"But what do we do when the washing machine finally gives out?"

I inquired about that at the War Production Board, and it looks fairly good as for getting repair parts for household goods. Production of many new items such as washing machines, electrical appliances and refrigerators have been cut off completely in many cases, of course, but most industries are continuing with at least a trickle of replacement parts.

One large sewing machine concern is doing the biggest repair part business of its history. With clothing—and almost everything else—up in price, there is a vast increase in home sewing.

"Based on the materials allotment for repair parts for agricultural machinery," a W. P. B. spokesman told me, "I would say that civilians can count on adequate repair parts for essential home equipment."

W. P. B. has granted farm equipment manufacturers 130 per cent of their 1940 consumption of material used for repair and replacement parts.

W. P. B. Chairman Nelson backs this up. "The things for civilians in a wartime economy are to be programmed and scheduled just like the army and navy," he told a recent press conference.

That probably would mean that for every 100,000 airplanes, W. P. B. expects to grant materials for 100,000 gear wheels for washing machines, for example — or for every 50,000 tanks, 50,000 essential dinguses for electrical refrigerators.

But don't expect to find too many new heating elements for electric hair dryers, or extra ice trays for refrigerators.

Essential repair parts for autos motorcycles and bicycles are sure to continue to get the green light. Transportation is too necessary to overlook.

Don't look too hopefully for new kitchen stoves made of heat-proof plastics. Plastics were one of the first things to turn up unexpectedly short soon after we got into the war. Things that go into many of them also are used to make smokeless powder and other munitions.

Radios? No new ones, of course, after present stocks are exhausted, but the Office of War Information wants a working radio in every home. The outlook is that strenuous measures will be taken to work this out.

'Our American Heritage' New School Syllabus

Albany—Building up in eighth grade pupils a full appreciation of the ideals, traditions, privileges and obligations bequeathed them by the past is the aim of a new syllabus, "Our American Heritage," just published by the State Education Department and now being adopted by schools throughout the state. The whole program is brought down to date so the boys and girls will see the significance of the purposes behind the present war effort.

The syllabus is designed to be a continuation of the program of social studies which eventually will begin in the first grade and continue through the last year of high school.

Dr. George M. Wiley, associate commissioner in charge of instructional supervision, points out in his foreword that the materials in this syllabus "follow the rich backgrounds which have been developed in the earlier grades and give increasing emphasis to the implications of democratic 'community living' as stressed in the seventh year. Through the dynamic character of local history and economic progress, these units of instruction will form the vital connecting link between early local struggles for freedom and the ideals which form the American pattern of today."

The first unit is concerned with the geography of America. The syllabus declares in this connection: "It seems logical to approach the story of our American heritage through an investigation of the geographic factors which, while furnishing the raw materials essential to the development of our great industrial nation, have also provided a natural setting in which a civilization based upon democratic ideals was free to develop."

Under a consideration of America in Colonial times, the program includes not only the traditional subjects linked with the Atlantic seaboard, but also an appreciation of the development in Central and South America of colonies of other nations. Similarly, the study of the struggle for freedom includes not only the material most adults are accustomed to expect but a review of what took place in the rest of the Western Hemisphere. Likewise, in pointing out the way the nation grew, through westward movement, expansion beyond the borders of America is included.

The story of American life is a section devoted to the development of an industrial civilization and the changes this has brought about in the culture and patterns of life for the nation. The sixth unit brings together all the foregoing and draws conclusions among which is this: "In order to be a good citizen, the individual has a two-fold obligation. He should seek to develop his talents not only for his own advantage, but also for service to society."

The final unit brings the pupil to a full consideration of national security, including the place of the President and the Congress in the defense setup, the Army and Navy and the individual citizen's responsibility toward his nation, in peacetime as well as in war.

YOUR DUTY TO VOTE

The people who have the right to vote—ought to vote. The only safeguard against minority control of government is majority participation in elections by the people. Minorities thrive when the people are careless.

The American theory of government is government based on the will of the majority. Every qualified voter should make it his personal business to take an active part in determining the candidates of his party. In no other way can the results express the wishes of the people, as they are supposed to do. The right of voting is one of the great privileges of American citizenship.

This country is builded on the two-party theory of government. Without it we would have totalitarianism in America just as they have it in many countries elsewhere. The two-party system must be maintained and this can only be done through elections held at legally stated intervals with the voters taking active part.

It is the duty of every American on Election Day to get out and vote. The election concerns every citizen.

NEW TAX LAW

On the basis of Treasury Department estimates 9,490 residents of Kingston will file federal income tax returns next March—apart from those who have to pay the Victory Tax—when the government collects on the largest levy in American history. This number represents approximately thirteen returns for every ten filed locally last March and forty-five for every ten filed in 1940. More will be brought into the family of taxpayers in 1944, when further lowering of the exemptions is expected to boost the number of returns 45 per cent.

Not all of the 9,490 who will file returns in Kingston will be required to make payments, however. The estimate is that 77.5 per cent of them will be liable for taxes and that they will add $1,620,000 to the national coffers.

In Ulster county as a whole, returns are expected from 19,150 individuals. They will pay $3,270,000.

The new federal tax law, with state and local taxes, will siphon off about a third of the huge national income. Although it carries rates that amount to virtual confiscation in the upper brackets and will call on middle bracket and low income groups to pay from twice to twenty-two times as much as last year, it is deemed a necessary hardship designed as much to head off inflation as to help pay the war costs now.

USEFUL TOEHOLD

One test of the value of anything is, how much it is wanted by others. Judged by this test, the American toehold in the Solomons is well worth having. If the Japanese did not think so, they would not be making drive after drive to expel our troops.

We want the Solomons as a stepping-stone toward Japan. Even apart from this, our seizure of territory there has proved well worth while because of the losses it has compelled the Japanese to incur. They may eventually drive us out, but in doing so they will have lost planes and ships they cannot easily spare and will have weakened their power to threaten Russia or advance toward Australia.

The Solomons have proved a magnet to draw Japanese craft on air and sea to their doom.

WOMEN CABBIES

Women, taking over many kinds of civilian work as men are absorbed by factories and drained into military service, finally get around to driving taxicabs. In city after city they are moving into this unusual employment. And some people are worried, regarding this particularly as men's work.

There are unpleasant things about it, to be sure. But it has been done in other countries as shortages in man-power developed. Women have driven army busses, too, in Canada and elsewhere. And there seems to be no logical reason why it shouldn't be done in this country, under proper regulations.

Current restrictions forbid such employment after 10:30 p. m., place a 48-hour limit on the working week, and insist on proper provision for the women drivers at taxicab garages. With such legal protection, women with enough self-confidence to take up this virile employment can probably take care of themselves. There is something about essential war-time jobs that lifts common occupations above ordinary levels.

"The fiery trial through which we are passing will light us down in honor or dishonor to the latest generation. We shall nobly save, or meanly lose the last, best hope of earth," said Abraham Lincoln. We did not lose it then, nor shall we now.

Chile's heart is in the right place; she merely got into bad company with her Argentine neighbors across the divide.

Sure, this is the scrappiest nation on earth. If you don't believe it, ask the collectors.

It takes chestiness to fill a community chest.

LIVER, GALL BLADDER AND MIGRAINE

Many years ago when physicians were blaming golden rod for hay fever, I heard of a nurse who was treating hay fever patients by the use of Epsom salts. The hay fever was not cured but it was in a milder form than during any previous years. As I am a strong believer that many ailments are caused by a sluggish liver and gall bladder, I felt that the Epsom salts by stimulating liver and gall bladder activity, poisons and wastes could be better filtered from the blood. One of the most important jobs done by the liver is this filtering process.

From time to time I have stated that while I had insufficient proof, I have considered sluggish liver and gall bladder as a factor in causing migraine symptoms. When a number of cases of migraine were shown to be due to allergy or sensitiveness to foods I felt that my liver and gall bladder theory (which, of course, was shared by a great many other physicians), was wrong.

However, as far back as 1927, Dr. J. S. Diamond, in The American Journal of Medical Sciences pointed out that he found 32 of 35 cases of migraine had liver and gall bladder disturbance. Since that time other research workers have found that liver and gall bladder disturbance was present in from 50 to as high as 90 per cent of their migraine patients.

More recently I have written about the use of ox gall (fel bovis, bile salts) as giving relief in many cases of migraine.

This does not mean that migraine is caused by the liver and gall bladder disturbances but the thought is that whatever causes migraine—fatigue, emotional disturbances, allergy to various substances—interferes with the liver and gall bladder, or the fact that the liver and gall bladder is already disturbed prevents them from handling the disturber or disturbing substances properly.

In the meantime patients with migraine would do well to avoid exhaustion (mental and physical) and keep liver and gall bladder in good working condition by avoiding large meals, especially much fat food at one time.

If they have a sit down job, they should do three or four minutes bending exercise (knees straight) daily. For those unable to take bending exercises a few deep breaths two or three times daily will squeeze the liver and prevent sluggishness.

BELIEVED LABOR LEADER

Stockholm (AP)—More than a million members are enrolled in the Swedish Federation of Labor. The 8,000 trade unions in Sweden now have as members 23 per cent of the nation's population between the ages of 15 and 65 years, this percentage being the world's highest, it is believed. Practically all of the wage-earners in industry and transportation have been absorbed into unions, and if the farm laborers and forest workers become affiliated, a maximum membership of 1,200,000 is foreseen.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

An attractive set of four stamps, illustrations for which already have been received in this country, will be issued by Switzerland (Helvetia) on Dec. 1, each having a regular postal value with a surcharge for the benefit of child welfare.

Two of the stamps bear portraits. They are the green five centimes, picturing Niklous Riggenbach (1817-1899), and the blue 30 centimes, portraying Konrad Escher von der Linth (1767-1823). The usual presumption is that the men were identified with early child welfare movements. The other two stamps are 10 centimes brown and 20 centimes orange, each having sketches of a Swiss girl. The von der Linth stamp has a surcharge of 10 centimes, the others five.

These stamps will remain valid for use until May 31 1943.

Photographic copies of another pending set, of Chilean commemoratives, also have been received by J. & H. Stolow, New York dealers, but actual stamps have not yet arrived. There are six values in this set, recalling the 100th anniversary of the founding of the University of Chile.

Reproduction probably will await arrival of originals, copies being fogged, but the values and prominent Chileans or scenes are these: 30 cent red, head of Letelier; 40 cent green, head of Bello; 90 cent violet, head of Bielnes; 1 peso yellow-brown, University building; 1 peso-80 cent light blue, head of Montt, and 1 peso airmail, a coat of arms, presumably the University's.

Costa Rica is coming out with four five-cent victory stamps, having an overprint reading "Victoria." They will be in orange, blue, violet and green. The Bahamas have a new set which carries an overcharge commemorating Columbus' landfall, but these, too, are without description here. Presumably all the designs will be originals.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Two of the leading lawyers in Kingston for many years were Judge John G. Van Etten, prominent Democrat, and Judge A. T. Clearwater, equally prominent Republican, and is interesting to recall that on September 10, 1927, Judge Clearwater was celebrating his 79th birthday, and two days later, on September 12, Judge Van Etten died in his home on West Chestnut street, aged 64 years.

Judge Van Etten for years was active in the ranks of the Ulster county Democratic party, and served as county judge from 1898-1904. He was a member of the city's first zoning board of appeals, and at the time of his death was serving as a member of the education board.

Judge Van Etten was widely known as a vocalist and took part in many amateur shows in the city in his younger days. He was also interested in military affairs and had served as a captain in the old Fourteenth Separate Co of this city.

During the first World War in 1918 he served as fuel administrator of Ulster county.

Judge Clearwater was the city's first official historian, a position he held until his death, and was widely known not only in Kingston but throughout the state.

Alderman William H. Connelly, who was a well known eye, ear and nose specialist, on September 4, 1917, was named as alderman-at-large to succeed Walter P. Crane who had resigned to be appointed a member of the education board by Mayor Palmer Canfield.

Dr. Connelly for years was active in Republican politics in the city, and had served as a member of the police board for some years.

I recall that on September 8, 1917, Joseph D. Turner was appointed deputy city clerk by Mayor Canfield to succeed Harold A. Styles, who had resigned to become stenographer of the surrogate's court. Mr. Turner served as deputy city clerk for several years, and was one of the most efficient men ever to hold that position.

It was on September 26, 1917, that Mrs. Sol Appel, whose husband had presented to the city the two cannon that stand on the lawn of the city hall, retired from business, closing her retail shoe store on lower Broadway, after conducting the business for 20 years.

The cannon and the cannon balls are now headed for Uncle Sam's scrap pile.

Mrs. Appel still makes her home on Abeel street, near the entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge, where she has resided for many years.

The 1940 census listed 125,000 Japanese in the United States. California had more than 90,000.

Effect of Counter Offensive in Southwest Pacific Is Big Thing, Not Number of Ships Lost

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 29—These are days when faith in the high command is more than ever necessary. The events of the last few weeks in the naval actions in the Pacific have gone against us not because our men have not fought bravely or because they have been unwilling to take the risks but because the whole strategy of the present effort to make the Solomons secure inevitably involves big losses.

The test of victory is not the number of ships lost but the effect of our whole counter offensive in the southwest Pacific. It is true that our forces have been compelled to take the defensive as the Japanese have counter attacked. But that counter attack was expected and the dangers in it have been fully realized from the start.

In fact, Japan could not allow the United States to take the Solomons without herself risking enormous forces to dislodge us. Defeat for the Japanese meant a terrible loss of prestige at home. But defeat for the American Navy is but one of a number of setbacks which are part of the long uphill struggle against forces superior in number and possessing an advantage in interior lines of communication short in length and quickly supplied from near-by bases.

Our high command knew that Japan had to turn out a big force to endeavor to retake the Solomons. Inferior as yet in numbers, our fleet could not risk a major battle in the areas near to Japan's bases. Our tactics have been to draw the Japanese fleet divisions toward the south where, with the aid of land-based planes, we could attempt attrition, picking off the Japanese naval units and planes.

Japan cannot replace lost ships as fast as we can. Japan cannot continue to supply her big armies in China and protect her transports against our growing number of submarines if she has to expend a good deal of her fleet in southwest Pacific actions. Japan cannot attack Siberia if she is absorbed in a naval combat with the United States. This Premier Stalin already knows and it means he need not keep such a big Siberian army intact and send enormous amounts of supplies over the Transsiberian railroad that he really needs on the European front.

The overall strategy of the United States is succeeding. We are, to be sure, paying a high price. Offensives come high. Those who have been clamoring for a second front in Europe on the coast of France have a taste today of what it means to take the offensive and suffer heavy losses. This is no time to say our high command should not have attempted a counter offensive unless better prepared. We had to go forward or suffer an attack on our big supply lines to Australia.

Many of the breaks have gone against us. Some of these cannot be disclosed. Down in Australia they must realize, for instance, that we are sorry they did not have a bigger fleet to help us in the Solomons and we on our part are regretful that everything has not been coordinated as it might have been as between ourselves and some of our allies.

The American people will take the good with the bad, the bitter with the sweet. Our naval officers are doing a tremendous job against odds not of their own creation. The Japanese transport their fuel and supplies a few hundred miles. We must bring our octane gas and our oil for surface ships 7,000 miles to the battle area.

The Navy isn't complainnig about the fate that has forced it to fight a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy. The Navy has lost some valuable ships. Post-mortems, some day when all the facts are available, will tell the whole story but defeat against an enemy superior in numbers and with advantages of air and sea bases is not something to blame on our own command. It is something to be swallowed grimly, knowing our men have done the best they can with the weapons available and knowing, too, that defeat can only tighten the resolution of our forces to persevere as more ships and more men and more supplies come up for the struggle that can never end till the whole Japanese navy has been annihilated.

"RETROSPECT OF WESTERN TRAVEL," by Harriet Martineau

As one feature of Harper's 125th anniversary celebration, that old firm is reissuing Harriet Martineau's "Restrospect of Western Travel." It is a thoughtful and an amusing gesture, and because the new edition was photographed from the original, it has a good deal of its flavor.

Harriet visited the United States in 1934, you may remember. She was a jolly soul, very much a lady but also very much what we might call today a good egg. On her way over (she was 42 days at sea) she began her literary labors. She took her writing materials up to the main deck, and worked on an article she had promised a British editor. She had trouble, too—a man was so fascinated by the processes of composition that he stood directly in front of her for days, watching her pen and driving her half out of her mind. At last, Harriet remarks, someone spoke to the man and she finished her article in peace. You will observe that she was far too much a lady to speak herself.

In any case, Harriet toured these shores, and met everybody from Madison and his wife down to public house keepers. She was as accurate an observer as you could ask, and she made notes. Then she returned to England and produced a book called "Society in America." It was rather a serious book but it did well enough that something else was indicated. This was the "Retrospect of Western Travel," and it reached the American public in 1838, four years after the journey it described.

The reason Harriet's "Western Travel" has so long survived is a perfectly simple reason. It is that Harriet was a good reporter, and being one, knew that what brought a country to life was not labored descriptions of its social organization, but items about the food, the conversation, the clothes and such like. In other words, human interest stuff. Most likely there will be no fresher, nor more useful publication this fall. Harriet is fun.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The try-out period of women in uniform in the U. S. armed forces is over. The ladies have made good.

It hasn't been announced yet but a big expansion of the uniformed and other forces is in the immediate offing. The WAACs and WAVEs soon will be shooting at a total enrollment of 150,000 members each. Present laws place limitations on the numbers in both of these services but, according to rumor, that limitation soon will be removed. Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, who introduced the original WAACs bill, has another coming up which would make the WAACs an integral part of the army instead of a mere auxiliary.

Another Fort Des Moines (WAAC training center) may rise soon at Daytona Beach, Fla. The previously announced second training school for WAVEs at Mount Holyoke College, Mass., probably is the forerunner of additional centers in Iowa and Georgia.

The bill establishing the "Warcogs" (Women's Auxiliary of the Coast Guard) already has cleared the House of Representatives. The WAFs, under the direction of Nancy Harkness Love, is a small force but growing fast. These women in the auxiliary flying service will never catch up numerically with the WAACs and WAVEs, but proportionately they have a vital spot in the military scheme of things.

There's a great deal of mystery surrounding Jacqueline Cochran's army training school for women pilots, but it is known that she is drawing heavily on the ranks of 3,400 women pilots in the country and training others, without previous experience, to produce a corps of women flyers capable of piloting anything from an airborne "jeep" to a transoceanic clipper.

The greatest strides so far have been made by the WAACs. In one small office here, 18 WAACs have taken over work previously done by soldiers capable of serving in the front lines. These aren't mere stenographic and clerical jobs ordinarily handled by civil service workers.

The army has made no announcement at this writing as to whether WAACs are serving overseas, but there are rumors that the uniforms are not uncommon in England.

The navy has been rather reluctant to hand its work over to the WAVEs. WAVEs assigned to jobs in Washington are still "shadows" of the naval officers they are supposed to supersede.

When our armed forces reach that prospective level of seven or eight million men, the women in uniform may total 10 per cent of that.

Alaskan Highway Is Open for Use

Traffic Will Travel Road Weeks Ahead of Time to Supply Outposts

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—The entire Alaskan highway is now open to traffic, Secretary of War Stimson announced today, weeks ahead of schedule.

Motor trucks started this week moving supplies and equipment to the garrisons in the North Pacific outpost, using the entire 1,671 miles of the roadway, the secretary told his press conference.

"Thousands of trucks will operate over the route all winter, carrying soldiers and supplies to Alaska," Stimson said. "Plans are under way to bring loads of strategic materials on their return."

The formal opening has been advanced tentatively to November 15, instead of December 1. Ceremonies are planned for a point on the Alaskan-Canadian border.

Stimson also announced:

A second and larger training school for the W.A.A.C.S. will be opened December 1 at Daytona Beach, Fla. Hotels and apartments to be taken over by the army will provide facilities for more than 6,000 trainees. In temporary command will be Colonel Don C. Faith, now commandant at the original center at Fort Des Moines, Ia.

Changes soon will be announced in the Army Specialist Corps, set up shortly after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Major General Dwight F. Davis organized the corps to make use of the services of men unable to meet all army requirements for combat service.

Stimson told an inquirer that criticism of Davis and his staff was "wholly unjustified." He said the changes already had been initiated by the corps and were based on experience but did not disclose their nature.

Although the corps has received upwards of 300,000 applications, only approximately 1,300 appointments have been made thus far, Stimson said, and added that the organization "has been facing certain insuperable difficulties, but has done valuable work."

Pvt. Smith in Texas

Pvt. William L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Smith of 20 East St. James street, who enlisted in the United States Army Air Corps at Philadelphia recently, is now stationed at Foster Field, Texas, with the 99th School Squadron, where he is receiving instructions in radio communications. Prior to enlistment Mr. Smith was a radio announcer at station WHAT in Philadelphia.

Missionary Meeting

The Missionary Circle of St. James Methodist Church will meet in the church parlor Friday afternoon, October 30 at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Raymond Rignall will conduct the devotions and Mrs. O. B. Smith will present the program. The Rev. Herbert Greenland will speak on "Christian Citizenship." Hostesses will be Mrs. Charles Everett and Mrs. J. A. Simpson.

Farm Area Draft Quotas May Change

Men Deferred for Essential Farm Work Will Cause Reduction of Quota

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Selective Service headquarters acknowledged today that the new occupational deferment directive for necessary men on essential dairy, livestock and poultry farms might in time reduce draft quotas in places where such men are concentrated.

A spokesman who desired to remain anonymous said this would likely follow because national Selective Service, after receiving notice from the Army of the number of men to be furnished, apportions state quotas according to the number of 1-A men available in each state.

State directors, he added, apportion quotas for local boards on the same basis, although some leeway is allowed as was shown when state pools were established so that no board would have to call heavily upon married men while other boards had a number of single men.

The spokesman said that any quota changes caused by the directive would not be noticeable immediately because quotas were sent out in advance of current calls and there has not been time for any great number of reclassifications under the new directive.

The directive, he said, advises local boards to give occupational deferment to qualified men who already have been deferred for dependency reasons, shifting them from 3-A to 3-B, and to "give serious consideration" to granting occupational deferment to those without dependency deferment.

Ration Banking Is Tried in Albany

Would Relieve Business Men, Ration Boards of Many Burdens

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Ration banking, being conducted experimentally in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area, "will relieve business men of considerable burdens," the New York Office of Price Administration director is convinced.

After viewing the first actual operation of the program yesterday, Lee S. Buckingham commented:

"I was pleased to note the fine reception and cooperative understanding shown by both banks and business men in this area, where ration banking is being tried out before its probable use nationally."

Under the plan, dealers deposit ration coupons from customers in banks, then write checks to suppliers when they seek to replenish their stocks. The suppliers clear the checks back through the bank.

Preliminary reports from banks in the area of 430,000 population indicated the receptiveness of business men to the plan, tried successfully in England.

Buckingham described the plan as a "big step forward in simplifying the handling of ration paper and relieving local war price and rationing boards of the big burden of keeping track of thousands of stamps and certificates."

Explaining how it will "relieve business men of considerable burdens," he gave as an example: "A grocer no longer will have to worry about the loss or theft of his consumer sugar coupons or certificates. He can deposit his stamps at the bank whenever he goes there to deposit his money. Opening a ration account is just as simple as opening a bank account."

Thirty-three banks in 18 communities are cooperating. Approximately 4,000 merchants in the area are expected to participate. The plan does not affect consumers.

Fireman Will Receive Gift

This evening Fireman Julius Buchholtz of the Kingston fire department will be presented with a parting gift by his fellow firemen at ceremonies held at 6 o'clock in the Central Fire Station. Fireman Buchholtz is one of the contingent which leaves Saturday for Camp Upton.

Halloween Social

Mister Sprong likes whiskey strong,
His friend prefers it light,
OLD OVERHOLT
Suits his taste just right!

For you folks who relish fine rye whiskey, there used to be only one answer to "what'll you have?"

The answer was always "OLD OVERHOLT!"

But now you have a further choice. For, there are now two kinds of Old Overholt:

100 Proof—and 86 Proof.

Both have that rich distinctive Old Overholt flavor—famous for more than 132 years.

Both are full six years old.

The only difference is—body and price.

100 proof Old Overholt has the robust body "old timers" prefer.

86 proof Old Overholt, bottled out of bond, is milder, lighter—and it costs enough less to let a lot more people enjoy this famous whiskey.

Try both—and let your own taste and your own purse decide which you prefer.

Prepare and Serve Tongue in Many Ways

This Meat Specialty Is Appetizing and Rich in Food Value

MENU

Beef Tongue — Glazed Grapes
Spoon Bread — Potato Chips
Perfection Salad
Hot Chocolate — Wafers

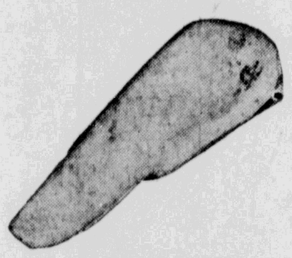

YOUR FOOD—AND NUTRITION

Tongue is not only an economical delicacy but it is rich in food value. It contains the same proportion of high quality protein as any lean meat. It is a good source of iron. It contains the vitamins thiamin and riboflavin.

Protein is a very important part of the diet of adults and children alike. Meat is one of the diet's main sources of protein, and a liberal amount daily is a safeguard against the danger of protein deficiency. The home-maker should widen her cooking repertory to include meat specialties, not only because they are tasty but because of their high food value.

When you are looking for something different as a main dish for any occasion, don't overlook tongue. This is one of the meat specialties frequently listed among the thriftier cuts, yet it is high in nutritive value and good in flavor and is not hard to prepare. Doubtless it is thrifty because so many women don't know how good it can be, and aren't acquainted with the ways of serving it.

Beef tongue is usually chosen for cooking at home, for it is a good size for the average family. Calf tongue is also used. Pork and lamb tongues, which of course are small, are usually sold pickled and ready to serve.

Beef Tongue

Tongue contains little waste. It consists almost entirely of muscle, and is rich in the nutrients which any lean meat provides, high quality protein, minerals, and vitamins. Its flavor is mild and it blends also with other foods. It is a favorite companion for spinach and other leafy vegetables.

Delicious in Sandwiches

Tongue adds flavor to vegetables cooked with it, and on the other hand its own flavor may be enhanced by cooking it in water to which spices have been added. It may be served cold in vinegar, or accompanied by a spicy sauce.

Served hot, a whole tongue is a good main dish for the family meal. It is good, sliced thin in sandwiches. It is an attractive main dish to serve a large group in buffet style. It can be served with a fruit garnish, as a festive touch for a special occasion.

Tongue, like heart, is a part of the animal which has received considerable exercise, and it requires the same cooking method used for heart, slow cooking in moist heat.

To prepare fresh tongue for cooking wash it thoroughly in warm water. Smoked or pickled tongue should be soaked for several hours.

Can Be Served Cold

Though we speak of "boiled" tongue, the water in which tongue is cooked should never actually boil. Cover fresh tongue with salted water (one teaspoon salt for each quart of water). Spices and vegetables may be added for seasoning. Cover the kettle and cook at simmering temperature until the tongue is tender.

After the tongue is tender, remove the skin and cut away the roots. The skin can be loosened more easily if the tongue is plunged into cold water immediately after cooking. It can then be reheated, or it can be served cold.

Tongue may be sliced thin and allowed to stand in vinegar or in vinegar sauce. Here is a tasty vinegar sauce.

Vinaigrette Sauce

6 teaspoons vinegar
2 tablespoons capers or chopped pickles
1 clove garlic
¼ teaspoon sugar
Salt and pepper
8 tablespoons salad oil

Combine vinegar, capers or chopped pickles, a few drops garlic, sugar, salt and pepper. Add the salad oil slowly, blending thoroughly.

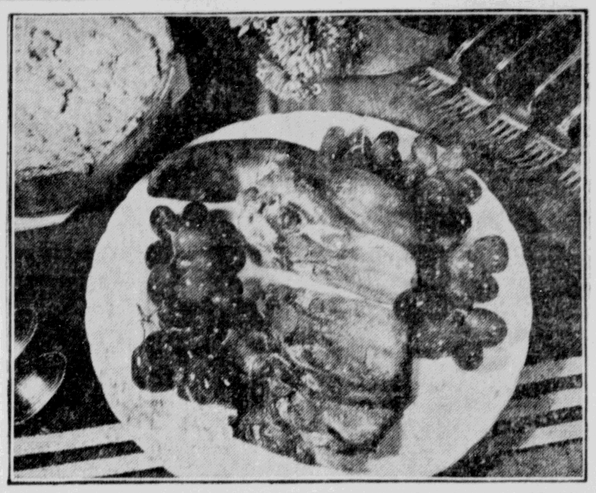

Colonial "Boiled" Tongue

1 calf or beef tongue
4 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
Bay leaf
1 tablespoon whole cloves
¾ cup brown sugar
1½ cups canned cherries
½ lemon, sliced

Wash tongue thoroughly and let simmer in water until tender, about two or two and one-half hours. Trim root end and remove all skin. Place in a covered pan. Add salt, cloves, butter, bay leaf, brown sugar, cherries, sliced lemon and 1 cup broth in which the tongue was cooked. Cover and simmer on top of range until thoroughly heated and the sauce is thickened.

Only ersatz coffee made from roasted malt is obtainable in Belgium.

Beef Tongue A Tasty Main Dish

Beef tongue, cooked in water is good served either hot or cold. Sliced cold, with glazed grapes as a garnish, it is the tempting main dish for a buffet service. Southern spoon bread is the hot dish which accompanies it here. Scalloped corn or potatoes or any other hot vegetable in casserole might be served with sliced tongue.

Farm Filtering of Milk Complicated

Geneva, N. Y. — The seemingly simple operation of filtering milk on the farm is more complicated than is apparent on first sight, declares Dr. A. C. Dahlberg, head of the Dairy Division at the State Experiment Station here. "Dairymen have generally found the problem of milk filtering on the farm to be rather confusing due to the large variety of materials available for filter pads and the variation in metal equipment or filters to hold the pads," says this authority.

Requirements for a good milk filter as listed by Dr. Dahlberg include sturdy construction, ease in washing, a type approved by health authorities, and certainty that the filter pad will be held in such a way that all of the milk must pass thru the pad without breaking it. "These points regarding filters seem simple, yet they are difficult to attain completely," he says, adding that, "The filter not only affects the efficiency of the filter pad in removing sediment, but it also affects the total amount of milk that the pad will handle.

Dairymen have a choice between cotton filter pads and filter cloths, depending upon local regulations and personal preferences. In general, cotton pads are the most efficient in removing sediment, but lack the capacity of filter cloths, it is said. It is essential to use the cotton filter pad best suited to the filter; and if there is any doubt, it is recommended that a double-faced cotton pad be used.

The efficiency of the filter and the filter pad is markedly affected by the age and temperature of the milk. Milk that has aged a few hours or that has cooled somewhat will filter slowly. Excessive udder trouble also slows down the filtering operation. Time is required for good filtering, but the filtering must keep ahead of the milker. Replacing the pad is recommended when filtering is too slow. These and other numerous details of filtering milk on the farm are now under study at the Experiment Station.

HANGING DRAWS THRONGS

Prayers, songs and cheers mingled in the morning air as Thomas J. Williams was executed in Belfast, Northern Ireland, for the murder of Constable Patrick Murphy. With police lines guarding a half-mile of street near the prison, throngs gathered outside the cordon as the execution time approached. On one corner a group of women prayed. Opposite them King." Cheers and the singing of "There'll Always Be an England" followed.

Wilderness Survival Course at College

Dean Samuel N. Spring of the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University, announces a new course of lectures and field trips teaching resourcefulness when traveling in rough country, survival in the winderness and physical fitness. This course is for men students and will begin January 12 under the joint direction of the College of Forestry and the Department of Physical Education of the university.

Experts at the Forestry College believe that the average man entering the armed services is lacking in the knowledge of and the use of many aids that will help him to survive and travel through forested or wild country. Often he has had no training in the use of the axe or other woods tools used in constructing shelters, log bridges and tank traps. "Letters from alumni in the army show the value of mapping and woods skills. The new course will give this instruction to students who may soon be in urgent need of such training," says the dean.

Some of the topics to be covered are:

Winter camping; methods of protection from biting insects and similar pests; precautions when traveling in the tropics, and tropical pests; poisonous animals; animal borne diseases; tracks and trails; how to use United States Geological Survey Topographic maps; stalking, traveling and concealment techniques; reading weather maps and making local forecasts; some common trees useful to men in a forested country; and mechanical properties of wood important in building log structures.

Under the leadership of the forestry faculty and the Department of Physical Education, students will learn to traverse rough country, day or night, find objectives indicated on a map, build fires under adverse conditions, sleep out using a minimum of equipment, use an axe properly, climb trees or scale cliffs with a safety rope, understand the fundamentals of water safety, and other items useful in wild country.

Of the 12,000,000 foreign-born residents of the United States, New York has 3,000,000.

If you're feeling "low," dragged out, not quite up to par, consider this: In these war days your living habits are all upset. Meals especially are likely to be hurried, improperly balanced. And you're apt to forget the importance of adequate "bulk" in your diet.

Yet the lack of this one food essential is one of the common causes of wartime constipation. For this trouble, medicinal laxatives are but temporary remedies; they don't get at the cause.

TIME FOR HITCHING POSTS

Greeley, Colo. (AP) — Farmer Arthur Fugate says it's about time that cities began providing wooden hitching racks for the farmers.

"More and more farmers are going to be hauling into town with team and wagons, from now on," he says. "There are no hitching posts and help is too hard to get to bring along an extra man or boy to hold the horses."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Preserved Treasure

Winchester, Ind. — "What am I bid for these glass jars?" Mayor O. E. Ross was about to ask at an auction sale.

Instead he hesitated for a second look. Could that be money he saw?

Yes, it was $1,890 in bills and quarters and half-dollars.

The auctioneer ordered the jars turned over to the administrator of the estate of Sylvester Pearson, whose effects he had been selling.

Parade Slows Down

Terre Haute, Ind. — Indiana State Teachers College will have its traditional homecoming parade Saturday, but under new rules which will make it considerably different from those of recent years.

None of the floats can be on gasoline-powered vehicles; only horse-drawn or manpower propelled vehicles will be permitted. And a ceiling of $5 has been set on the cost of decorating each float.

Gastronomical Victory

Bainbridge, Ga. — A package labeled "perishable" arrived at the Army flying school here, but the addressee had left the day before for home on furlough.

The boys couldn't sit idly by and see something perishable go to waste, so they sent a collect telegram to his home asking permission to open it.

Three hours later a wire came from his mother, "Frank not yet arrived, eat it if you pay for this."

The big chocolate cake cost a total of 79 cents.

$4 a Vote

Carthage, Mo. — It cost Jasper county $4 a vote to elect a representative for the special session of the state legislature called for November 4—and the candidate was unopposed.

The county spent from $1,200 to $1,500 as W. N. McDonald, Republican, received 307 votes.

There were four write-in votes. One was for a comic strip character.

Homecoming

Los Angeles — It was just like coming home when Leonard T. Row went to jail under a five-day sentence for non-payment of alimony.

For seven years he served as a jailer.

Can't Be Sure of Record 1943 Crops

Ithaca, N. Y. — The year 1942 brings record-breaking crop and livestock production from the nation's farms, but we can not take this production for granted in 1943.

The large supply of food produced this year is due to a combination of unusually good growing weather, large inventories of livestock, and favorable feed prices according to Prof. L. C. Cunningham of the New York State College of Agriculture. Along with this, farmers and their families have put longer, harder hours of work into their plan to produce more food to meet the needs of armed forces, allies, and consumers at home.

We probably can not expect to maintain this peak food production in 1943, he says, because of increasing scarcity of farm labor, shortages of farm machinery, fertilizer, and farm supplies, and because we can not expect another summer with such favorable growing weather as we had in 1942.

The 1942 crop yields per acre of land were extremely high, points out Cunningham, 36 per cent higher than the yields in the pre-drought years of 1923 to 1932. Although the acreage of some crops was restricted this year, total crop production was 11 per cent larger than in 1941, and 28 per cent larger than in the pre-drought years, according to estimates of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The total number of cattle on Farms at the beginning of 1942 was slightly larger than in the previous peak year of 1934. The production of beef and veal in 1942 will be 7 per cent higher than in 1941. Pork production will be 16 per cent greater than it was last year. Egg production is running 16 per cent larger than in 1941.

Total milk production of 120 billion pounds in 1942 will be four per cent above the 1941 figures. It has been made possible by a continued increase in the number of milk cows since the drought years.

Picking Prickly Pears Fun

Lakeside, Calif. (AP) — Protected by heavy gloves and aprons pickers are harvesting the prickly pear crop on the Maniscalco farm here. The fruit grows on giant cacti, and Sam Maniscalco insists that once you learn to peal it without pricking yourself you'll enjoy it.

Mark Fuelwood Trees In Farm Woodlands

Ithaca, N. Y. — Extension Minute Men of New York state have listed 1,200 farms with more than 81,000 acres of woodland that can provide fuelwood to help keep the home fires burning.

Listing of farms with woodland available was the first step in the statewide fuelwood campaign, says J. A. Cope, forester of the New York State College of Agriculture. Next step will be to mark at the farmer's request the trees that are fit only for fuel. Final steps will be the cutting and marketing of the wood in nearby centers of fuel consumption.

County agricultural agents are now assembling lists of farmers who wish to have their woodlands marked for cutting by experienced foresters. First request, from Seneca county, shows that 27 woodlot owners, owning 529 acres of forest, request the fuelwood marking service.

The system of marking assures improvement of the woodland for growing timber trees, as well as provisions of fuelwood, says Cope. Lumber, as well as fuelwood, is an essential commodity in the war.

Forty foresters located in the state will cooperate in the woodland marking service, as the farmers call for it, starting November 1. Foresters of federal, state and county agencies are cooperating; 13 from the State Conservation Department, eight blister rust control agents of the Federal Forest Service, seven from the Soil Conservation Service, five from the Syracuse College of Forestry, four from the U. S. Forest Service, including two farm foresters recently appointed, two extension foresters of Cornell University, one from the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, and one from Erie county.

The timber cruising service will cover every county in the state, with the exception of those in New York city, and Hamilton, which have no farm woodlands. Each forester except the two at Cornell will cover one or two counties at most, to provide prompt service. The Cornell foresters will cover the 12 counties more distant from headquarters of other foresters.

Cutting and marketing of the fuelwood are the problems farmers have not been able to carry out this year, with a shortage of labor for the regular farm food production jobs. Of the 1,200 farmers who reported in the Minute Man survey, only 119 said they had help available for cutting wood a total of 380 workers. In each county the plan will be to encourage all persons who can cut wood for hire or on shares, to do so.

The fuelwood survey showed that the state has at least 535 dealers who can handle fuelwood and get it to consumers once it has been cut.

The marking on trees to be cut for fuelwood will show up for several years, so that farmers can follow a woodlot improvement plan even if cutting is not done this year, adds Prof. Cope. As each forester completes his cruise through a farmer's woodlot, he will make a written report, outlining the work he has done, and a plan for improving the growth of timber trees.

Barflies Borrowed the Glasses

Norwich, Eng. (AP)—An innkeeper in this Norfolk town decided to change one shilling for each glass taken outside the bar, and money refunded when the glass returned. At the end of two weeks, he found he had four more than he started with.

Fat Salvage Drive Progressing in Ulster

An outstanding job of fat salvage is being done by the homemakers of Ulster county.

The drive began on October first with the cooperation of the Home Bureau foods leaders and the meat dealers. The county chairman, Mrs. Auley C. Roosa has explained by radio and the printed page the urgent need for conservation of fats—all surplus kitchen fats, meat scraps, meat drippings and oils.

Adequate supplies of fats for home use cannot be obtained because the war has cut off the source of supply. Therefore, the homemakers know it is a vital necessity that not one bit of fat be wasted or thrown away. An appeal is made that surplus kitchen fats be used in every way possible at home in cooking, and informative articles have been reprinted in the newspapers emphasizing the necessity for conserving fats. The urgency and seriousness of the fat shortage has been brought home to us time and again.

Are you doing your part? Are you making every possible use of surplus fats? Are you taking the fats that you can not possibly use at home to your meat dealer to help in the war effort?

If each member saved 17 pounds of fat annually the amount which it is estimated is thrown out of the average American kitchen every year, two million house wives would contribute 34 million pounds in the next 12 months.

So homemakers won't you be a leader in educating your community to the importance of saving waste fats?

Ocean Eye Of Africa

(Wide World Features)

Dakar, Vichy-controlled capital of French West Africa on which world attention is focussing, is a modern city with beautiful parks, buildings and streets and a population of 120,000—one sixth of them whites.

Established in 1857 by the French at the tip of the African Atlantic Coast, Dakar serves as Africa's eye upon sea trade from Western Europe, South Africa and South America. It is only 1,800 miles from Brazil. Its present importance dates from 1898 when it was developed as a military port. Today several miles of docks and modern installations permit handling of all kinds of merchandise and safe anchorage for the largest ships. Imports and exports normally total 1,280,000 tons a year. Peanuts are the main cash crop of nearby Senegal.

Dakar connects by rail to St. Louis, at the mouth of the Senegal River, and to Bamako on the Nigeria's headwaters. A road is also believed under construction to link Bamako with Morocco in North Africa.

War has curbed continental living of Dakar's officer and of official class. Sugar and wine are rationed, half-pound a week per person is the limit on bread. Gas restrictions make charcoal-burning autos common.

Unlike many other tropical cities, Dakar has plenty of good water, is fairly healthful.

HERE ARE THE ABC's OF COAL CONSERVATION

Every patriotic citizen is now saving in some way to help win the war. You can help by firing your heating plant more efficiently. Modern firing methods save a lot of coal—coal which is vitally needed to heat a great many more homes this winter due to shortages of other fuels. You'll find it easy and patriotic to conserve coal—and profitable, too.

READ THESE 12 WAYS TO SAVE COAL

(A) You can reduce heat losses by the application of insulation, weather stripping and the closing of all unnecessary openings.

(B) Clean and inspect your heating plant to determine if repairs are necessary. Very little effort or mechanical skill is required to make simple heater corrections.

(C) Be sure you're using the correct size of coal for your particular heating plant. Each size of coal has its particular uses.

(D) Maintain a deep fire bed. This results in a steady, even room temperature and a longer lasting fire.

(E) Refuel your heating plant, using the "Red Spot" method. Simply pull the live coals forward to the bottom edge of the feed door and add the fresh coal to the rear, leaving a "red spot" of live coals just inside the feed door. These live coals ignite the gases, and thus utilize all the useful heat contained in the coal.

(F) Use care in adjustment of dampers. Accurate damper regulation will eliminate overheating and underheating, conserve fuel and increase home comfort.

(G) Shake grates gently. This removes the possibility of unburned coal dropping into the ash pit. Shake only when necessary to make room for additional coal. Except in severe weather, it should be unnecessary to shake grates more than once or twice a day.

(H) Keep the slide in the feed door slightly open at all times. This permits enough air to enter the fire box and mix with the gases to give perfect combustion.

(I) Be sure there is ample water in the humidifier pan of warm air furnaces. The proper degree of humidity is an aid to healthful home heating and less heat will be necessary for cozy comfort.

(J) Cover the boiler and pipes if they're not already suitably insulated. Insulation prevents the loss of heat that is being transported from the boiler to the radiators or registers in those rooms where it is being used.

(K) If yours is a hot water system, use the radiator key to release pent-up air in the radiators. This air may be preventing the free circulation of the hot water through the radiators, thus reducing their heat output and wasting coal.

(L) Burn Quality D&H Anthracite for convenient, dependable and economical home heating. It is pure, accurately-sized and scientifically prepared, your assurance of dependable comfort at all times.

YOUR DUTY TO VOTE

The people who have the right to vote—ought to vote. The only safeguard against minority control of government is majority participation in elections by the people. Minorities thrive when the people are careless.

The American theory of government is government based on the will of the majority. Every qualified voter should make it his personal business to take an active part in determining the candidates of his party. In no other way can the results express the wishes of the people, as they are supposed to do. The right of voting is one of the great privileges of American citizenship.

This country is builded on the two-party theory of government. Without it we would have totalitarianism in America just as they have it in many countries elsewhere. The two-party system must be maintained and this can only be done through elections held at legally stated intervals with the voters taking active part.

It is the duty of every American on Election Day to get out and vote. The election concerns every citizen.

NEW TAX LAW

On the basis of Treasury Department estimates 9,490 residents of Kingston will file federal income tax returns next March—apart from those who have to pay the Victory Tax—when the government collects on the largest levy in American history. This number represents approximately thirteen returns for every ten filed locally last March and forty-five for every ten filed in 1940. More will be brought into the family of taxpayers in 1944, when further lowering of the exemptions is expected to boost the number of returns 45 per cent.

Not all of the 9,490 who will file returns in Kingston will be required to make payments, however. The estimate is that 77.5 per cent of them will be liable for taxes and that they will add $1,620,000 to the national coffers.

In Ulster county as a whole, returns are expected from 19,150 individuals. They will pay $3,270,000.

The new federal tax law, with state and local taxes, will siphon off about a third of the huge national income. Although it carries rates that amount to virtual confiscation in the upper brackets and will call on middle bracket and low income groups to pay from twice to twenty-two times as much as last year, it is deemed a necessary hardship designed as much to head off inflation as to help pay the war costs now.

USEFUL TOEHOLD

One test of the value of anything is, how much it is wanted by others. Judged by this test, the American toehold in the Solomons is well worth having. If the Japanese did not think so, they would not be making drive after drive to expel our troops.

We want the Solomons as a stepping-stone toward Japan. Even apart from this, our seizure of territory there has proved well worth while because of the losses it has compelled the Japanese to incur. They may eventually drive us out, but in doing so they will have lost planes and ships they cannot easily spare and will have weakened their power to threaten Russia or advance toward Australia.

The Solomons have proved a magnet to draw Japanese craft on air and sea to their doom.

WOMEN CABBIES

Women, taking over many kinds of civilian work as men are absorbed by factories and drained into military service, finally get around to driving taxicabs. In city after city they are moving into this unusual employment. And some people are worried, regarding this particularly as men's work.

There are unpleasant things about it, to be sure. But it has been done in other countries as shortages in man-power developed. Women have driven army busses, too, in Canada and elsewhere. And there seems to be no logical reason why it shouldn't be done in this country, under proper regulations.

Current restrictions forbid such employment after 10:30 p. m., place a 48-hour limit on the working week, and insist on proper provision for the women drivers at taxicab garages. With such legal protection, women with enough self-confidence to take up this virile employment can probably take care of themselves. There is something about essential war-time jobs that lifts common occupations above ordinary levels.

"The fiery trial through which we are passing will light us down in honor or dishonor to the latest generation. We shall nobly save, or meanly lose the last, best hope of earth," said Abraham Lincoln. We did not lose it then, nor shall we now.

Chile's heart is in the right place; she merely got into bad company with her Argentine neighbors across the divide.

Sure, this is the scrappiest nation on earth. If you don't believe it, ask the collectors.

LIVER, GALL BLADDER AND MIGRAINE

Many years ago when physicians were blaming golden-rod for hay fever, I heard of a nurse who was treating hay fever patients by the use of Epsom salts. The hay fever was not cured but it was in a milder form than during any previous years. As I am a strong believer that many ailments are caused by a sluggish liver and gall bladder, I felt that the Epsom salts by stimulating liver and gall bladder activity, poisons and wastes could be better filtered from the blood. One of the most important jobs done by the liver is this filtering process.

From time to time I have stated that while I had insufficient proof, I have considered sluggish liver and gall bladder as a factor in causing migraine symptoms. When a number of cases of migraine were shown to be due to allergy or sensitiveness to foods I felt that my liver and gall bladder theory (which, of course, was shared by a great many other physicians), was wrong.

However, as far back as 1927, Dr. J. S. Diamond, in The American Journal of Medical Sciences pointed out that he found 32 of 35 cases of migraine had liver and gall bladder disturbance. Since that time other research workers have found that liver and gall bladder disturbance was present in from 50 to as high as 90 per cent of their migraine patients.

More recently I have written about the use of ox gall (fel bovis, bile salts) as giving relief in many cases of migraine.

This does not mean that migraine is caused by the liver and gall bladder disturbances but the thought is that whatever causes migraine—fatigue, emotional disturbances, allergy to various substances—interferes with the liver and gall bladder, or the fact that the liver and gall bladder is already disturbed prevents them from handling the disturber or disturbing substances properly.

In the meantime patients with migraine would do well to avoid exhaustion (mental and physical) and keep liver and gall bladder in good working condition by avoiding large meals, especially much fat food at one time.

If they have a sit down job, they should do three or four minutes bending exercise (knees straight) daily. For those unable to take bending exercises a few deep breaths two or three times daily will squeeze the liver and prevent sluggishness.

Diet In Liver and Gall Bladder Disturbance

Many persons have been helped by following a few simple diet suggestions in liver and gall bladder disturbance. Just send five cents (coin preferably) to Dr. Barton, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., and ask for your copy of 'Diet Suggestions in Liver and Gall Bladder Disturbance,' mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman.

BELIEVED LABOR LEADER

Stockholm (AP)—More than a million members are enrolled in the Swedish Federation of Labor. The 8,000 trade unions in Sweden now have as members 23 per cent of the nation's population between the ages of 15 and 65 years, this percentage being the world's highest, it is believed. Practically all of the wage-earners in industry and transportation have been absorbed into unions, and if the farm laborers and forest workers become affiliated, a maximum membership of 1,200,000 is foreseen.

Stamps IN THE NEWS

By the AP Feature Service

An attractive set of four stamps, illustrations for which already have been received in this country, will be issued by Switzerland (Helvetia) on Dec. 1, each having a regular postal value with a surcharge for the benefit of child welfare.

Two of the stamps bear portraits. They are the green five centimes, picturing Niklous Riggenbach (1817-1899), and the blue 30 centimes, portraying Konrad Escher von der Linth (1767-1823). The usual presumption is that the men were identified with early child welfare movements. The other two stamps are 10 centimes brown and 20 centimes orange, each having sketches of a Swiss girl. The von der Linth stamp has a surcharge of 10 centimes, the others five.

These stamps will remain valid for use until May 31 1943.

Photographic copies of another pending set, of Chilean commemoratives, also have been received by J. & H. Stolow, New York dealers, but actual stamps have not yet arrived. There are six values in this set, recalling the 100th anniversary of the founding of the University of Chile.

Reproduction probably will await arrival of originals, copies being fogged, but the values and prominent Chileans or scenes are these: 30 cent red, head of Letelier; 40 cent green, head of Bello; 90 cent violet, head of Bielnes; 1 peso yellow-brown, University building; 1 peso-80 cent light blue, head of Montt, and 1 peso airmail, a coat of arms, presumably the University's.

Costa Rica is coming out with four five-cent victory stamps, having an overprint reading "Victoria." They will be in orange, blue, violet and green. The Bahamas have a new set which carries an overcharge commemorating Columbus' landfall, but these, too, are without description here. Presumably all the designs will be originals.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Two of the leading lawyers in Kingston for many years were Judge John G. Van Etten, prominent Democrat, and Judge A. T. Clearwater, equally prominent Republican, and is interesting to recall that on September 10, 1927, Judge Clearwater was celebrating his 79th birthday, and two days later, on September 12, Judge Van Etten died in his home on West Chestnut street, aged 64 years.

Judge Van Etten for years was active in the ranks of the Ulster county Democratic party, and served as county judge from 1898-1904. He was a member of the city's first zoning board of appeals, and at the time of his death was serving as a member of the education board.

Judge Van Etten was widely known as a vocalist and took part in many amateur shows in the city in his younger days. He was also interested in military affairs and had served as a captain in the old Fourteenth Separate Co of this city.

During the first World War in 1918 he served as fuel administrator of Ulster county.

Judge Clearwater was the city's first official historian, a position he held until his death, and was widely known not only in Kingston but throughout the state.

Alderman William H. Connelly, who was a well known eye, ear and nose specialist, on September 4, 1917, was named as alderman-at-large to succeed Walter P. Crane who had resigned to be appointed a member of the education board by Mayor Palmer Canfield.

Dr. Connelly for years was active in Republican politics in the city, and had served as a member of the police board for some years.

I recall that on September 8, 1917, Joseph D. Turner was appointed deputy city clerk by Mayor Canfield to succeed Harold A. Styles, who had resigned to become stenographer of the surrogate's court. Mr. Turner served as deputy city clerk for several years, and was one of the most efficient men ever to hold that position.

It was on September 26, 1917, that Mrs. Sol Appel, whose husband had presented to the city the two cannon that stand on the lawn of the city hall, retired from business, closing her retail shoe store on lower Broadway, after conducting the business for 20 years.

The cannon and the cannon balls are now headed for Uncle Sam's scrap pile.

Mrs. Appel still makes her home on Abeel street, near the entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge, where she has resided for many years.

The 1940 census listed 125,000 Japanese in the United States. California had more than 90,000.

Effect of Counter Offensive in Southwest Pacific Is Big Thing, Not Number of Ships Lost

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 29—These are days when faith in the high command is more than ever necessary. The events of the last few weeks in the naval actions in the Pacific have gone against us not because our men have not fought bravely or because they have been unwilling to take the risks but because the whole strategy of the present effort to make the Solomons secure inevitably involves big losses.

The test of victory is not the number of ships lost but the effect of our whole counter offensive in the southwest Pacific. It is true that our forces have been compelled to take the defensive as the Japanese have counter attacked. But that counter attack was expected and the dangers in it have been fully realized from the start.

In fact, Japan could not allow the United States to take the Solomons without herself risking enormous forces to dislodge us. Defeat for the Japanese meant a terrible loss of prestige at home. But defeat for the American Navy is but one of a number of setbacks which are part of the long uphill struggle against forces superior in number and possessing an advantage in interior lines of communication short in length and quickly supplied from near-by bases.

Our high command knew that Japan had to turn out a big force to endeavor to retake the Solomons. Inferior as yet in numbers, our fleet could not risk a major battle in the areas near to Japan's bases. Our tactics have been to draw the Japanese fleet divisions toward the south where, with the aid of land-based planes, we could attempt attrition, picking off the Japanese naval units and planes.

Japan cannot replace lost ships as fast as we can. Japan cannot continue to supply her big armies in China and protect her transports against our growing number of submarines if she has to expend a good deal of her fleet in southwest Pacific actions. Japan cannot attack Siberia if she is absorbed in a naval combat with the United States. This Premier Stalin already knows and it means he need not keep such a big Siberian army intact and send enormous amounts of supplies over the Transsiberian railroad that he really needs on the European front.

The overall strategy of the United States is succeeding. We are, to be sure, paying a high price. Offensives come high. Those who have been clamoring for a second front in Europe on the coast of France have a taste today of what it means to take the offensive and suffer heavy losses. This is no time to say our high command should not have attempted a counter offensive unless better prepared. We had to go forward or suffer an attack on our big supply lines to Australia.

Many of the breaks have gone against us. Some of these cannot be disclosed. Down in Australia they must realize, for instance, that we are sorry they did not have a bigger fleet to help us in the Solomons and we on our part are regretful that everything has not been coordinated as it might have been as between ourselves and some of our allies.

The American people will take the good with the bad, the bitter with the sweet. Our naval officers are doing a tremendous job against odds not of their own creation. The Japanese transport their fuel and supplies a few hundred miles. We must bring our octane gas and our oil for surface ships 7,000 miles to the battle area.

The Navy isn't complaining about the fate that has forced it to fight a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy. The Navy has lost some valuable ships. Post-mortems, some day when all the facts are available, will tell the whole story but defeat against an enemy superior in numbers and with advantages of air and sea bases is not something to blame on our own command. It is something to be swallowed grimly, knowing our men have done the best they can with the weapons available and knowing, too, that defeat can only tighten the resolution of our forces to persevere as more ships and more men and more supplies come up for the struggle that can never end till the whole Japanese navy has been annihilated.

"RETROSPECT OF WESTERN TRAVEL," by Harriet Martineau

As one feature of Harper's 125th anniversary celebration, that old firm is reissuing Harriet Martineau's "Restrospect of Western Travel." It is a thoughtful and an amusing gesture, and because the new edition was photographed from the original, it has a good deal of its flavor.

Harriet visited the United States in 1834, you may remember. She was a jolly soul, very much a lady but also very much what we might call today a good egg. On her way over (she was 42 days at sea) she began her literary labors. She took her writing materials up to the main deck, and worked on an article she had promised a British editor. She had trouble, too—a man was so fascinated by the processes of composition that he stood directly in front of her for days, watching her pen and driving her half out of her mind. At last, Harriet remarks, someone spoke to the man and she finished her article in peace. You will observe that she was far too much a lady to speak herself.

In any case, Harriet toured these shores, and met everybody from Madison and his wife down to public house keepers. She was as accurate an observer as you could ask, and she made notes. Then she returned to England and produced a book called "Society in America." It was rather a serious book but it did well enough that something else was indicated. This was the "Retrospect of Western Travel," and it reached the American public in 1838, four years after the journey it described.

The reason Harriet's "Western Travel" has so long survived is a perfectly simple reason. It is that Harriet was a good reporter, and being one, knew that what brought a country to life was not labored descriptions of its social organization, but items about the food, the conversation, the clothes and such like. In other words, human interest stuff. Most likely there will be no fresher, nor more useful publication this fall. Harriet is fun.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Oct. 27—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf spent last week with relatives in Boston and Pittsfield, Mass.

Wilbur Elmendorf and Charles DuBois of Kingston were here Thursday on a squirrel hunting trip.

Dwight M. Warren, who died October 18 at Hartford, Conn., was once principal of the Brookside school here.

Paul C. James, village center resident, was the man who first came to the rescue of a motorist involved in an accident at Dunnagan's curve last week. Mr. James, who was working near by, extricated the driver from his car several minutes before the arrival of a passing motorist, who was credited with the rescue in a newspaper account of the accident.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The try-out period of women in uniform in the U. S. armed forces is over. The ladies have made good.

It hasn't been announced yet but a big expansion of the uniformed and other forces is in the immediate offing. The WAACs and WAVEs soon will be shooting at a total enrollment of 150,000 members each. Present laws place limitations on the numbers in both of these services but, according to rumor, that limitation soon will be removed. Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, who introduced the original WAACs bill, has another coming up which would make the WAACs an integral part of the army instead of a mere auxiliary.

Another Fort Des Moines (WAAC training center) may rise soon at Daytona Beach, Fla. The previously announced second training school for WAVEs at Mount Holyoke College, Mass., probably is the forerunner of additional centers in Iowa and Georgia.

The bill establishing the "Spars" (Women's Auxiliary of the Coast Guard) already has cleared the House of Representatives. The WAFs, under the direction of Nancy Harkness Love, is a small force but growing fast. Those women in the auxiliary flying service will never catch up numerically with the WAACs and WAVEs, but proportionately they have a vital spot in the military scheme of things.

There's a great deal of mystery surrounding Jacqueline Cochran's army training school for women pilots, but it is known that she is drawing heavily on the ranks of 3,400 women pilots in the country and training others, without previous experience, to produce a corps of women flyers capable of piloting anything from an airborne "jeep" to a transoceanic clipper.

The greatest strides so far have been made by the WAACs. In one small office here, 18 WAACs have taken over work previously done by soldiers capable of serving in the front lines. These aren't mere stenographic and clerical jobs ordinarily handled by civil service workers.

The army has made no announcement at this writing as to whether WAACs are serving overseas, but there are rumors that the uniforms are not uncommon in England.

The navy has been rather reluctant to hand its work over to the WAVES. WAVEs assigned to jobs in Washington are still "shadows" of the naval officers they are supposed to supersede.

When our armed forces reach that prospective level of seven or eight million men, the women in uniform may total 10 per cent of that.

War Physical Fitness Training Program Stressed

Albany, N. Y.—"Physical preparation like that of the Japanese and the Germans cannot be achieved in the classroom through discussion," said Dr. Hiram A. Jones, Director of the Office of Physical Fitness, New York State War Council and Director of the Division of Health and Physical Education, State Education Department, speaking before a record audience of over 2,000 outstanding public school educators at the Tenth Annual Meeting of the New York State School Boards Association, Inc., at the Hotel Syracuse, Syracuse, N. Y.

Stressing the need for a concerted war physical fitness training program and the part that trustees and boards of education play in insuring healthy bodies not only among school children, but also among out-of-school youth and adult war workers, Dr. Jones said, "The health program to date has been largely confined to an examination of individual pupils, often superficial, and in most cases without any follow-up of adequate corrective."

Dr. Jones pointed out the need for an organized dental hygiene program, a parents' health education program to insure that parents recognize the significance of defects in their children as well as the need for securing prompt attention to these defects, and the importance of providing treatment for those unable financially to do so.

He stressed the importance of maintaining a high degree of physical perfection among the young people comparable to that striven for in Germany and Japan today. Good fighters must be well, physically as well as mentally and must be able to coordinate their muscular activities as well as their mental processes.

"Physical training is not an extra-curricular program," said Dr. Jones. "It is basic in the preparation of every child. Present regulations call for an average of one hour a day of required physical training instruction and practice."

He instructed the trustees and boards of education to see to it that the staff employed by each school carry out the six-point program which highlighted the meeting.

The six-point program, outlined by Dr. Jones to the trustees and boards of education is:

Conduct the physical fitness program in your school according to the rules set forth in the official publications of the Office of Physical Fitness.

Utilize all facilities at your command to give the best physical preparation to fight.

Allocate sufficient funds to carry on this work.

Publicize your programs so that out-of-school youth and adults engaged in War Work may also participate.

Give adequate health examinations and follow-up services.

Be practical in your work and think of the needs of those under your care.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

West Coast Notice Of Politics Gives Way to War Effort

CaliforniaGainsPopulation but Loses Voters; Oregon Also Has Drop in Registration

San Francisco, Oct. 29 (AP)—The west coast, teeming with war efforts, has allowed its interest in next Tuesday's election to sag to an unprecedented extent.

This disinterest has complicated the jobs of political seers, particularly regarding the gubernatorial race between Gov. Culbert L. Olson, Democrat, of California, and his Republican opponent, Attorney General Earl Warren.

Under the stress of war, California has gained about 1,000,000 population but has lost 231,619 voters since 1940.

This indicates that not only the great majority of migratory industrial workers now crowding its cities have failed to qualify as voters but also that many already established citizens have no intense feelings about the outcome.

There are nearly 1,000,000 more registered Democrats than Republicans in the state, yet Olson was closely pressed within his own party by Warren at the primary election.

Under a law permitting candidates to file on other party tickets as well as their own, Warren sought both the Democratic and Republican nominations for governor. He ran away with the Republican honors and came within 110,000 of beating Olson on the Democratic ballot.

Some anti-Olson Democratic groups have swung to Warren, who has stressed promises of a nonpartisan wartime administration. He has accused Olson of bungling civilian defense in the face of California's exposure to war peril.

Olson asserts Warren has attempted to conceal a conservative Republican past under the cloak of nonpartisanship and has accused the Republican nominee of obstructing his efforts to put a civilian defense program through the state legislature. The lawmakers refused to accept the Olson defense program without reservations as to how appropriations were to be spent.

"Hot Cargo" Outlawed

Complicating this contest also is a referendum measure on a legislative enactment outlawing "hot cargo" and the secondary boycott in labor disputes. The legislature passed it over Olson's veto. Labor groups have campaigned actively for its repeal. Warren has taken no stand for or against it.

"Hot cargo" is the product of a struck plant which other unions not directly involved in the strike refuse to handle. The "secondary boycott" has been invoked by labor unions against a concern which, while not struck itself, sells goods from a struck plant.

Another factor is the tradition against second terms for California governors. None has been reelected since Hiram Johnson in 1914.

Still another thing that has lessened interest is the virtual reelection of 12 congressmen at the primaries. They won both major party nominations and have no formal opposition on the November 3 ballot.

In the 16th District, however, Army Lieutenant Will Rogers, Democrat and son of the late humorist, has been waging an absentee battle to displace Representative Leland M. Ford, Republican. Rogers, who is stationed in Texas, has the support of Olson Democrats.

Three new districts, acquired in the 1940 reapportionment, will elect representatives and give the state a total of 23 seats in the House.

Oregon, whose population has been swollen by a great influx of workers into the Portland area, also experienced a drop in registration, indicating a lack of interest even though the state's two Republican representatives, Homer Angell and James W. Mott, have been accused by their opponents of not cooperating enthusiastically in the war effort.

Oregon now will have four representatives instead of three.

Washington State, another area of war production, reported a drop in registration and little interest in the contests for its six congressional seats. In one of these, however, Representative Warren Magnuson, Democrat, publicly hinted that the Republican administration of Governor Arthur B. Langlie was attempting to involve him in "devious and ominous association" with racing interests. Langlie, who is not up for re-election, said investigators were holding certain checks paid to Magnuson but would give out no information about them for the present.

The Old Age Pension Union in Washington is backing an initiative measure to liberalize the state pension provisions.

Utah has been stirred by hot campaigning on a proposal to impose special taxes on chain stores. Reed E. Vetterli, Republican and former F.B.I. agent, is running for a congressional seat against Representative J. Will Robinson, Democrat.

Arizona, which is about six to one Democratic by registration, has gained one congressman as the result of reapportionment and now will elect two at large.

It is estimated that 20,000 persons die in India each year of cobra bites.

America's Inflation Fighters

Members of the Economic Stabilization Board who will act to control living costs

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Wide World Features Writer

Washington—Two Republican business leaders, the heads of two large farmer organizations, the chieftains of the two big labor federations and eight high-ranking government officials will help Economic Czar James F. Byrnes control living costs.

Members of the Economic Stabilization Board, they advise Byrnes on measures to regulate civilian purchasing power, prices, rents, wages, profits and rationing in order to prevent dangerous inflation.

Economic Director Byrnes, recently justice of the United States Supreme Court and formerly senator from South Carolina, is one of the capital's ablest troubleshooters. Keen, experienced and tactful, he was rated the administration's most effective handler of legislation in the senate.

Business Representatives

Business representatives on the board are Eric A. Johnston, 45, progressive - minded president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Ralph E. Flanders, 62, mechanical engineer-executive of Vermont.

Johnston, who heads ceramic and electric plants in Spokane, Wash., has worked with government officials on war production problems. He advocates labor-management committees to settle disputes.

Flanders, head of a machine company in Springfield, Vt., was adminstrator of machine tool priorities in the OPM. He is an authority on economic and technical problems.

Familiar also with business management problems is Board Member Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce. The big Texan has loaned millions of the government's dollars to thousands of citizens.

Two Farm Spokesmen

Farm representatives are Edward A. O'Neal, 66-year-old Alabaman who is president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and James G. Patton of Colorado, 39-year-old head of the National Farmers' Union.

O'Neal has powerful influence with the farm bloc in congress. He advocated higher prices for farm products against the opposition of President Roosevelt.

Young Patton's organization is composed chiefly of farm tenants and small farm operators. Frequently on the other side of the fence from O'Neal, he has supported the adminstration in parity revision and other farm controversies.

Organized labor representatives are William Green, veteran president of the American Federation of Labor, and Phillip Murray, head of the C.I.O.

Murray and Green, both former miners, have cooperated with the adminstration on most questions. Green has pledged A.F. of L. backing of the stabilization program. Murray withheld comment on wage and price control pending developments.

Miss Perkins On Board

Concerned also with economic measures affecting labor is Miss Frances Perkins, serving her third term as secretary of labor.

Three board members are especially interested in seeing that the program keeps the nation's finances from getting too far off keel. They are Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Director of the Budget Harold Smith and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Marriner S. Eccles.

Leon Henderson head of OPA will supervise putting ceilings on prices and rents and Donald M. Nelson will have his say as to the effect of economic stabilization measures on the war production effort.

New Form of Sulfanilamide Spray For Colds, Burns Shown to Association

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

St. Louis, Oct. 29—A new form of sulfanilamide spray, to be used for common colds and burns, was shown to the American Public Health Association today.

The spray has been under trial at several scientific institutions for colds and sore throats. No reports have been published, but the verbal reports have been favorable. The spray is not used for sinus troubles.

The base of the spray is sulfadiazine, a new compound which is the least harmful to human beings of any of the sulfanilamide preparations.

Sulfadiazine is on par with sulfathiazole in the variety of diseases it helps. The spray is made by a very small percentage of diazine dissolved in water with triethanolamine.

Girls may not know it, but they are familiar with triethanolamine. It's a mild chemical used in cosmetics. It is added as a solvent because the sulfadiazine will not dissolve in water.

This same spray, used on burns, relieves pain quickly. It forms a thin film under which the sulfadiazine keeps infection to a minimum. As one result of keeping down infection, scars after healing are not likely to be as heavy or as stiff as with most other treatments.

Doctors William Milton Adams and Jack K. Crawford of the Department of Plastic Surgery at the University of Tennessee, in a report in the Southern Surgeon, state that although sulfadiazine is no panacea, in 50 cases of burns they found it had definite advantages over other treatments which rely on closing an area under a protective coating.

They used both the spray and ointments and wet dressings of sulfadiazine.

They plan more experiments, and will be watching especially for the toxic effects whose occasional appearance has been one of the handicaps of all sulfanilamide drugs.

The U. S. Army is busy building a backlog of orders for sulfadiazine, sulfathiazole and other sulpha drugs, both for use on wounds and for infectious diseases. For sprinkling on wounds, plain sulfanilamide usually is preferred to other forms.

4-H Club Members Grow More Foods

Ithaca, N. Y. — New York state 4-H Club members, 35,000 strong, have lived up to their spring promises to help produce and preserve more food in 1942.

Enrolled in a 4-H mobilization week pledge last spring, boys and girls joined the 4-H Clubs with a purpose in mind, says Albert Hoefer of the 4-H office at the New York State College of Agriculture. First sample of their sincerity was the increase of enrollment, eleven per cent greater than in any previous year, to set a new total of 17,004 boys and 18,465 girls engaged in productive rural work.

To increase production of food for home use, this year more than 3,300 4-H members increased the number of birds in their poultry flocks by more than 71,000. The 800 and more boys and girls who grew pigs raised 1,229 more of the meat animals than did 4-H Club members last year. The dairy herds of over 3,000 members swelled to a total of 2,800 more animals than in 1941. More than 13,500 4-H gardeners have garnered their crops of fruits and vegetables this year from more land than ever before.

Much of the food is eaten as it is produced, but the 4-H members have stowed away for winter more than 213,600 quarts of canned foods, 32,300 pounds of dried foods, 20,800 pounds of frozen produce, and more than 187 tons of fresh vegetables and fruits.

Results of the food production drive this year could well be expected to outstrip returns of previous years, as the 4-H garden enrollment of 1942 jumped 85 per cent higher than it was in 1941.

Fill Farm Jobs

Besides their share in food production for home use, many 4-H Club members have kept the home farms producing foods for sale this year. More than 1,900 boys and 300 girls took over field work and chores at home, while their parents worked elsewhere in 1942. Boys and girls alike helped in the farm home also; 500 boys and 2,250 girls reported doing the work of keeping the family comfortable while their mothers were busy at other jobs.

In addition, more than 2,000 boys and 600 girls went to the food production front on other farms, to help fill the thinning ranks of farm labor. About 1,800 girls and 400 boys worked in other homes than their own to keep the farms operating smoothly.

Big Battle in Egyptian Desert Might Become Tank Campaign

Attack Is Hard

Infantry Assault Is Difficult Operation Against Foe

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

London, Oct. 29 — The fiercely contested British offensive in the Egyptian desert has reached the point where one would expect it to develop into a battle of tanks. For the outcome of the conflict is likely to turn on these steel monsters.

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's tactics against the Axis indicate that this is exactly the position which he is trying to bring about. The wedges which he has driven into Field Marshal Rommel's strongly fortified line are calculated to maneuver the German into flinging his panzer forces into the melee to prevent a complete break-through.

The development would bring Axis tanks up against destructive British artillery and anti-tank gun fire.

Actually this is what happened Tuesday, but Rommel withdrew his armored units after they had suffered considerable losses.

Thus far the British Eighth Army has been up against the necessity of cracking Rommel's line with frontal assault by infantry, airplane and artillery. It would be courting disaster for the British tank corps to send them against such fortified positions at the outset.

Such frontal attack is one of the most difficult operations in war.

It also is likely to be one of the bloodiest and I believe we must be prepared to learn that the present offensive has been no exception to the rule. The attacking forces indeed would be fortunate if casualties were moderate.

The Allied road to victory through the Axis fortified positions and minefields is a tough one. The fact that the advance has been slow does not necessarily mean that it has not been successful. Certainly, it has been moving forward steadily through traps which the wily Rommel has laid among the ridges and dunes of this desolate region.

Laid Out In Stages

In trying to gauge the progress of such an offensive it must be borne in mind that the drive is laid out in stages and worked on a railway schedule.

There are many times when one part of the attacking force could surge forward, but must be held back because another has been stalled.

For one section to race ahead while a neighboring section remained behind would break the line and lay it open to flank attacks by the enemy.

Of course any plan is alterable, even in the heat of the conflict, if an emergency arises.

Rommel has achieved much of his success in past engagements by taking advantage of unusual situations. However, the first stages of an offensive like the present against fortified positions are likely to be a job of slow, hard slogging.

General Montgomery's ultimate aim is to maneuver the enemy into such a position that he can make a flank attack. Both of Rommel's flanks are protected—the northern by the Mediterranean and the southern by the great Qattara Depression.

Thus Montgomery is endeavoring to widen the wedges which he already has driven in the enemy line, first to draw out Rommel's tanks where they can be blasted with artillery and then to send British tank units swirling through gaps in the Axis defenses.

If and when we reach the point where British armored units are able to execute a flank movement we shall get what is likely to be one of the biggest tank battles of the war. Rommel's greatest strength apparently lies in his panzer divisions.

Air Power Inferior

So far as concerns air power, he is much inferior and he also probably has fewer troops by several divisions.

Under the circumstances it seems certain that Hitler will try to send air reinforcements to his desert army. Undoubtedly supplies and troops also are being moved across the Mediterranean both by air transport and by boat.

British and American air forces and the British Navy constantly are destroying Axis transports, but it would be foolish to believe that the Axis isn't getting considerable reinforcement across.

Rommel's lengthy supply communications are a great handicap for him and the Allied air forces are taking full advantage of his crawling transport trains along the military highway which skirts the sea. Montgomery, on the other hand, has the advantage of short lines at present.

This position will alter, however, if the British offensive forces an Axis retreat. Rommel's commu-

Dr. J. A. Kingsbury Talks at Meeting of Public Health Nursing Committees

"Health is the Foundation of the State" was the topic chosen by Dr. John A. Kingsbury at the meeting of the Public Health Nursing Committees held Wednesday at the Stuyvesant Hotel. Dr. Kingsbury, who now lives in Shady has retired from an active life in public health work, having been a member of the committee which planned the original structure on which the state department of health was built. He was the main speaker of the afternoon session and cited examples stressing the need of medical care available to all.

Dr. Kingsbury believes that government regulations and aid for medical service providing health for all should be made similar to the system of public education. One-third of the nation is living in families whose income is up to $1,000 and are unable to afford adequate health attention. Many families who may live in outlying sections are unable to obtain doctors when needed. Dr. Kingsbury does not blame the medical profession for this lack of attention but believes that better organization would solve the problem.

The importance of health is being emphasized today and the speaker spoke of the healthy soldiers necessary to carry on a siege such as Stalingrad in Russia today. He praised the methods that the Soviet Union has used in supervising all departments of health and recreation which he feels is proving its own success in the valiant fighting of the army. He told of the many health centers working in collaboration with hospitals in Denmark and of the improved health departments found in the Scandanavian countries and England.

Public health program has progressed greatly since the Roosevelt administration in the state, he said. President Roosevelt had stated that there was nothing more important to the state than the health of its people and since becoming President has also been interested in the health of the nation and medical care for all. However, Dr. Kingsbury continued, the American Medical Association felt that government regulation of medicine was dangerous.

Dr. Kingsbury encouraged the nursing committees to continue with their work and spoke of the growth and acceptance by the people of campaigns against disease. He commended the work of the women in organizing the committees and told several experiences he had in arranging public health groups.

In closing Dr. Kingsbury stated, "The nations who from now on and after the war give the greatest measure of attention to their recreation, development of cultural and social well being, and health in abundance for all of the people will be the nations that will triumph in the world."

Dr. Edward F. Shea, president of the Ulster County Medical Association, also spoke during the afternoon session. He briefly summarized the health work in the county mentioning the hospitals, facilities, clinics, district state health officer and the county nurses and committees.

He reported on the recruiting of doctors for the armed services and said that there was not a shortage of doctors in Ulster county. Of the 75 members of the society 23 were in service and there were but a few more to go, and those will be from communities that will be covered when they leave.

In speaking of sending the foreign doctors and keeping the home doctors in the communities, Dr. Shea said that the government did not consider aliens from enemy countries as good material for officers in the armed forces. The medical students who are being deferred by the draft boards are finishing their training so that they will be available, and he believes that doctors deferred because of defects should have these rectified as an example to others who are trying to escape the draft.

There is no danger of a shortage of nurses at the present time either, Dr. Shea reported. The total number of nurses from the local hospitals serving with the armed forces is 22 and two are over seas. Many nurses, however, have gone to a metropolis and there are requests for nurses in private homes.

He listed several "don'ts" for the present situation. Among these were suggestions such as don't call the physician unless the patient really needs one, don't expect too much from the doctor or call him at unreasonable hours except in emergency. Dr. Shea is certain that the public health nurses and the committees will be of assistance whenever necessary

National Nursing Council for War Service Program

Thirty-eight young women entered the nursing schools in Kingston during September, but many more will be needed next year, according to local health authorities.

A refresher course last spring brought several retired nurses back to work and others will be needed. Hospitals in Kingston are reported crowded most of the time. These hospitals have contributed from their alumnae members 18 graduates to the nursing service of the nation. Many more are expected to be going in the next few months.

A small class of 12 nursing aides have been doing a fine piece of work, giving nine hours service each week. However, more are needed and a new class is being formed.

A plan under which each community can wisely budget its nursing services, already seriously handicapped by war "priorities" in some places, has been worked out by the National Nursing Council for War Service, according to Miss Emily J. Hicks, R. N., executive secretary of the New York State Nursing Council for War Service.

"This budget plan is of personal concern to every family that may have illness during the war months ahead," said Miss Hicks, at her office in Albany today, "and that could mean any family in our state.

"The nursing profession is urging every town to analyze its own needs and resources and, while filling its military quota, see to it that essential services at home are maintained as well.

"Our armed forces must, of course, have as many nurses as they need. That is a first promise. They are now calling for 3,000 a month. But the home front can be protected, too. This is a war of populations, a total war, and we must see to it that men, women and particularly children have the best possible health care. The nursing resources of the entire nation must be pooled, if need be, to win the war. Certainly we can check on our situation in the state of New York. Our state needs to sign up 4,201 nurses in the First Reserve of the Red Cross, by November 1, and our quota of new students to enroll in schools of nursing this coming school year is 5,610. The place to begin checking our supply of nurses and potential new recruits is in each community in the state, at a conference among city, public health, hospital and nursing leaders."

Many cities have already organized Nursing Councils to work on the problem of supply and distribution of nurses, said Miss Hicks. Nurses who should remain on the "home front," at least for the present, according to the National Nursing Council's plan, which has just reached Miss Hicks, include administrators and supervisors in hospitals; those essential to teaching in hospitals that have schools of nursing; administrators, teachers, and essential supervisors in public health agencies; staff nurses of public health agencies needed to maintain minimum civilian health services in any given community, and industrial nurses.

On the other hand, unmarried graduate nurses under 40 who are in private duty, on a hospital's general staff, in non-nursing or office positions, hospital head nurses not essential to teaching or supervision, or public health nurses whose services can be replaced or spared, should enroll at once in the First Reserve of the American Red Cross, or, if already so enrolled, should apply to the Army or Navy for assignment, said Miss Hicks.

"Yet when they are gone," she declared, "we must see to it that needed work is carried on just the same. Nurses should be urged to give up those positions known as 'luxury' nursing, with wealthy employers who are merely pampering themselves, and do not need the service of a trained nurse. Nurses in non-nursing positions and nurses who have married, or for other reasons have retired, should be urged to come back into the profession."

"The nation has over 100,000 of these 'hidden nurses,' and they are proving an invaluable backlog. I know of one hospital alone where women have left comfortable homes, taken the refresher course, and are doing regular duty again after many years of retirement for some of them. Also of great help in getting the state's nursing job done will be the student nurses, nurses' aides, and paid auxiliary workers.

"We must keep on studying each community's needs, and arrange to shift nurses from place to place if one town is short and another has nurses who can be spared. Geographical barriers must not prevent us from winning the war on the home nursing front."

Georgia Brown Former City Girl, To Christen Ship

That a measure of fame if not fortune has come to a little girl born in Kingston, was revealed today by A. H. Lipgar, local photographer.

Press clippings turned over to the Freeman by Mr. Lipgar carried the picture of 10-year-old Georgia Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Auburn Brown of North Hollywood, Calif., who has been selected by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to christen one of the Navy vessels soon to slide down the ways of a Pacific coast shipyard.

George Auburn Brown will be remembered by many Kingstonians as the man who appeared on the stage of the Broadway Theatre billed as "The Walking Champion of the World." Following his introduction to this region from behind the footlights, Mr. Brown decided to settle here with his wife, the former Gracia Dreaon, a vaudeville headliner. The Browns opened the Orchid Hotel on Broadway, which became a favorite stopping place for vaudeville people. Later, daughter Georgia was born in the Kingston Hospital. The Brown's second daughter, Georgette, also was born in Kingston.

Georgia Brown, a pupil in the fifth grade of the Lankershim Elementary School, North Hollywood, wrote to President Roosevelt two months ago requesting the honor of christening a naval vessel. Recently the little girl received an official communication from Commander C. H. Want, supervisor of shipbuilding U.S.N., which informed Georgia that the nation's Commander-in-Chief had turned her letter over to him for the fulfillment of her wish.

Among her other accomplishments, Georgia Brown has appeared in several motion pictures doing bit parts. When she received her letter concerning the ship christening, she was at the Universal Studios appearing in the film "Nightmare," starring Diana Barrymore and Brian Donlevy.

Joseph Kaley of Milton on Wasp

Marine Corps Private Is Spending Furlough Here

Private Joseph Kaley of Milton, was one of the four Ulster county men who were members of the U. S. N. Carrier Wasp which was torpedoed in the battle off the Solomon Islands and sunk on September 15. The others were Orville Sweet, who is listed as missing in action, and LaVerne Barron, both of Saugerties and Kenneth C. Bouchard of 30 Ponckhockie street, Kingston.

Bouchard, Kaley and Barron are now home on a furlough before reporting for duty next month.

Kaley was a Marine Corps private on the Wasp, and is now spending his furlough with his brother, Francis, and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell, in Milton.

Kaley owes his survival to the fact that he was stationed on gun watch on the stern of the Wasp at the time it was attacked by the Japanese submarine. Torpedoes of the submarine hit the Wasp in the forward parts.

Like others aboard ship, Kaley had on a life jacket which helped him in the water before he was picked up four hours later by a U. S. destroyer.

Kaley plans to return to active duty on November 15, but he will probably go to officers training school after his furlough as he has been recommended for such instruction. He is a graduate of Newburgh Free Academy and of Notre Dame University.

A.F.L. Is Against Wage-Hour Law Being Let Down

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Relaxation of the wage-hour law, even on a voluntary basis as proposed by the bill of Representative Ramspeck (D-Ga.) is opposed by the American Federation of labor.

President William Green, in a letter to Ramspeck, said his proposal to permit a longer work week without overtime pay would not expedite the war effort or increase production but would result only in confusion.

"The probabilities are," Green wrote, "that chaos would be created in that some workers, acting under pressure, would agree to forego their legal right to payment for overtime work while others would refuse to do so. That might mean that some workers in an industry would be working an unlimited amount of time without receiving overtime pay while others working in the same industry would be enjoying all the benefits of the fair labor standards act. Both an unfair competitive condition and a highly unsatisfactory state of affairs would be created."

Green added that such an amendment might open the act to further changes and an eventual breakdown in the 40-hour standard.

Ramspeck, the house Democratic whip, said when he introduced the bill that he was convinced it would alleviate local manpower emergencies and prevent many non-war industries from closing down.

Search Continued For Rickenbacker

Stimson Has Hope He Will Be Found but No Word Received

Washington, Oct. 29 %—Secretary of War Stimson reported today that the War Department was still without word from the search in the Pacific for Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, but said he retained hope nevertheless that the World War flying ace would be rescued.

"I can't help clinging to hope that he will still turn up," Stimson told reporters. "You know he is an exception to cut and dried rules."

The War Secretary noted that when Rickenbacker's plane disappeared south of Hawaii more than a week ago, the World War ace was on his way to make a survey of army forces in the southwest Pacific similar to the study he had just made in Great Britain.

Rickenbacker, Stimson said, "stands high in the list of heroes of the last war and is one of the architects of victory in this."

Three Jersey City Boys Held for Their Parents

Three Jersey City boys, Edmund R. Meliniski, 17, Alexander J. Lynch, 17 and Anthony V. Falago, 19, applied for night lodging at the county jail Tuesday night. The boys said that they had left home and gone to Meacham Lake, near Saranac Lake, in search of work. They had a little money when they started out, but funds were very low when they struck Kingston. Their replies to questions by Night Jailer Ellsworth weren't satisfactory and a teletype message was sent to the Jersey City police.

Nuzzo May Be Named Candidate

Indicted for Larceny He May Run in Local 17

It is expected that Samuel Nuzzo, who was indicted last week on charges of grand larceny and forgery for misappropriating union funds, will be put up as a candidate for business agent of Local 17, of the International Hodcarriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union of America, at a union meeting for nomination of officers in Kingston on Sunday afternoon.

Nuzzo, accused of embezzling approximately $35,000 from the union's coffers, held the office of business agent for five years but was ousted by rank and file members in a spirited court-ordered election last February. The union will elect new officers on Sunday, November 15.

Nuzzo's attorney, Henry Hirschberg, former district attorney of Orange county, who resigned to defend the former labor leader, confirmed reports that Nuzzo's name would be submitted at the nomination meeting. Hirschberg said Nuzzo's supporters have remained loyal to him and that they expect to swing the nomination and election in his favor.

Frederick W. Dusing of Kerhonkson, who defeated Nuzzo in the February election, is expected to be a candidate for reelection, and his faction is prepared to resist efforts to Nuzzo's supporters to nominate the ousted leader.

The November 15 election will be held simultaneously in Newburgh, Middletown, Kingston and Kerhonkson.

Shot, She Drives 20 Miles

Reading, Pa., Oct. 29 (AP)—A bullet in her abdomen, pretty 27-year-old Miss Marie Wike drove 20 miles to a doctor's office last night, and today hospital attendants said she had a 50-50 chance to recover. State Police Private Lester Lucas quoted her as saying her former sweetheart shot her after a quarrel as they rode along a country road in a truck. She stuffed a handkerchief into the wound, she said, and continued with the man accompanying her. "Don't shoot yourself, too," she said she told him, "because I am not going to die." The man was held without charge, Lucas said, "pending the outcome of her injuries."

Hull Trip Is Forecast

London, Oct. 29 (AP)—The Paris radio predicted today that Cordell Hull would be sent to Moscow soon as United States ambassador to Russia and that Sumner Welles would succeed him as Secretary of State. "This change," the broadcast declared, "is a result of Wendell Willkie's recent statement that the United States is not adequately represented in Moscow." (The Paris broadcast apparently was referring to Willkie's radio address from New York Monday night in which he remarked that no man of cabinet rank had been sent to Soviet Russia by this government on a special mission to "talk to Mr. Stalin.")

Inductees to Get 1 Week Furlough

Inactive Status Is Changed as of November 1 by War Department

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Secre- inactive status period granted newly-inducted draftees before they begin military service was ordered cut from two weeks to one week by the War Department today, effective November 1.

"This step is a logical consequence of the recent deferment of agricultural workers, requested as a matter of national necessity by the war manpower commission," Secretary of War Stimson said in a statement.

"These deferments in November make it necessary for us to draw upon the men on inactive status, in order that we may receive the number of men that the army must have. Otherwise the war manpower commission's action would result in serious shortages next month.

"We are faced with a choice between reducing the preliminary furlough period or deviating from the program of full speed ahead in the war effort. I believe that the men concerned will approve of the alternative we chose."

Senator Aiken Charges Misuse of Public Funds

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Senator Aiken (R-Vt) charged today that the Maritime Commission had "rashly dissipated and misused" public funds, and urged a Congressional investigation.

Declaring that some of the commission's transactions "appear to go beyond the realm of dissipation," Aiken said:

"They smell to high heaven of rank and incompetence and collusion with private interests, for which the Maritime Commission and its chairman (Rear Admiral Emory S. Land) should be held accountable."

In a letter to chairman Walsh (D-Mass) of the Senate Naval committee, Aiken said that "from a review of material which has come before me, it appears that:

"As a result of the Maritime Commission's extravagant and incompetent handling of the merchant marine, American taxpayers have been virtually robbed of untold millions."

FOOD

Feed 'Em Up on Furlough

CHICKEN-MUSHROOM POT PIE . . . Like mother makes.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Food Editor

When your soldier boy comes home on furlough this fall or winter, he will be looking for his favorite made-by-mother foods all the way from a snappy soup to a mouth-watering dessert, with some tempting snacks in between meals.

BAKED HAM, glistening with honey and spices offers a fine main dish.

Select a ham weighing from 10 to 12 pounds. Scrub with a brush and place, fat side up, on a rack in an open baking pan. Do not add any water. Bake 30 minutes per pound. A 10 pound ham will need 5 hours in a moderately slow oven (325). Baste several times with drippings.

The ham is done when a fork will easily go through the thickest part. Remove from the oven and lift off the rind and any surplus fat. Mark (score) the ham into diamonds and stud with whole cloves. Cover the ham with this glaze: Boil together 5 minutes, ½ cup boiling water, 2/3 cup honey, ¼ cup red cinnamon candies, ½ teaspoon ground cloves, ½ cup orange juice and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Bake the ham 30 minutes in moderate oven. Baste every 10 minutes with the honey mixture.

Apples are quite abundant and browned sugared slices go well with ham. Core and peel apples. Cut in crossway slices. Brown apples in fat (4 tablespoons fat for 8 slices apples) heated in frying pan. Sprinkle apples with ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon each cloves and nutmeg. Add ½ cup corn syrup, 1/3 cup water and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Cook slowly until well glazed. You can also do pineapple slices and peach and apricot halves the same way.

October Milk Return Forecast at $2.98

That the New York milk pool would post a new record farm milk price for the second month in a row became a foregone conclusion today when Charles J. Blanford, administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, forecast that the uniform price of milk delivered this month would reach $2.98 a hundredweight (46.51 quarts).

The estimate rate of return from October milk is an eight-cent inprovement over the September price of $2.90 which surpassed all previous monthly uniform prices figured according to the terms of the New York federal-state milk marketing orders.

"If our estimate is reasonably accurate," Dr. Blanford reported, "the October pool should yield a farm value in the neighborhood of $14,750,000. The yield is reckoned on the expectation that the pool will contain 465,000,000 pounds of milk.

"Production apparently is still managing to keep ahead of last year despite fewer producers and fewer plants in the pool. Last year, when 58,646 dairy farmers delivered to 482 plants, the October volume of New York-area approved milk weighed 457,902,083 pounds. Probably less than 56,500 dairymen are delivering now, and their milk is being received at 475 plants. The October pool, nevertheless, should outweigh last year's October production by 1.6 per cent.

"The anticipated production is worth $13,857,000 at the estimated uniform rate of $2.98. The farm value of nearly $14,750,000 was calculated by adding in the value of the butterfat and location payments. Those payments were worth $885,000 in October 1941."

Palestine's principal imports now are foodstuffs and manufactures.

MENU

Beef Tongue — Glazed Grapes
Spoon Bread — Potato Chips
Perfection Salad
Hot Chocolate — Wafers

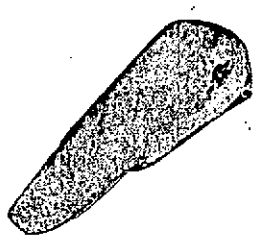

YOUR FOOD—AND NUTRITION

Tongue is not only an economical delicacy but it is rich in food value. It contains the same proportion of high quality protein as any lean meat. It is a good source of iron. It contains the vitamins thiamin and riboflavin.

Protein is a very important part of the diet of adults and children alike. Meat is one of the diet's main sources of protein, and a liberal amount daily is a safeguard against the danger of protein deficiency. The home-maker should widen her cooking repertory to include meat specialties, not only because they are tasty but because of their high food value.

When you are looking for something different as a main dish for any occasion, don't overlook tongue. This is one of the meat specialties frequently listed among the thriftier cuts, yet it is high in nutritive value and good in flavor and is not hard to prepare. Doubtless it is thrifty because so many women don't know how good it can be, and aren't acquainted with the ways of serving it.

Beef tongue is usually chosen for cooking at home, for it is a good size for the average family. Calf tongue is also used. Pork and lamb tongues, which of course are small, are usually sold pickled and ready to serve.

Beef Tongue

Tongue contains little waste. It consists almost entirely of muscle, and is rich in the nutrients which any lean meat provides, high quality protein, minerals, and vitamins. Its flavor is mild and it blends also with other foods. It is a favorite companion for spinach and other leafy vegetables.

Delicious in Sandwiches

Tongue adds flavor to vegetables cooked with it, and on the other hand its own flavor may be enhanced by cooking it in water to which spices have been added. It may be served cold in vinegar, or accompanied by a spicy sauce.

Served hot, a whole tongue is a good main dish for the family meal. It is good, sliced thin in sandwiches. It is an attractive main dish to serve a large group in buffet style. It can be served with a fruit garnish, as a festive touch for a special occasion.

Tongue, like heart, is a part of the animal which has received considerable exercise, and it requires the same cooking method used for heart, slow cooking in moist heat.

To prepare fresh tongue for cooking wash it thoroughly in warm water. Smoked or pickled tongue should be soaked for several hours.

Can Be Served Cold

Though we speak of "boiled" tongue, the water in which tongue is cooked should never actually boil. Cover fresh tongue with salted water (one teaspoon salt for each quart of water). Spices and vegetables may be added for seasoning. Cover the kettle and cook at simmering temperature until the tongue is tender.

After the tongue is tender, remove the skin and cut away the roots. The skin can be loosened more easily if the tongue is plunged into cold water immediately after cooking. It can then be reheated, or it can be served cold.

Tongue may be sliced thin and allowed to stand in vinegar or in vinegar sauce. Here is a tasty vinegar sauce.

Vinaigrette Sauce

6 teaspoons vinegar
2 tablespoons capers or chopped pickles
1 clove garlic
¼ teaspoon sugar
Salt and pepper
8 tablespoons salad oil

Combine vinegar, capers or chopped pickles, a few drops garlic, sugar, salt and pepper. Add the salad oil slowly, blending thoroughly.

Colonial "Boiled" Tongue

1 calf or beef tongue
4 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
Bay leaf
1 tablespoon whole cloves
¾ cup brown sugar
1½ cups canned cherries
½ lemon, sliced

Wash tongue thoroughly and let simmer in water until tender, about two or two and one-half hours. Trim root end and remove all skin. Place in a covered pan. Add salt, cloves, butter, bay leaf, brown sugar, cherries, sliced lemon and 1 cup broth in which the tongue was cooked. Cover and simmer on top of range until thoroughly heated and the sauce is thickened.

Only ersatz coffee made from roasted malt is obtainable in Belgium.

Beef Tongue A Tasty Main Dish

Beef tongue, cooked in water is good served either hot or cold. Sliced cold, with glazed grapes as a garnish, it is the tempting main dish for a buffet service. Southern spoon bread is the hot dish which accompanies it here. Scalloped corn or potatoes or any other hot vegetable in casserole might be served with sliced tongue.

Farm Filtering of Milk Complicated

Geneva, N. Y.—The seemingly simple operation of filtering milk on the farm is more complicated than is apparent on first sight, declares Dr. A. C. Dahlberg, head of the Dairy Division at the State Experiment Station here. "Dairymen have generally found the problem of milk filtering on the farm to be rather confusing due to the large variety of materials available for filter pads and the variation in metal equipment or filters to hold the pads," says this authority.

Requirements for a good milk filter as listed by Dr. Dahlberg include sturdy construction, ease in washing, a type approved by health authorities, and certainty that the filter pad will be held in such a way that all of the milk must pass thru the pad without breaking it. "These points regarding filters seem simple, yet they are difficult to attain completely," he says, adding that, "The filter not only affects the efficiency of the filter pad in removing sediment, but it also affects the total amount of milk that the pad will handle.

Dairymen have a choice between cotton filter pads and filter cloths, depending upon local regulations and personal preferences. In general, cotton pads are the most efficient in removing sediment, but lack the capacity of filter cloths, it is said. It is essential to use the cotton filter pad best suited to the filter; and if there is any doubt, it is recommended that a double-faced cotton pad be used.

The efficiency of the filter and the filter pad is markedly affected by the age and temperature of the milk. Milk that has aged a few hours or that has cooled somewhat will filter slowly. Excessive udder trouble also slows down the filtering operation. Time is required for good filtering, but the filtering must keep ahead of the milker. Replacing the pad is recommended when filtering is too slow. These and other numerous details of filtering milk on the farm are now under study at the Experiment Station.

HANGING DRAWS THRONGS

Prayers, songs and cheers mingled in the morning air as Thomas J. Williams was executed in Belfast, Northern Ireland, for the murder of Constable Patrick Murphy. With police lines guarding a half-mile of street near the prison, throngs gathered outside the cordon as the execution time approached. On one corner a group of women prayed. Opposite them King." Cheers and the singing of "There'll Always Be an England" followed.

Wilderness Survival Course at College

Dean Samuel N. Spring of the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University, announces a new course of lectures and field trips teaching resourcefulness when traveling in rough country, survival in the wilderness and physical fitness. This course is for men students and will begin January 12 under the joint direction of the College of Forestry and the Department of Physical Education of the university.

Experts at the Forestry College believe that the average man entering the armed services is lacking in the knowledge of and the use of many aids that will help him to survive and travel through forested or wild country. Often he has had no training in the use of the axe or other woods tools used in constructing shelters, log bridges and tank traps. "Letters from alumni in the army show the value of mapping and woods skills. The new course will give this instruction to students who may soon be in urgent need of such training," says the dean.

Some of the topics to be covered are:

Winter camping; methods of protection from biting insects and similar pests; precautions when traveling in the tropics, and tropical pests; poisonous animals; animal borne diseases; tracks and trails; how to use United States Geological Survey Topographic maps; stalking, traveling and concealment techniques; reading weather maps and making local forecasts; some common trees useful to men in a forested country; and mechanical properties of wood important in building log structures.

Under the leadership of the forestry faculty and the Department of Physical Education, students will learn to traverse rough country, day or night, find objectives indicated on a map, build fires under adverse conditions, sleep out using a minimum of equipment, use an axe properly, climb trees or scale cliffs with a safety rope, understand the fundamentals of water safety, and other items useful in wild country.

Of the 12,000,000 foreign-born residents of the United States, New York has 3,000,000.

If you're feeling "low," dragged out, not quite up to par, consider this: In these war days your living habits are all upset. Meals especially are likely to be hurried, improperly balanced. And you're apt to forget the importance of adequate "bulk" in your diet.

Yet the lack of this one food essential is one of the common causes of wartime constipation. For this trouble, medicinal laxatives are but temporary remedies; they don't get at the cause.

Railroad Becomes Extinct

Omaha (AP)—For 65 years the Union Pacific railroad bridge over the Missouri river was adorned on the western end by a giant buffalo head to symbolize the west, and on the eastern end by a large bas relief, whose design of a plow, an anchor and steam hammer symbolized eastern industry.

But no more, for the historical pieces, cast in 1887 by Eitenne Favy, of New York city, are to be salvaged for their high copper bronze content. The buffalo head, 7½ feet high, is estimated to contain 2,400 pounds of bronze, the bas relief 1,000 pounds.

Fruit Juices Made By Improved Method

Geneva, N. Y.—Now that frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock, one's thought's turn to apple cider and doughnuts. Only the fruit juice specialists at the State Experiment Station here frown on the term "apple cider" because of the inferior products that masquerade as "cider". It should be "apple juice", they say, and they proceed to describe a method of "flash pasteurization" of apple juice developed in the State labobatories which is said to preserve the flavor and other good qualities of this product so that it closely resembles freshly pressed apple juice.

The essential features of the method include straining the juice carefully, heating it quickly to 170 degrees Fahrenheit, and then putting the hot juice in bottles or cans without further treatment. After standing for a few moments, the containers are quickly cooled. The resulting product possesses much of the flavor and aroma of the freshly pressed juice and will keep indefinitely. Experiment Station Circular No. 181, entitled "The Flash Pasteurization of Apple Juice", gives full directions for carrying out the process and may be obtained upon request to the Station.

Until recently about the only juices which were prepared and preserved in the kitchen were grape juice and tomato juice, say the Station specialists in commenting on recent developments in fruit juice preservation. Now apple, cherry and many other fruit juices are used daily in the home, while marked advances have been made in the preserving of grape juice. The home making of grape juice is described in Station Circular No. 166. The improved methods for processing fruit juices include continuous flash pasteurization with little or no loss of flavor; handling so as to exclude air from the stored juices which formerly caused changes of flavor and deposit of undue amounts of sediment; and perfection of containers, both bottles and cans.

Besides apples and grapes other New York State fruits from which juices are being prepared at the Experiment Station include strawberries, raspberries, pears, plums, peaches, quinces and cherries. Circular No. 180 on cherry juice and Circular No. 194 on other fruit and vegetable juices that may be successfully processed in the home are also available upon request to the Experiment Station.

South Seas Paradise

Papeete, Tahiti (AP)—Tales of the laziest men in the world come from the island of Rapa Iti. Not only do the men folk make women do all the work but also feed them. A traveler reports seeing the males squatting in a circle with open mouths, while the women tossed balls of taro paste and morsels of fish to them.

Munchy costs only half as much to feed as canned dog food. Every lb. (water added) makes 3 lbs. of meat laden, vitamin enriched, dog food. Good for your dog—economical for you.

"Prompt action by operators is essential if they are to obtain their certificates by November 15," Mr. Hayes pointed out. "To keep his equipment rolling, he should contact the District Office, Division of Motor Transport, O.D.T., which is located at Masonic Temple, Brown street, Peekskill.

TIME FOR HITCHING POSTS

Greeley, Colo. (AP) — Farmer Arthur Fugate says it's about time that cities began providing wooden hitching racks for the farmers.

"More and more farmers are going to be hauling into town with team and wagons, from now on," he says. "There are no hitching posts and help is too hard to get to bring along an extra man or boy to hold the horses."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Preserved Treasure

Winchester, Ind. — "What am I bid for these glass jars?" Mayor O. E. Ross was about to ask at an auction sale.

Instead he hesitated for a second look. Could that be money he saw?

Yes, it was $1,880 in bills and quarters and half-dollars.

The auctioneer ordered the jars turned over to the administrator of the estate of Sylvester Pearson, whose effects he had been selling.

Parade Slows Down

Terre Haute, Ind. — Indiana State Teachers College will have its traditional homecoming parade Saturday, but under new rules which will make it considerably different from those of recent years.

None of the floats can be on gasoline-powered vehicles; only horse-drawn or manpower propelled vehicles will be permitted. And a ceiling of $5 has been set on the cost of decorating each float.

Gastronomical Victory

Bainbridge, Ga. — A package labeled "perishable" arrived at the Army flying school here, but the addressee had left the day before for home on furlough.

The boys couldn't sit idly by and see something perishable go to waste, so they sent a collect telegram to his home asking permission to open it.

Three hours later a wire came from his mother, "Frank not yet arrived, eat it if you pay for this."

The big chocolate cake cost a total of 79 cents.

$1 a Vote

Carthage, Mo. — It cost Jasper county $1 a vote to elect a representative for the special session of the state legislature called for November 4—and the candidate was unopposed.

The county spent from $1,200 to $1,500 as W. N. McDonald, Republican, received 307 votes.

There were four write-in votes. One was for a comic strip character.

Homecoming

Los Angeles — It was just like coming home when Leonard T. Row went to jail under a five-day sentence for non-payment of alimony.

For seven years he served as a jailer.

Can't Be Sure of Record 1943 Crops

Ithaca, N. Y. — The year 1942 brings record-breaking crop and livestock production from the nation's farms, but we can not take this production for granted in 1943.

The large supply of food produced this year is due to a combination of unusually good growing weather, large inventories of livestock, and favorable feed prices according to Prof. L. C. Cunningham of the New York State College of Agriculture. Along with this, farmers and their families have put longer, harder hours of work into their plan to produce more food to meet the needs of armed forces, allies, and consumers at home.

We probably can not expect to maintain this peak food production in 1943, he says, because of increasing scarcity of farm labor, shortages of farm machinery, fertilizer, and farm supplies, and because we can not expect another summer with such favorable growing weather as we had in 1942.

The 1942 crop yields per acre of land were extremely high, points out Cunningham, 36 per cent higher than the yields in the pre-drought years of 1923 to 1932. Although the acreage of some crops was restricted this year, total crop production was 11 per cent larger than in 1941, and 28 per cent larger than in the pre-drought years, according to estimates of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The total number of cattle on Farms at the beginning of 1942 was slightly larger than in the previous peak year of 1934. The production of beef and veal in 1942 will be 7 per cent higher than in 1941. Pork production will be 16 per cent greater than it was last year. Egg production is running 16 per cent larger than in 1941.

Total milk production of 120 billion pounds in 1942 will be four per cent above the 1941 figures. It has been made possible by a continued increase in the number of milk cows since the drought years.

Picking Prickly Pears Fun

Lakeside, Calif. (AP) — Protected by heavy gloves and aprons pickers are harvesting the prickly pear crop on the Maniscalco farm here. The fruit grows on giant cacti, and Sam Maniscalco insists that once you learn to peal it without pricking yourself you'll enjoy it.

Mark Fuelwood Trees In Farm Woodlands

Ithaca, N. Y. — Extension Minute Men of New York state have listed 1,200 farms with more than 81,000 acres of woodland that can provide fuelwood to help keep the home fires burning.

Listing of farms with woodland available was the first step in the statewide fuelwood campaign, says J. A. Cope, forester of the New York State College of Agriculture. Next step will be to mark at the farmer's request the trees that are fit only for fuel. Final steps will be the cutting and marketing of the wood in nearby centers of fuel consumption.

County agricultural agents are now assembling lists of farmers who wish to have their woodlands marked for cutting by experienced foresters. First request, from Seneca county, shows that 27 woodlot owners, owning 529 acres of forest, request the fuelwood marking service.

The system of marking assures improvement of the woodland for growing timber trees, as well as provisions of fuelwood, says Cope. Lumber, as well as fuelwood, is an essential commodity in the war.

Forty foresters located in the state will cooperate in the woodland marking service, as the farmers call for it, starting November 1. Foresters of federal, state and county agencies are cooperating; 13 from the State Conservation Department, eight blister rust control agents of the Federal Forest Service, seven from the Soil Conservation Service, five from the Syracuse College of Forestry, four from the U. S. Forest Service, including two farm foresters recently appointed, two extension foresters of Cornell University, one from the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, and one from Erie county.

The timber cruising service will cover every county in the state, with the exception of those in New York city, and Hamilton, which have no farm woodlands. Each forester except the two at Cornell will cover one or two counties at most, to provide prompt service. The Cornell foresters will cover the 12 counties more distant from headquarters of other foresters.

Cutting and marketing of the fuelwood are the problems farmers have not been able to carry out this year, with a shortage of labor for the regular farm food production jobs. Of the 1,200 farmers who reported in the Minute Man survey, only 119 said they had help available for cutting wood a total of 380 workers. In each county the plan will be to encourage all persons who can cut wood for hire or on shares, to do so.

The fuelwood survey showed that the state has at least 535 dealers who can handle fuelwood and get it to consumers once it has been cut.

The marking on trees to be cut for fuelwood will show up for several years, so that farmers can follow a woodlot improvement plan even if cutting is not done this year, adds Prof. Cope. As each forester completes his cruise through a farmer's woodlot, he will make a written report, outlining the work he has done, and a plan for improving the growth of timber trees.

Barflies Borrowed the Glasses

Norwich, Eng. (AP)—An innkeeper in this Norfolk town decided to change one shilling for each glass taken outside the bar, and money refunded when the glass returned. At the end of two weeks, he found he had four more than he started with.

Fat Salvage Drive Progressing in Ulster

An outstanding job of fat salvage is being done by the homemakers of Ulster county.

The drive began on October first with the cooperation of the Home Bureau foods leaders and the meat dealers. The county chairman, Mrs. Auley C. Roosa has explained by radio and the printed page the urgent need for conservation of fats—all surplus kitchen fats, meat scraps, meat drippings and oils.

Adequate supplies of fats for home use cannot be obtained because the war has cut off the source of supply. Therefore, the homemakers know it is a vital necessity that not one bit of fat be wasted or thrown away. An appeal is made that surplus kitchen fats be used in every way possible at home in cooking, and informative articles have been reprinted in the newspapers emphasizing the necessity for conserving fats. The urgency and seriousness of the fat shortage has been brought home to us time and again.

Are you doing your part? Are you making every possible use of surplus fats? Are you taking the fats that you can not possibly use at home to your meat dealer to help in the war effort?

If each member saved 17 pounds of fat annually the amount which it is estimated is thrown out of the average American kitchen every year, two million house wives would contribute 34 million pounds in the next 12 months.

So homemakers won't you be a leader in educating your community to the importance of saving waste fats?

Ocean Eye Of Africa

(Wide World Features)

Dakar, Vichy-controlled capital of French West Africa on which world attention is focussing, is a modern city with beautiful parks, buildings and streets and a population of 120,000—one sixth of them whites.

Established in 1857 by the French at the tip of the African Atlantic Coast, Dakar serves as Africa's eye upon sea trade from Western Europe, South Africa and South America. It is only 1,800 miles from Brazil. Its present importance dates from 1898 when it was developed as a military port. Today several miles of docks and modern installations permit handling of all kinds of merchandise and safe anchorage for the largest ships. Imports and exports normally total 1,280,000 tons a year. Peanuts are the main cash crop of nearby Senegal.

Dakar connects by rail to St. Louis, at the mouth of the Senegal River, and to Bamako on the Nigeria's headwaters. A road is also believed under construction to link Bamako with Morocco in North Africa.

War has curbed continental living of Dakar's officer and of ficial class. Sugar and wine are rationed, half-pound a week per person is the limit on bread. Gas restrictions make charcoal-burning autos common.

Unlike many other tropical cities, Dakar has plenty of good water, is fairly healthful.

HERE ARE THE ABC's OF COAL CONSERVATION

Every patriotic citizen is now saving in some way to help win the war. You can help by firing your heating plant more efficiently. Modern firing methods save a lot of coal—coal which is vitally needed to heat a great many more homes this winter due to shortages of other fuels. You'll find it easy and patriotic to conserve coal—and profitable, too.

READ THESE 12 WAYS TO SAVE COAL

(A) You can reduce heat losses by the application of insulation, weather stripping and the closing of all unnecessary openings.

(B) Clean and inspect your heating plant to determine if repairs are necessary. Very little effort or mechanical skill is required to make simple heater corrections.

(C) Be sure you're using the correct size of coal for your particular heating plant. Each size of coal has its particular uses.

(D) Maintain a deep fire bed. This results in a steady, even room temperature and a longer lasting fire.

(E) Refuel your heating plant, using the "Red Spot" method. Simply pull the live coals forward to the bottom edge of the feed door and add the fresh coal to the rear, leaving a "red spot" of live coals just inside the feed door. These live coals ignite the gases, and thus utilize all the useful heat contained in the coal.

(F) Use care in adjustment of dampers. Accurate damper regulation will eliminate overheating and underheating, conserve fuel and increase home comfort.

(G) Shake grates gently. This removes the possibility of unburned coal dropping into the ash pit. Shake only when necessary to make room for additional coal. Except in severe weather, it should be unnecessary to shake grates more than once or twice a day.

(H) Keep the slide in the feed door slightly open at all times. This permits enough air to enter the fire box and mix with the gases to give perfect combustion.

(I) Be sure there is ample water in the humidifier pan of warm air furnaces. The proper degree of humidity is an aid to healthful home heating and less heat will be necessary for cozy comfort.

(J) Cover the boiler and pipes if they're not already suitably insulated. Insulation prevents the loss of heat that is being transported from the boiler to the radiators or registers in those rooms where it is being used.

(K) If yours is a hot water system, use the radiator key to release pent-up air in the radiators. This air may be preventing the free circulation of the hot water through the radiators, thus reducing their heat output and wasting coal.

(L) Burn Quality D&H Anthracite for convenient, dependable and economical home heating. It is pure, accurately-sized and scientifically prepared, your assurance of dependable comfort at all times.

Men's Club Holds Regular Meeting

Church Club Hears Talk on "Alcoholics Anonymous"

The Men's Club of the First Baptist Church held its regular meeting in the church parlors Wednesday evening, October 28.

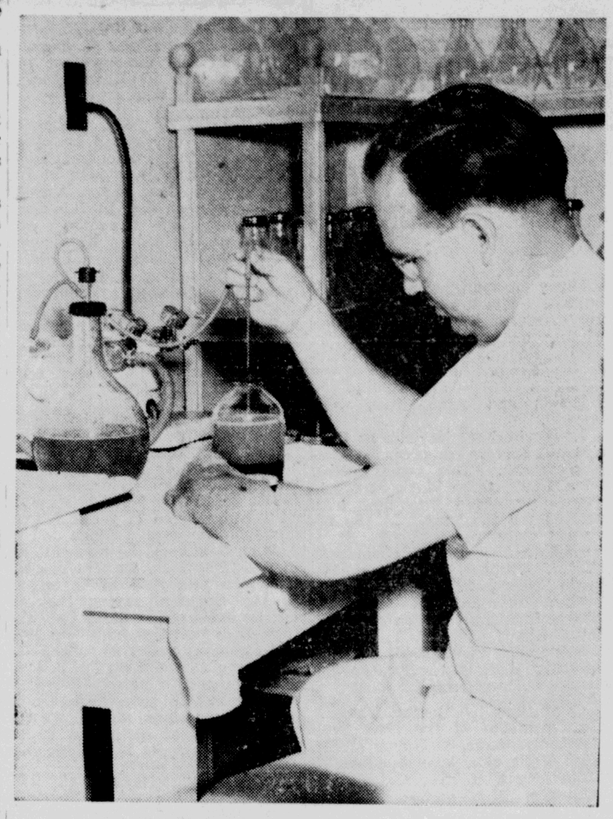

At the business session it was decided that the coin bank plan would be put into immediate operation. This plan is to facilitate raising funds to help meet immediate fuel bills, general church expenses, and any improvement program which the church may inaugurate. The following men volunteered to aid in the distribution and collection of the banks: George Matthews, Paul Jones, Lester Decker, Sherwood Lasher, Charles Arnold, James L. Rowe, Byron Chatham, Charles Gumaer, Almon Smith, Erwin Craw, Chester Greene and Douglas Harvey. Will any other members of the club who desires to aid in this work call either the Rev. H. Victor Kane or President William S. Jackson.

Following the business session, representatives from the group known nation wide as "Alcoholics Anonymous," presented to the men a picture of what this group has done, and is doing for acute alcoholism and the methods by which it works. It treats alcoholism as a disease which in all but very extreme cases is curable. It helps the victim of alcoholism establish a desirable social attitude with attendant good habits. A firm belief in a Power greater than oneself is also a vital point.

Following this presentation the meeting was adjourned.

Pet Lovers Are Upset Over Possible Rationing

Seattle, Oct. 29 (AP)—A lusty howl is raising fro mthe dog and cat lovers over the government's failure to deal the pets in on the imminent meat rationing program.

While expressing a willingness to share her own meat rations with her four cats, Mrs. Mabel V. McGill, secretary of the Washington State Humane Society, today assailed the proposed pet-less rationing as discriminatory against animal lovers.

"If I give them my whole ration," she said, "there still won't be enough. They want us to kill our pets. It's both inhumane and inhuman. The society is taking it up at once. Dogs and cats can't live on vegetables."

Mrs. Frank Suttell, secretary of the Tail-Waggers' Club, with 250 members in the state, sa'd some representation to federal rationing authorities is likely.

The situation was aggravated by the recent federal order against putting meat products in cans for dog food.

The humane society secretary still holds one gleaming hope:

War Physical Fitness Training Program Stressed

Albany, N. Y.—"Physical preparation like that of the Japanese and the Germans cannot be achieved in the classroom through discussion," said Dr. Hiram A. Jones, Director of the Office of Physical Fitness, New York State War Council and Director of the Division of Health and Physical Education, State Education Department, speaking before a record audience of over 2,000 outstanding public school educators at the Tenth Annual Meeting of the New York State School Boards Association, Inc., at the Hotel Syracuse, Syracuse, N. Y.

Stressing the need for a concerted war physical fitness training program and the part that trustees and boards of education play in insuring healthy bodies not only among school children, but also among out-of-school youth and adult war workers, Dr. Jones said, "The health program to date has been largely confined to an examination of individual pupils, often superficial, and in most cases without any follow-up of adequate corrective."

Dr. Jones pointed out the need for an organized dental hygiene program, a parents' health education program to insure that parents recognize the significance of defects in their children as well as the need for securing prompt attention to these defects, and the importance of providing treatment for those unable financially to do so.

He stressed the importance of maintaining a high degree of physical perfection among the young people comparable to that striven for in Germany and Japan today. Good fighters must be well, physically as well as mentally and must be able to coordinate their muscular activities as well as their mental processes.

"Physical training is not an extra-curricular program," said Dr. Jones. "It is basic in the preparation of every child. Present regulations call for an average of one hour a day of required physical training instruction and practice."

He instructed the trustees and boards of education to see to it that the staff employed by each school carry out the six-point program which highlighted the meeting.

The six-point program, outlined by Dr. Jones to the trustees and boards of education is:

Conduct the physical fitness program in your school according to the rules set forth in the official publications of the Office of Physical Fitness.

Utilize all facilities at your command to give the best physical preparation to fight.

Allocate sufficient funds to carry on this work.

Publicize your programs so that out-of-school youth and adults engaged in War Work may also participate.

Give adequate health examinations and follow-up services.

Be practical in your work and think of the needs of those under your care.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bedford Official Tells of Coolness Of Edward Haight

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Police Chief Frank R. Malette of Bedford Village, testified today that 17-year-old Edward Haight was "cool and collected" while the youth was admitting to him that he had attacked and killed Margaret Lynch, 7, and her sister, Helen, 8, on the night of September 14.

"He was cool and collected even while he watched them take Helen's body out of Kensico reservoir where he had thrown it," the police chief testified at Haight's murder trial in Westchester county court.

Under cross-examination by Charles J. Wallace, Haight's counsel, Malette said that he had known the Haight family for a long time and at one time arrested the youth's father, Arnold.

"For what—stealing a pig?" Wallace asked.

"No, for burglary—for 33 offenses," the police chief replied.

The second witness was Connecticut State Trooper, Charles Flanagan, who arrested young Haight in the Haight home near Stamford.

"Did you find him cool and collected too?" Wallace asked.

"I did with one exception," Flanagan said, "when I asked him pointblank, 'did you kill that girl' (Margaret, whose body was found first,) he grew very excited."

Flanagan testified that when he went to the Haight home he found there 12 guns of various kinds and makes.

The state charges that on September 13 Haight stole a station wagon in Stamford and that the following evening he drove around Bedford Village, finally accosting the Lynch girls and inviting them to take a ride.

Precedence Is Given State Ballots to Avoid Mix-Ups

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Between 70,000 and 76,000 New Yorkers in domestic military stations will cast ballots for the November 3 election, State War Ballot Commission sources predict.

Returns from those in foreign service are not expected to boost the total as high as 100,000, they add, estimating that between 35,000 and 38,000 special war ballots will be received from domestic stations, with possibly as many more ordinary absentee ballots coming from these stations.

Local election boards have been advised to give precedence to state war ballots from state armed service voters to "avoid confusion and possible litigation" when a voter returns both state and federal ballots.

A joint memorandum from state officials suggested that when both are received, the local board transmit only the state ballot to inspectors for canvassing. If only a federal ballot is returned, it is suggested that it be held until December 15 to see whether the voter is filing a state ballot from overseas.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Irregular tendencies continued to obscure the Stock Market's direction today although few leaders developed any real strength or weakness.

Further dwindling of selling pressure was evident at the start. Scattered issues then managed to tack on fractions. Dealings were sluggish throughout. Minor variations either way ruled near the fourth hour.

Many customers, while still bullish, inclined to hold off buying commitments pending results of the critical Solomons battle. Technicians suggested the two-day set-back might have improved the market's position appreciably.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Low-priced stocks such as Continental Motors came out in sizeable trades. This issue opened on a 10,000-share block at 4 and eventually edged into new high ground for the year. In the resistant class were U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Kennecott, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich Fajardo Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Pullman and Goodyear. Laggards included General Motors, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Montgomery Ward, Texas Co., Westinghouse, U. S. Gypsum and Douglas Aircraft.

More Than Million Parcels Go Overseas

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—More than 1,000,000 Christmas parcels were included in a record total of 3,396 tons of mail sent to American armed forces overseas during the first 25 days of October.

This volume far exceeds the amount sent to the A. E. F. in the same period of the World War, Secretary of War Stimson said today.

Christmas packages are now being received at the rate of 350,000 a day.

November 1 has been set as the deadline for shipments of parcels which may reach their destination with reasonable assurance before the holidays and the postal service urged that Christmas packages for soldiers within the Continental United States be mailed no later than December 1.

West Coast Notice Of Politics Gives Way to War Effort

CaliforniaGainsPopulation but Loses Voters; Oregon Also Has Drop in Registration

San Francisco, Oct. 29 (AP)—The west coast, teeming with war efforts, has allowed its interest in next Tuesday's election to sag to an unprecedented extent.

This disinterest has complicated the jobs of political seers, particularly regarding the gubernatorial race between Gov. Culbert L. Olson, Democrat, of California, and his Republican opponent, Attorney General Earl Warren.

Under the stress of war, California has gained about 1,000,000 population but has lost 231,619 voters since 1940.

This indicates that not only the great majority of migratory industrial workers now crowding its cities have failed to qualify as voters but also that many already established citizens have no intense feelings about the outcome.

There are nearly 1,000,000 more registered Democrats than Republicans in the state, yet Olson was closely pressed within his own party by Warren at the primary election.

Under a law permitting candidates to file on other party tickets as well as their own, Warren sought both the Democratic and Republican nominations for governor. He ran away with the Republican honors and came within 110,000 of beating Olson on the Democratic ballot.

Some anti-Olson Democratic groups have swung to Warren, who has stressed promises of a nonpartisan wartime administration. He has accused Olson of bungling civilian defense in the face of California's exposure to war peril.

Olson asserts Warren has attempted to conceal a conservative Republican past under the cloak of nonpartisanship and has accused the Republican nominee of obstructing his efforts to put a civilian defense program through the state legislature. The lawmakers refused to accept the Olson defense program without reservations as to how appropriations were to be spent.

"Hot Cargo" Outlawed

Complicating this contest also is a referendum measure on a legislative enactment outlawing "hot cargo" and the secondary boycott in labor disputes. The legislature passed it over Olson's veto. Labor groups have campaigned actively for its repeal. Warren has taken no stand for or against it.

"Hot cargo" is the product of a struck plant which other unions not directly involved in the strike refuse to handle. The "secondary boycott" has been invoked by labor unions against a concern which, while not struck itself, sells goods from a struck plant.

Another factor is the tradition against second terms for California governors. None has been reelected since Hiram Johnson in 1914.

Still another thing that has lessened interest is the virtual reelection of 12 congressmen at the primaries. They won both major party nominations and have no formal opposition on the November 3 ballot.

In the 16th District, however, Army Lieutenant Will Rogers, Democrat and son of the late humorist, has been waging an absentee battle to displace Representative Leland M. Ford, Republican. Rogers, who is stationed in Texas, has the support of Olson Democrats.

Three new districts, acquired in the 1940 reapportionment, will elect representatives and give the state a total of 23 seats in the House.

Oregon, whose population has been swollen by a great influx of workers into the Portland area, also experienced a drop in registration, indicating a lack of interest even though the state's two Republican representatives, Homer Angell and James W. Mott, have been accused by their opponents of not cooperating enthusiastically in the war effort.

Oregon now will have four representatives instead of three.

Washington State, another area of war production, reported a drop in registration and little interest in the contests for its six congressional seats. In one of these, however, Representative Warren Magnuson, Democrat, publicly hinted that the Republican administration of Governor Arthur B. Langlie was attempting to involve him in "devious and ominous association" with racing interests. Langlie, who is not up for re-election, said investigators were holding certain checks paid to Magnuson but would give out no information about them for the present.

The Old Age Pension Union in Washington is backing an initiative measure to liberalize the state pension provisions.

Utah has been stirred by hot campaigning on a proposal to impose special taxes on chain stores. Reed E. Vetterli, Republican and former F.B.I. agent, is running for a congressional seat against Representative J. Will Robinson, Democrat.

Arizona, which is about six to one Democratic by registration, has gained one congressman as the result of reapportionment and now will elect two at large.

It is estimated that 20,000 persons die in India each year of cobra bites.

America's Inflation Fighters

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Wide World Features Writer

Washington—Two Republican business leaders, the heads of two large farmer organizations, the chieftains of the two big labor federations and eight high-ranking government officials will help Economic Czar James F. Byrnes control living costs.

Members of the Economic Stabilization Board, they advise Byrnes on measures to regulate civilian purchasing power, prices, rents, wages, profits and rationing in order to prevent dangerous inflation.

Economic Director Byrnes, recently justice of the United States Supreme Court and formerly senator from South Carolina, is one of the capital's ablest troubleshooters. Keen, experienced and tactful, he was rated the administration's most effective handler of legislation in the senate.

Business Representatives

Business representatives on the board are Eric A. Johnston, 45, progressive - minded president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Ralph E. Flanders, 62, mechanical engineer-executive of Vermont.

Johnston, who heads ceramic and electric plants in Spokane, Wash., has worked with government officials on war production problems. He advocates labor-management committees to settle disputes.

Flanders, head of a machine company in Springfield, Vt., was administrator of machine tool priorities in the OPM. He is an authority on economic and technical problems.

Familiar also with business management problems is Board Member Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce. The big Texan has loaned millions of the government's dollars to thousands of citizens.

Two Farm Spokesmen

O'Neal has powerful influence with the farm bloc in congress. He advocated higher prices for farm products against the opposition of President Roosevelt.

Young Patton's organization is composed chiefly of farm tenants and small farm operators. Frequently on the other side of the fence from O'Neal, he has supported the administration in parity revision and other farm controversies.

Organized labor representatives are William Green, veteran president of the American Federation of Labor, and Phillip Murray, head of the C.I.O.

Murray and Green, both former miners, have cooperated with the administration on most questions. Green has pledged A.F. of L. backing of the stabilization program. Murray withheld comment on wage and price control pending developments.

Miss Perkins On Board

Concerned also with economic measures affecting labor is Miss Frances Perkins, serving her third term as secretary of labor.

Three board members are especially interested in seeing that the program keeps the nation's finances from getting too far off keel. They are Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Director of the Budget Harold Smith and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Marriner S. Eccles.

Leon Henderson head of OPA will supervise putting ceilings on prices and rents and Donald M. Nelson will have his say as to the effect of economic stabilization measures on the war production effort.

New Form of Sulfanilamide Spray For Colds, Burns Shown to Association

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

St. Louis, Oct. 29—A new form of sulfanilamide spray, to be used for common colds and burns, was shown to the American Public Health Association today.

The spray has been under trial at several scientific institutions for colds and sore throats. No reports have been published, but the verbal reports have been favorable. The spray is not used for sinus troubles.

The base of the spray is sulfadiazine, a new compound which is the least harmful to human beings of any of the sulfanilamide preparations.

Sulfadiazine is on par with sulfathiazole in the variety of diseases it helps. The spray is made by a very small percentage of diazine dissolved in water with triethanolamine.

Girls may not know it, but they are familiar with triethanolamine. It's a mild chemical used in cosmetics. It is added as a solvent because the sulfadiazine will not dissolve in water.

This same spray, used on burns, relieves pain quickly. It forms a thin film under which the sulfadiazine keeps infection to a minimum. As one result of keeping down infection, scars after healing are not likely to be as heavy or as stiff as with most other treatments.

Doctors William Milton Adams and Jack K. Crawford of the Department of Plastic Surgery at the University of Tennessee, in a report in the Southern Surgeon, state that although sulfadiazine is no panacea, in 50 cases of burns they found it had definite advantages over other treatments which rely on closing an area under a protective coating.

They used both the spray and ointments and wet dressings of sulfadiazine.

They plan more experiments, and will be watching especially for the toxic effects whose occasional appearance has been one of the handicaps of all sulfanilamide drugs.

The U. S. Army is busy building a backlog of orders for sulfadiazine, sulfathiazole and other sulpha drugs, both for use on wounds and for infectious diseases. For sprinkling on wounds, plain sulfanilamide usually is preferred to other forms.

4-H Club Members Grow More Foods

Ithaca, N. Y. — New York state 4-H Club members, 35,000 strong, have lived up to their spring promises to help produce and preserve more food in 1942.

Enrolled in a 4-H mobilization week pledge last spring, boys and girls joined the 4-H Clubs with a purpose in mind, says Albert Hoefer of the 4-H office at the New York State College of Agriculture. First sample of their sincerity was the increase of enrollment, eleven per cent greater than in any previous year, to set a new total of 17,004 boys and 18,465 girls engaged in productive rural work.

To increase production of food for home use, this year more than 3,300 4-H members increased the number of birds in their poultry flocks by more than 75,000. The 800 and more boys and girls who grew pigs raised 1,229 more of the meat animals than did 4-H Club members last year. The dairy herds of over 3,000 members swelled to a total of 2,800 more animals than in 1941. More than 12,500 4-H gardeners have garnered their crops of fruits and vegetables this year from more land than ever before.

Much of the food is eaten as it is produced, but the 4-H members have stowed away for winter more than 213,600 quarts of canned foods, 32,300 pounds of dried foods, 20,800 pounds of frozen produce, and more than 187 tons of fresh vegetables and fruits.

Results of the food production drive this year could well be expected to outstrip returns of previous years, as the 4-H garden enrollment of 1942 jumped 85 per cent higher than it was in 1941.

Fill Farm Jobs

Besides their share in food production for home use, many 4-H Club members have kept the home farms producing foods for sale this year. More than 1,900 boys and 300 girls took over field work and chores at home, while their parents worked elsewhere in 1942. Boys and girls alike helped in the farm home also; 500 boys and 2,250 girls reported doing the work of keeping the family comfortable while their mothers were busy at other jobs.

In addition, more than 2,000 boys and 600 girls went to the food production front on other farms, to help fill the thinning ranks of farm labor. About 1,300 girls and 400 boys worked in other homes than their own to keep the farms operating smoothly.

Declares Medical Service Should be Like Education

Dr. J. A. Kingsbury Talks at Meeting of Public Health Nursing Committees

"Health is the Foundation of the State" was the topic chosen by Dr. John A. Kingsbury at the meeting of the Public Health Nursing Committees held Wednesday at the Stuyvesant Hotel. Dr. Kingsbury, who now lives in Shady has retired from an active life in public health work, having been a member of the committee which planned the original structure on which the state department of health was built. He was the main speaker of the afternoon session and cited examples stressing the need of medical care available to all.

Dr. Kingsbury believes that government regulations and aid for medical service providing health for all should be made similar to the system of public education. One-third of the nation is living in families whose income is up to $1,000 and are unable to afford adequate health attention. Many families who may live in outlying sections are unable to obtain doctors when needed. Dr. Kingsbury does not blame the medical profession for this lack of attention but believes that better organization would solve the problem.

The importance of health is being emphasized today and the speaker spoke of the healthy soldiers necessary to carry on a siege such as Stalingrad in Russia today. He praised the methods that the Soviet Union has used in supervising all departments of health and recreation which he feels is proving its own success in the valiant fighting of the army. He told of the many health centers working in collaboration with hospitals in Denmark and of the improved health departments found in the Scandanavian countries and England.

Public health program has progressed greatly since the Roosevelt administration in the state, he said. President Roosevelt had stated that there was nothing more important to the state than the health of its people and since becoming President has also been interested in the health of the nation and medical care for all. However, Dr. Kingsbury continued, the American Medical Association felt that government regulation of medicine was dangerous.

Dr. Kingsbury encouraged the nursing committees to continue with their work and spoke of the growth and acceptance by the people of campaigns against disease. He commended the work of the women in organizing the committees and told several experiences he had in arranging public health groups.

In closing Dr. Kingsbury stated, "The nations who from now on and after the war give the greatest measure of attention to their recreation, development of cultural and social well being, and health in abundance for all of the people will be the nations that will triumph in the world."

Dr. Edward F. Shea, president of the Ulster County Medical Association, also spoke during the afternoon session. He briefly summarized the health work in the county mentioning the hospitals, facilities, clinics, district state health officer and the county nurses and committees.

He reported on the recruiting of doctors for the armed services and said that there was not a shortage of doctors in Ulster county. Of the 75 members of the society 23 were in service and there were but a few more to go, and those will be from communities that will be covered when they leave.

In speaking of sending the foreign doctors and keeping the home doctors in the communities, Dr. Shea said that the government did not consider aliens from enemy countries as good material for officers in the armed forces. The medical students who are being deferred by the draft boards are finishing their training so that they will be available, and he believes that doctors deferred because of defects should have these rectified as an example to others who are trying to escape the draft.

There is no danger of a shortage of nurses at the present time either, Dr. Shea reported. The total number of nurses from the local hospitals serving with the armed forces is 22 and two are over seas. Many nurses, however, have gone to a metropolis and there are requests for nurses in private homes.

He listed several "don'ts" for the present situation. Among these were suggestions such as don't call the physician unless the patient really needs one, don't expect too much from the doctor or call him at unreasonable hours except in emergency. Dr. Shea is certain that the public health nurses and the committees will be of assistance whenever necessary.

National Nursing Council for War Service Program

Thirty-eight young women entered the nursing schools in Kingston during September, but many more will be needed next year, according to local health authorities.

A refresher course last spring brought several retired nurses back to work and others will be needed. Hospitals in Kingston are reported crowded most of the time. These hospitals have contributed from their alumnae members 18 graduates to the nursing service of the nation. Many more are expected to be going in the next few months.

A small class of 12 nursing aides have been doing a fine piece of work, giving nine hours service each week. However, more are needed and a new class is being formed.

A plan under which each community can wisely budget its nursing services, already seriously handicapped by war "priorities" in some places, has been worked out by the National Nursing Council for War Service, according to Miss Emily J. Hicks, R. N., executive secretary of the New York State Nursing Council for War Service.

"This budget plan is of personal concern to every family that may have illness during the war months ahead," said Miss Hicks, at her office in Albany today, "and that could mean any family in our state.

"The nursing profession is urging every town to analyze its own needs and resources and, while filling its military quota, see to it that essential services at home are maintained as well.

"Our armed forces must, of course, have as many nurses as they need. That is a first promise. They are now calling for 3,000 a month. But the home front can be protected, too. This is a war of populations, a total war, and we must see to it that men, women and particularly children have the best possible health care. The nursing resources of the entire nation must be pooled, if need be, to win the war. Certainly we can check on our situation in the state of New York. Our state needs to sign up 4,201 nurses in the First Reserve of the Red Cross, by November 1, and our quota of new students to enroll in schools of nursing this coming school year is 5,610. The place to begin checking our supply of nurses and potential new recruits is in each community in the state, at a conference among city, public health, hospital and nursing leaders."

Many cities have already organized Nursing Councils to work on the problem of supply and distribution of nurses, said Miss Hicks. Nurses who should remain on the "home front," at least for the present, according to the National Nursing Council's plan, which has just reached Miss Hicks, include administrators and supervisors in hospitals; those essential to teaching in hospitals that have schools of nursing; administrators, teachers, and essential supervisors in public health agencies; staff nurses of public health agencies needed to maintain minimum civilian health services in any given community, and industrial nurses.

On the other hand, unmarried graduate nurses under 40 who are in private duty, on a hospital's general staff, in non-nursing or office positions, hospital head nurses not essential to teaching or supervision, or public health nurses whose services can be replaced or spared, should enroll at once in the First Reserve of the American Red Cross, or, if already so enrolled, should apply to the Army or Navy for assignment, said Miss Hicks.

"Act when they are gone," she declared, "we must see to it that needed work is carried on just the same. Nurses should be urged to give up those positions known as 'luxury' nursing, with wealthy employers who are merely pampering themselves, and do not need the service of a trained nurse. Nurses in non-nursing positions and nurses who have married, or for other reasons have retired, should be urged to come back into the profession."

"The nation has over 100,000 of these 'hidden nurses,' and they are proving an invaluable backlog. I know of one hospital alone where women have left comfortable homes, taken the refresher course, and are doing regular duty again after many years of retirement for some of them. Also of great help in getting the state's nursing job done will be the student nurses, nurses' aides, and paid auxiliary workers.

"We must keep on studying each community's needs, and arrange to shift nurses from place to place if one town is short and another has nurses who can be spared. Geographical barriers must not prevent us from winning the war on the home nursing front."

Georgia Brown Former City Girl, To Christen Ship

That a measure of fame if not fortune has come to a little girl born in Kingston, was revealed today by A. H. Lipgar, local photographer.

Press clippings turned over to the Freeman by Mr. Lipgar carried the picture of 10-year-old Georgia Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Auburn Brown of North Hollywood, Calif., who has been selected by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to christen one of the Navy vessels soon to slide down the ways of a Pacific coast shipyard.

George Auburn Brown will be remembered by many Kingstonians as the man who appeared on the stage of the Broadway Theatre billed as "The Walking Champion of the World." Following his introduction to this region from behind the footlights, Mr. Brown decided to settle here with his wife, the former Gracia Dreaon, a vaudeville headliner. The Browns opened the Orchid Hotel on Broadway, which became a favorite stopping place for vaudeville people. Later, daughter Georgia was born in the Kingston Hospital. The Brown's second daughter, Georgette, also was born in Kingston.

Georgia Brown, a pupil in the fifth grade of the Lankershim Elementary School, North Hollywood, wrote to President Roosevelt two months ago requesting the honor of christening a naval vessel. Recently the little girl received an official communication from Commander C. H. Want, supervisor of shipbuilding U.S.N., which informed Georgia that the nation's Commander-in-Chief had turned her letter over to him for the fulfillment of her wish.

Among her other accomplishments, Georgia Brown has appeared in several motion pictures doing bit parts. When she received her letter concerning the ship christening, she was at the Universal Studios appearing in the film "Nightmare," starring Diana Barrymore and Brian Donlevy.

Montgomery Shows This Is What He Would Bring About So Big Guns Could Operate

Attack Is Hard

Infantry Assault Is Difficult Operation Against Foe

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

London, Oct. 29 — The fiercely contested British offensive in the Egyptian desert has reached the point where one would expect it to develop into a battle of tanks. For the outcome of the conflict is likely to turn on these steel monsters.

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's tactics against the Axis indicate that this is exactly the position which he is trying to bring about. The wedges which he has driven into Field Marshal Rommel's strongly fortified line are calculated to maneuver the German into flinging his panzer forces into the melee to prevent a complete break-through.

The development would bring Axis tanks up against destructive British artillery and anti-tank gun fire.

Thus far the British Eighth Army has been up against the necessity of cracking Rommel's line with frontal assault by infantry, airplane and artillery. It would be courting disaster for the British tank corps to send them against such fortified positions at the outset.

Such frontal attack is one of the most difficult operations in war.

It also is likely to be one of the bloodiest and I believe we must be prepared to learn that the present offensive has been no exception to the rule. The attacking forces indeed would be fortunate if casualties were moderate.

The Allied road to victory through the Axis fortified positions and minefields is a tough one. The fact that the advance has been slow does not necessarily mean that it has not been successful. Certainly, it has been moving forward steadily through traps which the wily Rommel has laid among the ridges and dunes of this desolate region.

Laid Out in Stages

In trying to gauge the progress of such an offensive it must be borne in mind that the drive is laid out in stages and worked on a railway schedule.

There are many times when one part of the attacking force could surge forward, but must be held back because another has been stalled.

For one section to race ahead while a neighboring section remained behind would break the line and lay it open to flank attacks by the enemy.

Of course any plan is alterable, even in the heat of the conflict, if an emergency arises.

Rommel has achieved much of his success in past engagements by taking advantage of unusual situations. However, the first stages of an offensive like the present against fortified positions are likely to be a job of slow, hard slogging.

General Montgomery's ultimate aim is to maneuver the enemy into such a position that he can make a flank attack. Both of Rommel's flanks are protected—the northern by the Mediterranean and the southern by the great Qattara Depression.

Thus Montgomery is endeavoring to widen the wedges which he already has driven in the enemy line, first to draw out Rommel's tanks where they can be blasted with artillery and then to send British tank units swirling through gaps in the Axis defenses.

If and when we reach the point where British armored units are able to execute a flank movement we shall get what is likely to be one of the biggest tank battles of the war. Rommel's greatest strength apparently lies in his panzer divisions.

Air Power Inferior

So far as concerns air power, he is much inferior and he also probably has fewer troops by several divisions.

Under the circumstances it seems certain that Hitler will try to send air reinforcements to his desert army. Undoubtedly supplies and troops also are being moved across the Mediterranean both by air transport and by boat.

British and American air forces and the British Navy constantly are destroying Axis transports, but it would be foolish to believe that the Axis isn't getting considerable reinforcement across.

Rommel's lengthy supply communications are a great handicap for him and the Allied air forces are taking full advantage of this crawling transport train along the military highway which skirts the sea. Montgomery, on the other hand, has the advantage of short lines at present.

This position will alter, however, if the British offensive forces an Axis retreat. Rommel's communi-

Praises Newspaper's Scrap Metal Drive

Kingston Daily Freeman:

I feel that the nation owes the newspapers a debt of thanks for the invaluable service they have rendered through the newspapers' united scrap metal drive. I am reluctant to call on you further at this time. The results of the newspapers' campaign however have been so great and more industrial scrap is so essential to solve the nations' winter supply problem that I am asking you to give what effort you feel is appropriate towards its collection along the lines outlined recently to your national committee.

Joseph Kaley of Milton on Wasp

Marine Corps Private Is Spending Furlough Here

Private Joseph Kaley of Milton, was one of the four Ulster county men who were members of the U. S. N. Carrier Wasp which was torpedoed in the battle off the Solomon Islands and sunk on September 15. The others were Orville Sweet, who is listed as missing in action, and LaVerne Barron, both of Saugerties and Kenneth C. Bouchard of 30 Pinckhuckle street, Kingston.

Bouchard, Kaley and Barron are now home on a furlough before reporting for duty next month.

Kaley was a Marine Corps private on the Wasp, and is now spending his furlough with his brother, Francis, and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell, in Milton.

Kaley owes his survival to the fact that he was stationed on gun watch on the stern of the Wasp at the time it was attacked by the Japanese submarine. Torpedoes of the submarine hit the Wasp in the forward parts.

Like others aboard ship, Kaley had on a life jacket which helped him in the water before he was picked up four hours later by a U. S. destroyer.

Kaley plans to return to active duty on November 15, but he will probably go to officers training school after his furlough as he has been recommended for such instruction. He is a graduate of Newburgh Free Academy and of Notre Dame University.

A.F.L. Is Against Wage-Hour Law Being Let Down

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Relaxation of the wage-hour law, even on a voluntary basis as proposed by the bill of Representative Ramspeck (D-Ga.) is opposed by the American Federation of Labor.

President William Green, in a letter to Ramspeck, said his proposal to permit a longer work week without overtime pay would not expedite the war effort or increase production but would result only in confusion.

"The probabilities are," Green wrote, "that chaos would be created in that some workers, acting under pressure, would agree to forego their legal right to payment for overtime work while others would refuse to do so. That might mean that some workers in an industry would be working an unlimited amount of time without receiving overtime pay while others working in the same industry would be enjoying all the benefits of the fair labor standards act. Both an unfair competitive condition and a highly unsatisfactory state of affairs would be created."

Green added that such an amendment might open the act to further changes and an eventual breakdown in the 40-hour standard.

Ramspeck, the house Democratic whip, said when he introduced the bill that he was convinced it would alleviate local manpower emergencies and prevent many non-war industries from closing down.

Search Continued For Rickenbacker

Stimson Has Hope He Will Be Found but No Word Received

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson reported today that the War Department was still without word from the search in the Pacific for Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, but said he retained hope nevertheless that the World War flying ace would be rescued.

"I can't help clinging to hope that he will still turn up," Stimson told reporters. "You know he is an exception to cut and dried rules."

The War Secretary noted that when Rickenbacker's plane disappeared south of Hawaii more than a week ago, the World War ace was on his way to make a survey of army forces in the southwest Pacific similar to the study he had just made in Great Britain.

Rickenbacker, Stimson said, "stands high in the list of heroes of the last war and is one of the architects of victory in this."

Three Jersey City Boys Held for Their Parents

Three Jersey City boys, Edmund R. Jelinski, 17, Alexander J. Lynch, 17 and Anthony V. Falazo, 19, applied for night lodging at the county jail Tuesday night. The boys said that they had left home and gone to Meacham Lake, near Saranac Lake, in search of work. They had a little money when they started out, but funds were very low when they struck Kingston. Their replies to questions by Night Jailer Ellsworth weren't satisfactory and a delegate message was sent to the Jersey City police.

Nuzzo May Be Named Candidate

Indicted for Larceny He May Run in Local 17

It is expected that Samuel Nuzzo, who was indicted last week on charges of grand larceny and forgery for misappropriating union funds, will be put up as a candidate for business agent of Local 17, of the International Hodcarriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union of America, at a union meeting for nomination of officers in Kingston on Sunday afternoon.

Nuzzo, accused of embezzling approximately $35,000 from the union's coffers, held the office of business agent for five years but was ousted by rank and file members in a spirited court-ordered election last February. The union will elect new officers on Sunday, November 15.

Nuzzo's attorney, Henry Hirschberg, former district attorney of Orange county, who resigned to defend the former labor leader, confirmed reports that Nuzzo's name would be submitted at the nomination meeting. Hirschberg said Nuzzo's supporters have remained loyal to him and that they expect to swing the nomination and election in his favor.

Frederick W. Dusing of Kerhonkson, who defeated Nuzzo in the February election, is expected to be a candidate for reelection, and his faction is prepared to resist efforts to Nuzzo's supporters to nominate the ousted leader.

The November 15 election will be held simultaneously in Newburgh, Middletown, Kingston and Kerhonkson.

Shot, She Drives 20 Miles

Reading, Pa., Oct. 29 (AP)—A bullet in her abdomen, pretty 27-year-old Miss Marie Wike drove 20 miles to a doctor's office last night, and today hospital attendants said she had a 50-50 chance to recover. State Police Private Lester Lucas quoted her as saying her former sweetheart shot her after a quarrel as they rode along a country road in a truck. She stuffed a handkerchief into the wound, she said, and continued with the man accompanying her. "Don't shoot yourself, too," she said she told him, "because I am not going to die." The man was held without charge, Lucas said, "pending the outcome of her injuries."

Hull Trip Is Forecast

London, Oct. 29 (AP)—The Paris radio predicted today that Cordell Hull would be sent to Moscow soon as United States ambassador to Russia and that Sumner Welles would succeed him as Secretary of State. "This change," the broadcast declared, "is a result of Wendell Willkie's recent statement that the United States is not adequately represented in Moscow." (The Paris broadcast apparently was referring to Willkie's radio address from New York Monday night in which he remarked that no man of cabinet rank had been sent to Soviet Russia by this government on a special mission to "talk to Mr. Stalin.")

Inductees to Get 1 Week Furlough

Inactive Status Is Changed as of November 1 by War Department

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Secre- inactive status period granted newly-inducted draftees before they begin military service was ordered cut from two weeks to one week by the War Department today, effective November 1.

"This step is a logical consequence of the recent deferment of agricultural workers, requested as a matter of national necessity by the war manpower commission," Secretary of War Stimson said in a statement.

"These deferments in November make it necessary for us to draw upon the men on inactive status, in order that we may receive the number of men that the army must have. Otherwise the war manpower commission's action would result in serious shortages next month.

"We are faced with a choice between reducing the preliminary furlough period or deviating from the program of full speed ahead in the war effort. I believe that the men concerned will approve of the alternative we chose."

London, Oct. 29 (AP)—Reuters said it had recorded a Tokyo broadcast beamed to Guadalcanal and telling United States troops there that further resistance was useless since the "crushing defeat" which the Japanese claimed to have inflicted on United States naval forces in the Solomon area.

Johannesburg, South Africa, will use luminous paint on curbs for blackouts.

Senator Aiken Charges Misuse of Public Funds

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Senator Aiken (R-Vt) charged today that the Maritime Commission had "rashly dissipated and misused" public funds, and urged a Congressional investigation.

Declaring that some of the commission's transactions "appear to go beyond the realm of dissipation," Aiken said:

"They smell to high heaven of rank and incompetence and collusion with private interests, for which the Maritime Commission and its chairman (Rear Admiral Emory S. Land) should be held accountable."

In a letter to chairman Walsh (D-Mass) of the Senate Naval committee, Aiken said that "from a review of material which has come before me, it appears that:

"As a result of the Maritime Commission's extravagant and incompetent handling of the merchant marine, American taxpayers have been virtually robbed of untold millions."

Fundamentally the world has no need of a new order or a new plan, but only of an honest and courageous application of the historical Christian idea.

A Reminder

Returning kindness, like a loan,
Pays in after years;
But negligence will not atone
For favors in arrears.
—Ethel M. Dunham

A photographer who did excellent work and had just opened a studio in the town, had a case of his best work on display in front of his studio.

A farmer and his wife came by, and, after carefully examining the pictures, went inside the studio.

Farmer—We want the wife's picture took.

The photographer, after carefully arranging the lady for the picture, turned to the husband and said:

Photographer — Full length or bust?

Farmer (Giving a hearty laugh, slapping the photographer on the back)—All right make it full length, young fellow, and if she busts I'll pay for the machine.

A Mississippi River steamboat was stopped in the mouth of a tributary stream, owing to a dense fog. A passenger inquired of the captain the cause of the delay.

A preacher (stopping at a fish market)—Throw me a dozen of those best mackerel—one by one, high and fast.

Oddity of U. S. History

Mother—Because she is always wondering when she is going to land him.

Pastor (Sternly, at the end of one Sunday's sermon)—Jimmie, I've been paying you 25 cents to keep your uncle awake, and he was positively snoring today.

Jimmie—I know he went to sleep and I'm not charging you anything this week. Uncle Cuthbert paid me $1 to let him sleep.

Textiles and Telephones

Two of the Nation's Vital Needs

The "best dressed" man in the world today is probably the American soldier. Almost everything he wears is the result of long hours of skilled planning and work. He, together with the millions of other young Americans in our armed forces, is proof that the textile industry has gone to war.

This industry is working day and night to produce the millions of yards of fine wool, cotton and silk products for our fighting men.

As a result the great number of telephone calls that textile men are making to speed up production has contributed heavily to the record-breaking telephone traffic. Calls, such as these, are essential to our war effort. Because of them, you are asked to cooperate in your own use of the telephone.

Your Use of the Telephone in War Time

You can help us serve both you and the war effort if you will keep in mind these simple suggestions:

1. Don't make Long Distance telephone calls to important war-activity centers, particularly Washington and Chicago, unless your call is urgent—and directly connected with the war effort.
2. If you must make Long Distance calls, please do so during these least-busy hours—

Before 10 o'clock in the Morning
Around Noon
After 9 o'clock in the Evening

3. Call by number (station-to-station) whenever you can. And make your conversations brief.
4. If you have party-line service, please remember that others may be waiting to make or receive a call. Help make your party-line a good neighbor line—let's be considerate of the other fellow.

Feed 'Em Up on Furlough

CHICKEN-MUSHROOM POT PIE . . . Like mother makes.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Food Editor

When your soldier boy comes home on furlough this fall or winter, he will be looking for his favorite made-by-mother foods all the way from a snappy soup to a mouth-watering dessert, with some tempting snacks in between meals.

BAKED HAM, glistening with honey and spices offers a fine main dish.

Select a ham weighing from 10 to 12 pounds. Scrub with a brush and place, fat side up, on a rack in an open baking pan. Do not add any water. Bake 30 minutes per pound. A 10 pound ham will need 5 hours in a moderately slow oven (325). Baste several times with drippings.

The ham is done when a fork will easily go through the thickest part. Remove from the oven and lift off the rind and any surplus fat. Mark (score) the ham into diamonds and stud with whole cloves. Cover the ham with this glaze: Boil together 5 minutes, ½ cup boiling water, 2/3 cup honey, ¼ cup red cinnamon candies, ½ teaspoon ground cloves, ½ cup orange juice and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Bake the ham 30 minutes in moderate oven. Baste every 10 minutes with the honey mixture.

Apples are quite abundant and browned sugared slices go well with ham. Core and peel apples. Cut in crossway slices. Brown apples in fat (4 tablespoons fat for 8 slices apples) heated in frying pan. Sprinkle apples with ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon each cloves and nutmeg. Add ½ cup corn syrup, 1/3 cup water and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Cook slowly until well glazed. You can also do pineapple slices and peach and apricot halves the same way.

If the son likes mince meat put some into apples and bake an hour in a moderate oven. This is a grand dessert when topped with a little whipped cream, ice cream or hard sauce.

Chicken-Mushroom Pot Pie

4 pounds stewing chicken
8-oz. can button mushrooms
4 cooked carrots, sliced
8 to 10 small white onions, cooked

Remove chicken to covered dish. Drop prepared dumplings into boiling gravy; cover kettle and boil for ten minutes. Then add mushrooms and peas and heat gently for two minutes. Serve chicken-mushroom pot pie in large tureen or on platter. Serves six.

Dumplings

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening
1 egg
¾ cup milk

Sift into mixing bowl, flour, baking powder, salt. Cut in shortening. Beat egg slightly and add milk. Stir the liquid into the flour to form a soft but not sticky dough. Roll out on floured bread board and cut into shapes as desired. Drop cutout dumplings into the pot and cook as directed above.

October Milk Return Forecast at $2.98

That the New York milk pool would post a new record farm milk price for the second month in a row became a foregone conclusion today when Charles J. Blanford, administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, forecast that the uniform price of milk delivered this month would reach $2.98 a hundredweight (46.51 quarts).

The estimate rate of return from October milk is an eight-cent improvement over the September price of $2.90 which surpassed all previous monthly uniform prices figured according to the terms of the New York federal-state milk marketing orders.

"If our estimate is reasonably accurate," Dr. Blanford reported, "the October pool should yield a farm value in the neighborhood of $14,750,000. The yield is reckoned on the expectation that the pool will contain 465,000,000 pounds of milk.

"Production apparently is still managing to keep ahead of last year despite fewer producers and fewer plants in the pool. Last year, when 58,646 dairy farmers delivered to 482 plants, the October volume of New York-area approved milk weighed 457,902,083 pounds. Probably less than 56,500 dairymen are delivering now, and their milk is being received at 475 plants. The October pool, nevertheless, should outweigh last year's October production by 1.6 per cent.

"The anticipated production is worth $13,857,000 at the estimated uniform rate of $2.98. The farm value of nearly $14,750,000 was calculated by adding in the value of the butterfat and location payments. Those payments were worth $885,000 in October 1941."

Palestine's principal imports now are foodstuffs and manufactures.

Legislative Manual Is Being Distributed

Albany, Oct. 29—The first copies of what will be a heavy distribution of the 1942 Legislative Manual were mailed today to members of the Legislature, state officials and newspapers. Within the next few weeks, Secretary of State Michael F. Walsh, under whose direction the Manual is compiled, will exert every effort to speed the mailing of the book and meet the demand for copies which are already reaching the Department of State.

The Manual, familiar to those who are interested in the administrative and personnel of state offices, is a compendium of information relating to the national government, state departments, the Legislature, Judiciary, and major county offices. Its political section lists the membership of the offices of major political parties, national, state and county; and its tabulation of the votes cast for statewide officers produces the answer in many a political discussion.

In this year's Manual, there will be found a list of the Federal agencies directing the National War Effort; the New York State War Council, its organization and purposes in the mobilization and utilization of state resources in the war program; the State War Ballot Commission, authorized by the Legislature to provide the means of voting the state's electorate in service; the Post-War Public Works Planning Commission, created to keep pace with the progress of design in the planning of post-war projects.

He Blows Nose, Eye Falls

Mrs. Theodor Oxholm, president of the Public Health Nursing Committee of Ulster county, presided at the meeting. Annual reports were made from the 14 towns. Cooperation in the war civilian defense projects was reported. Many of the towns have made arrangements for emergency hospitals, cots and care. Loan closets have been completed and in some of the smaller communities the work is done in conjunction with the Red Cross units.

During the morning periods several discussion groups were conducted on the general organization of the committees and their work. The five forums were as follows: presidents' group, leader, Mrs. Theodor Oxholm; new committees, leaders, Mrs. Hubert Brink and Miss Anne Cassidy; Nurses Aid, leaders, Mrs. Reginald Every and Miss Marie Deyo; ways and means, leaders, Mrs. Louise Miller, Miss Hilda Hart; publicity, leaders, Mrs. Walter Perret and Mrs. Marion Richards.

Because of this and because Rommel is receiving reinforcements, the British commander may be expected to try to force a quick decision. Montgomery's game is to get Rommel quickly.

Ulster's Scenic Wonders

The beauties of Ulster county which nature so bountifully provides, was depicted on the screen through slides shown by Harry Halverson at the Rotary Club luncheon Wednesday. A hobby of the local architect, he has devoted time to secure a remarkable collection of scenic wonders of the county and of the Catskills. The countryside in the different seasons of the year was portrayed and disclosed ability on the part of the photographer.

Railroad Becomes Extinct

Omaha (AP)—For 65 years the Union Pacific railroad bridge over the Missouri river was adorned on the western end by a giant buffalo head to symbolize the west, and on the eastern end by a large bas relief, whose design of a plow, an anchor and steam hammer symbolized eastern industry.

But no more, for the historical pieces, cast in 1867 by Etienne Favy, of New York city, are to be salvaged for their high copper bronze content. The buffalo head, 7½ feet high, is estimated to contain 2,400 pounds of bronze, the bas relief 1,000 pounds.

Fruit Juices Made By Improved Method

Geneva, N. Y.—Now that frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock, one's thought's turn to apple cider and doughnuts. Only the fruit juice specialists at the State Experiment Station here frown on the term "apple cider" because of the inferior products that masquerade as "cider". It should be "apple juice", they say, and they proceed to describe a method of "flash pasteurization" of apple juice developed in the State laboratories which is said to preserve the flavor and other good qualities of this product so that it closely resembles freshly pressed apple juice.

The essential features of the method include straining the juice carefully, heating it quickly to 170 degrees Fahrenheit, and then putting the hot juice in bottles or cans without further treatment. After standing for a few moments, the containers are quickly cooled. The resulting product possesses much of the flavor and aroma of the freshly pressed juice and will keep indefinitely. Experiment Station Circular No. 181, entitled "The Flash Pasteurization of Apple Juice", gives full directions for carrying out the process and may be obtained upon request to the Station.

Until recently about the only juices which were prepared and preserved in the kitchen were grape juice and tomato juice, say the Station specialists in commenting on recent developments in fruit juice preservation. Now apple, cherry and many other fruit juices are used daily in the home, while marked advances have been made in the preserving of grape juice. The home making of grape juice is described in Station Circular No. 166. The improved methods for processing fruit juices include continuous flash pasteurization with little or no loss of flavor; handling so as to exclude air from the stored juices which formerly caused changes of flavor and deposit of undue amounts of sediment; and perfection of containers, both bottles and cans.

Besides apples and grapes other New York State fruits from which juices are being prepared at the Experiment Station include strawberries, raspberries, pears, plums, peaches, quinces and cherries. Circular No. 180 on cherry juice and Circular No. 194 on other fruit and vegetable juices that may be successfully processed in the home are also available upon request to the Experiment Station.

GHOST TOWN

Papeete, Tahiti (AP) — Punaula, the colony of American villas where many wealthy or adventurous visitors sought a touch of South Sea life, has become a virtual ghost town. A gradual drift back to the continent became a rush in the threatening days just before Pearl Harbor. Neglected, the frame houses are rapidly deteriorating in the moist tropical climate.

W.S.C.S. To Conduct Service This Evening

Methodist Women all over the world are observing the Week of Prayer and Self Denial; the second series of services since the unification of all Methodist churches.

This evening the Woman's Society for Christian Service will have charge of the mid-week prayer service at Clinton Avenue Methodist Church. Mrs. H. A. Miner will conduct the service and will be assisted by the officers and other members in a round table discussion. The activities of the Women of Methodism are world wide; however, this particular program will cover work being done at Wood Junior College, Mathiston, Miss., Crandon Institute, Montevideo, Uruguay, Granbery Institute, Juiz de Fora, Brazil, Bennett Junior College, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Wesley Community House, Oklahoma City, Okla.

The meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock is for the public and all members of the church and congregation are urged to attend.

Republican Club Card Party

The card party sponsored by the Women's Republican Club Tuesday evening was a decided success with tables arranged to fill the Crystal Room and the Junior Dining room. Ballads and Literature Are Topics of Atharhacton Club

Atharhacton Club met yesterday at the home of Miss Ethel M. Hull, Smith avenue. The topic for the day was "American Ballads and Folk Literature," and the paper was presented by Miss Hull.

She explained that ballads are more apt to thrive in communities where there are no radios and means of communication for the people will then rely upon their own forms of entertainments. The ballad is usually the product of a group of singers rather than one person.

In the southern mountains there is a group of Scotch-Irish settlers who because of their secluded settlements have kept alive the ballads and folk literature brought from the old country. These mountaineers together with the Negroes have contributed many original songs many of which mark happenings in their communities.

Miss Hull also discussed the spirituals, work songs and camp meeting hymns. She felt that the rhythm and mood of the songs were more important than the words and must be sung to be appreciated. She spoke of the cowboy ballads, those of the Erie Canal days and also played and sang several examples of the songs.

The club will meet next Wednesday with Miss Lillias Nelson, 21 Main street. She will present a review of the book, "Lord of Alaska."

Leaders Attend Training School

Freeman Photos

Representatives of the Eastern District of Home Bureau and 4-H Clubs are meeting at School No. 6, for a three-day training school in home improvements. The meeting was opened yesterday with about 30 leaders and agents in attendance. This is the first time that the two groups have united for training and also the first time the school has been here. Previously the leaders would go to Ithaca for the training but this year the meetings are being held in the districts to save the traveling.

Shown in the top photograph left to right are Mrs. Katherine Wisseman, Mrs. Nancy Roman, professor of Household Arts at Cornell University, instructor; Mrs. David Du Bois and Mrs. Frederick Hessinger. They are working in the group which is remodeling out-of-date and unused furniture into useful modern styles. The group in the lower picture with Mrs. Charlotte Robinson also professor of household arts at Cornell, is repairing furniture by fixing broken springs, gluing sections, and general repair work. These classes are being trained for leaders in the home units which will stress the importance of care of furniture at the present time.

Barber of Upper Nyack, and a former student at New Paltz Normal School, became the bride of Marshall Wines White, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. White, Sr., of Pocantico Hills, Saturday afternoon, October 24, at 4 o'clock in the First Reformed Church, Nyack. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. William Neely. The wedding music was played by Harry Allaire, church organist. The decorations were chrysanthemums, fall foliage, simlax and rhododendron.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown with train of white faille, buttoned down the front with a scallop in front of each small button. The V neckline was scalloped and the basque waist fitted. She carried a bouquet of lilies and wheat. Her long veil was arranged from a crownless scalloped halo.

She carried a bouquet of daisies, pom-pom chrysanthemums and wheat in tones of bronze and brown. The bridesmaids were Miss Gertrude Ahrens and Miss Elizabeth Sandison of Nyack; Miss Helen Barber, Upper Nyack, sister of the bride and Mrs. Gordon White of Tarrytown. Their gowns were similar to the matron of honor's gown.

Gordon White of Tarrytown, brother of the bridegrcom was best man. Ushers were John Meehan, William John Barber, Jr., brother of the bride; Lewis Brundage and Leonard Bowles.

The bride's mother wore a gown of soft blue crepe with silver beads and plum colored hat and gloves. Her corsage was an orchid. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in dubonnet velvet and hat with beige gloves and an orchid in tones of yellow.

A reception for 150 guests was held at the Villa Lafayette in Spring Valley. The couple left for a wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Tarrytown.

Leftover meats, vegetables and fish can often be stretched into main dishes when combined with canned soups. Try potatoes, beef and green beans with cream of mushroom soup, and chicken or duck goes very well into cream of asparagus soup. Scotch broth gives extra nutrition to cooked mutton and lima beans.

When salted peanuts are used in baked foods, reduce the salt called for in the receipe to one half.

During damp weather it is best to freshen salted peanuts by heating 5 minutes in a moderate oven before adding them to the rest of the ingredients.

WHEAT ALCOHOL IS FUEL

Power alcohol will be distilled from wheat in four large plants to be constructed in Australia. It is estimated in Canberra that output will be 12,000,000 gallons annually. Minister of Commerce Scully is called on to finance a wheat harvest of 153,000,000 bushels. The project is under full government control. Potential production of power fuel from synthetic sources will bring Australia's output to 60,000,000 gallons a year.

Men's Club Holds Regular Meeting

Church Club Hears Talk on "Alcoholics Anonymous"

The Men's Club of the First Baptist Church held its regular meeting in the church parlors Wednesday evening, October 28.

At the business session it was decided that the coin bank plan would be put into immediate operation. This plan is to facilitate raising funds to help meet immediate fuel bills, general church expenses, and any improvement program which the church may inaugurate. The following men volunteered to aid in the distribution and collection of the banks: George Matthews, Paul Jones, Lester Decker, Sherwood Lasher, Charles Arnold, James L. Rowe, Byron Chatham, Charles Gumaer, Almon Smith, Erwin Craw, Chester Greene and Douglas Harvey. Will any other members of the club who desires to aid in this work call either the Rev. H. Victor Kane or President William S. Jackson.

Following the business session, representatives from the group known nation wide as "Alcoholics Anonymous," presented to the men a picture of what this group has done, and is doing for acute alcoholism and the methods by which it works. It treats alcoholism as a disease which in all but very extreme cases is curable. It helps the victim of alcoholism establish a desirable social attitude with attendant good habits. A firm belief in a Power greater than oneself is also a vital point.

Following this presentation the meeting was adjourned.

Pet Lovers Are Upset Over Possible Rationing

Seattle, Oct. 29 (AP)—A lusty howl is raising fro mthe dog and cat lovers over the government's failure to deal the pets in on the imminent meat rationing program.

While expressing a willingness to share her own meat rations with her four cats, Mrs. Mabel V. McGill, secretary of the Washington State Humane Society, today assailed the proposed pet-less rationing as discriminatory against animal lovers.

"If I give them my whole ration," she said, "there still won't be enough. They want us to kill our pets. It's both inhumane and inhuman. The society is taking it up at once. Dogs and cats can't live on vegetables."

Mrs. Frank Suttell, secretary of the Tail-Waggers' Club, with 250 members in the state, said some representation to federal rationing authorities is likely.

The situation was aggravated by the recent federal order against putting meat products in cans for dog food.

The humane society secretary still holds one gleaming hope:

RETURNING RING AFTER BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

It maybe that her reason for wanting to keep the ring was because he asked for it. At least that was in my mind when I read the following letter: "I'd like your opinion of a man who could ask for the return of an engagement ring when he decides to have a change of heart about girls? Do you think the jilted one should make it easy for him by meekly complying? Naturally if a girl and man agree to disagree she should be willing to hand back his ring, but I'm referring to a case where the break was caused by the man alone."

It is difficult to imagine that a man would ask for the ring, but on the other hand it is more difficult to understand why he should have to ask for it. The first thing a girl is expected to want to do is to send back the ring as fast as possible.

Fourth Not in Direct Line

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband is John H. White. Our youngest son, now in the armed forces, is the junior. A year ago our eldest son had a son and named him John H. White, 3rd. Now our youngest son—the junior—is expecting a child, and they are hoping very hard for a boy. His wife insists that it must be named for my son, the child's father. This will mean the fourth John H. White. Is this the suffix that should be used? I've never seen it and therefore don't know.

Answer: This is unusually complicated because John H. White, Jr., is not the oldest son. Let us say that the oldest son is named Arthur and his son is therefore the collateral descendant of his uncle, who is Junior. Arthur's son should have been called, and should now be called, "2nd" (which means nephew of the man of identical name). The new baby who is the son of Junior should be called "3rd." Then if "2nd" should sometime have a boy, he also will be "3rd" and then the only way to separate them would be to give him a different middle name.

Remembering Those Who Serve Us

Dear Mrs. Post: In what manner shall the dining-room waitress and in what manner the chambermaid be given their tips when the end of our two-weeks' stay is up? The hotel is an American plan one.

Answer: You give them each a tip the last time you see them. You give the waitress hers just before you leave the dining-room. You call the chambermaid just before you leave and give her your tip. If she isn't findable at the time, it is best to put the amount in a sealed envelope addressed to her and leave it at the desk. If you leave it lying on the bureau it may very well be found by someone who has done little for you, and the one who gave you especially good service would receive nothing.

So many requests have been made for copies of Mrs. Post's article on details concerned with training camps (behavior of visitors and presents for the men), that it has been printed as a leaflet and will be sent to anyone who sends a self-addressed three-cent stamped envelope to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

General MacArthur Denies Any Political Ambitions

attributing the two separate commands in the Pacific chiefly to "political Washington" and a "MacArthur-for-president campaign," the 62-year-old leader of United Nations forces in Australia disavowed any "political ambitions whatsoever."

From his headquarters last night (Washington time), MacArthur declared that any contrary suggestion "must be regarded as merely amiable gestures of goodwill dictated by friendship."

"I started as a soldier and I shall finish as one," he said. "The only hope and ambition I have in the world is for victory for our cause in the war."

This, topping louder and louder demands from Capitol Hill for better teamwork in the Pacific war theatre, was interpreted by some sources here as at least an indirect appeal to eliminate any political considerations that might be hampering his direction of the war effort in that part of the world.

These sources pointed out that such a statement from a commanding officer in the field was highly unusual and was almost bound to provoke some decisive action.

The congressional protests became more vocal this week after Vice Admiral Robert H. Ghormley was replaced as commander of the Southern Pacific area embracing the Solomon islands by Vice Admiral William H. Halsey.

There was no explanation for the change but it was recalled that United States naval operations in that area had cost three cruisers, the aircraft carrier Wasp, five destroyers and four other ships.

Recently, Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY) observed "there is an inevitable lack of teamwork when matters common both to the army and navy are handled separately," and joined representatives Maas (R-Minn) and Dirksen (R-Ill) in suggesting creation of a congressional "high command" to coordinate military legislation.

Rep. Costello (D-Calif) has contended that the Solomons battle "is crying out for redress" and deplored the arrangement under which MacArthur was given command over Australia, New Guinea and islands to the north of Australia, while Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is in general command of much of the rest of the Pacific.

Maas, ranking member of the house naval committee who returned recently from a four-months tour of duty in the Pacific as a flying colonel of marines, asserted "there is an imperative need for unity and cooperative action between all branches of the armed forces." He proposes consolidation of all fighting services into a single unit.

The newspaper comment that drew MacArthur's statement was written by the Christian Science Monitor's Washington correspondent, Joseph C. Harsch, who remarked that "so great has been the dissatisfaction with progress in the Solomons that Washington opinion has veered somewhat away from its strong anti-MacArthur bias."

"Political Washington," he wrote, "was largely responsible for setting up two separate American commands in the far Pacific, and it did this partly because of jealousy of MacArthur's great public popularity and partly because the conservative opposition press launched a 'MacArthur-for-president' campaign without any encouragement from the general himself."

Bennett Charges Votes Sought on Intolerance Basis

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—John J. Bennett, Jr., says that Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent for the governorship, is campaigning like a demagogue, trying to be "all things to all men."

The Democratic nominee told a Queens rally and a statewide radio audience last night that Republican Party workers were distributing pamphlets upstate to gain votes for Dewey "on the basis of religious intolerance."

Bennett, who renewed his demand that Dewey declare his stand on the prohibition issue, declared that Republican committee members had distributed two pamphlets to voters at an Elmira rally Tuesday at which Dewey denounced the author, the Rev. O. R. Miller, as a professional bigot.

He added, however, that Dewey could have prevented that distribution which went on "right under his nose."

"Now, Mr. Dewey," the attorney general asserted, "since you dare not answer my question as to whether you are a wet or a dry, I am going to show again to the people of this state that as late as yesterday your breast-beating denunciation of the libelous and bigoted publication of the 'Civic Bulletin,' and of the publisher x x x was in its very essence a falsehood.

"I am going to do this, Mr. Dewey, by quoting from the account of your visit to Elmira yesterday and of your meeting there last night, as it appeared in the columns of 'The Elmira Advertiser' of today.

"It is pertinent to the case against you that 'The Elmira Advertiser' is owned and published by Frank Gannett, vice-chairman of the Republican national committee and one of your supporters in this campaign.

"Referring to the pamphlets x x x 'The Advertiser' reports as follows: 'Dewey, in his statement, termed Miller a cheap professional bigot and added, 'I denounce and despise this person and all his works.'

'There Is Your Statement'

"There, Mr. Dewey, is your statement as it appeared in 'The Elmira Advertiser.' You spoke there last night in Federation Hall, 24 hours after I made known the distribution of these pamphlets by your ministry of propaganda, and 12 hours after you claimed you knew nothing about the circulation of these scurrilous sheets by your upstate emissaries.

"x x x. You could not have helped knowing about this and you could have stopped it if you wished."

Bennett said 'The Advertiser' carried this paragraph: "'Despite Dewey's denouncement of the Rev. Mr. Miller, copies of the Civic Bulletin were distributed by local Republican committee members with other campaign literature at the door after last night's rally at the Federation building.'

"There, Mr. Dewey, in the cold black type of a supporting newspaper you are convicted of tolerating the distribution of October and November pamphlets of the Civic Bulletin right under your nose.

"The facts convict you of hypocrisy and falsehood."

Bennett said this "single paragraph of its poison" was in the bulletin: "'It is said that the report comes from over the state that a greater number of Catholic Sisters have registered this year to vote than at any year since 1928, when Al Smith was a candidate for President. Al Smith has recently come out strongly for Mr. Bennett for governor. It is even hinted that these sisters in some cities may have registered many times'."

The attorney general said this was "the least offensive item in the November pamphlet," adding: "I leave it to your imagination what over scurrilous and lying statements are contained in those pamphlets which the Dewey ministry of propaganda has distributed in order to gain votes on the basis of religious intolerance."

Bennett declared that Dewey was "campaigning for the presidency in 1944" and wanted "to stand before the south as a supporter of prohibition to get the support of the delegates of the dry states."

"To do that," Bennett continued, "he would not be against a Sunday closing law so as to use it for gaining dry delegates.

"But if he did not also have on the record something sarcastic about the poll tax bill, he might lose some of those southern delegates. That is why he is sarcastic about my forthright stand against the poll tax."

Democratic State Chairman James A. Farley told the rally that on the basis of polls conducted in New York city Bennett's plurality here would be at least 335,000, while upstate would give Dewey a plurality or less than 250,000.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, who is well known among upstate farmers, was scheduled to speak in favor of Bennett tonight over a statewide radio hookup.

Fire Damages Kitchen

A pot stove that had been disconnected from the boiler, set fire to the flooring of the kitchen at 1:57 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the home of James DeCicco at 294 Fourth avenue. The fire department was called on a still alarm and extinguished the fire with chemicals. At 11 o'clock last night the firemen were called to fight a fire in the Sterling street dump, and worked all night before the fire was extinguished.

Ex-Convict Is Guilty Of First Degree Murder

Miami, Fla., Oct. 29 (AP)—Vincent J. Christy, 37, ex-convict on parole from a New York prison, was convicted today of first degree murder for one of four slayings last July 17.

The circuit court jury verdict, without recommendation, provides for the death penalty under Florida law for the death of Irving Leopold, 37, meat market operator.

Christy denied from the witness stand that he shot Leopold; Mrs. Leopold; her son, Stephen, 6, and a motorist, Ralph J. Morin, Jr.

He admitted signing a confession which told of a desire to kill Leopold because of an old grudge, but said he did so "for the simple reason I would rather burn than go back to prison" to complete a term from which he had been paroled.

Bedford Official Tells of Coolness Of Edward Haight

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Police Chief Frank R. Malette of Bedford Village, testified today that 17-year-old Edward Haight was "cool and collected" while the youth was admitting to him that he had attacked and killed Margaret Lynch, 7, and her sister, Helen, 8, on the night of September 14.

"He was cool and collected even while he watched them take Helen's body out of Kensico reservoir where he had thrown it," the police chief testified at Haight's murder trial in Westchester county court.

Under cross-examination by Charles J. Wallace, Haight's counsel, Malette said that he had known the Haight family for a long time and at one time arrested the youth's father, Arnold.

"For what—stealing a pig?" Wallace asked.

"No, for burglary—for 33 offenses," the police chief replied.

The second witness was Connecticut State Trooper, Charles Flanagan, who arrested young Haight in the Haight home near Stamford.

"Did you find him cool and collected too?" Wallace asked.

"I did with one exception," Flanagan said, "when I asked him pointblank, 'did you kill that girl (Margaret, whose body was found first,)' he grew very excited."

Flanagan testified that when he went to the Haight home he found there 12 guns of various kinds and makes.

The state charges that on September 13 Haight stole a station wagon in Stamford and that the following evening he drove around Bedford Village, finally accosting the Lynch girls and inviting them to take a ride.

Precedence Is Given State Ballots to Avoid Mix-Ups

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Between 70,000 and 76,000 New Yorkers in domestic military stations will cast ballots for the November 3 election, State War Ballot Commission sources predict.

Returns from those in foreign service are not expected to boost the total as high as 100,000, they add, estimating that between 35,000 and 38,000 special war ballots will be received from domestic stations, with possibly as many more ordinary absentee ballots coming from these stations.

Local election boards have been advised to give precedence to state war ballots from state armed service voters to "avoid confusion and possible litigation" when a voter returns both state and federal ballots.

A joint memorandum from state officials suggested that when both are received, the local board transmit only the state ballot to inspectors for canvassing. If only a federal ballot is returned, it is suggested that it be held until December 15 to see whether the voter is filing a state ballot from overseas.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Irregular tendencies continued to obscure the Stock Market's direction today although few leaders developed any real strength or weakness.

Further dwindling of selling pressure was evident at the start. Scattered issues then managed to tack on fractions. Dealings were sluggish throughout. Minor variations either way ruled near the fourth hour.

Many customers, while still bullish, inclined to hold off buying commitments pending results of the critical Solomons battle. Technicians suggested the two-day set-back might have improved the market's position appreciably.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Low-priced stocks such as Continental Motors came out in sizeable trades. This issue opened on a 10,000-share block at 4 and eventually edged into new high ground for the year. In the resistant class were U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Kennecott, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich Fajardo Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Pullman and Goodyear. Laggards included General Motors, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Montgomery Ward, Texas Co., Westinghouse, U. S. Gypsum and Douglas Aircraft.

More Than Million Parcels Go Overseas

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—More than 1,000,000 Christmas parcels were included in a record total of 3,396 tons of mail sent to American armed forces overseas during the first 25 days of October.

This volume far exceeds the amount sent to the A. E. F. in the same period of the World War, Secretary of War Stimson said today.

Christmas packages are now being received at the rate of 350,000 a day.

November 1 has been set as the deadline for shipments of parcels which may reach their destination with reasonable assurance before the holidays and the postal service urged that Christmas packages for soldiers within the Continental United States be mailed no later than December 1.

N. B. A. Rates Conn, Pastor 'Logical Contenders' for Crown Held by Joe Louis

Abe Greene States List Is Good During War; Titles of Service Men 'Frozen'

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Private Billy Conn and Bob Pastor are the "logical contenders" for Corporal Joe Louis' heavyweight championship crown, the National Boxing Association reported today in announcing that top-ranking fighters now in the army services would be placed in a special "honorary class."

Abe J. Greene, N.B.A. president, said that in December the association would announce plans for listing "duration champions and contenders."

These ratings, Green declared, will be based on a policy of "freezing" for the duration the titles of men in the service. He added that such a system would prevent "injustice" to champions now in uniform and would prevent appropriation of boxing crowns by self-declared champions or by dictum of any individual athletic commission.

In again listing Conn as the No. 2 heavyweight, the N.B.A. made no reference to the scheduled Louis-Conn scrap of three weeks ago, which Secretary of War Stimson cancelled.

Pastor Is Ignored

The N.B.A. ranking Pastor as the leading "out-of-the-service" heavyweight, ignoring both his recent defeat at the hands of Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland and Bob's announcement three days ago that he was retiring from the ring and planned to enter some branch of the armed forces.

The N.B.A. explained that Bivins' win over Pastor was registered after the October 19 deadline for contests to figure in the rankings. Bivins was listed as the No. 2 light heavyweight.

Melio Bettina was placed at the top of a group of five "outstanding boxers" in the heavyweight class, but the N.B.A. noted that his army service probably would prevent any ring activity on his part "which leaves competition principally in the hands of Lee Savold and Tami Mauriello," who are booked to meet tomorrow night.

Manuel Ortiz, whose victory over Lou Salica has been recognized by the N.B.A. was ranked the No. 1 bantamweight for the only change in title classification in the new ratings.

Henry Armstrong, the old "perpetual motion" specialist, came back to gain the fourth slot among the N.B.A.-ranked welterweights, coming behind Freddie Cochrane, Ray Robinson and Fritzie Zivic. Armstrong whipped Zivic in San Francisco last night in the most significant step of an amazing comeback campaign.

The ratings:

Heavyweights: Champion Louis, army. Logical contenders, Conn, army; Pastor, New York. Outstanding boxers, Bettina, army; Savold, Des Moines, Ia.; Mauriello, New York; Roscoe Toles, Michigan; Pat Valentino, coast guard. Honorable mention, Turkey Thomson, California; Buddy Bear, California; Tony Musto, Illinois; Connie Nordon, California; Harry Bobo, Pennsylvania; Buddy Scott, Texas.

Light heavyweights: Champion, Gus Lesnevich, coast guard. Logical contenders, Bivins and Ezzard Charles, Ohio. Outstanding boxers, Billy Soose, navy; Tommy Tucker, navy; Freddie Mills, England; Ken Overlin, navy; Anton Christoforidis, Greece.

'Red' Cochrane Champs

Conwicke Will Use Lee Boice at Guard Position Saturday

Return of Regular Back Gives Maroons More Power on the Line for Middie Game

Coach Ted Conwicke received some heartening news yesterday when it was announced that Leland Boice, regular fullback for his Kingston High School football team, would be ready for starting action Saturday. Kingston travels to Middletown on that day for the second 1942 DUSO League tilt.

However, the return of Boice doesn't mean his return to the secondary where he started operations this year. After his backfield of Will Harrell, "Rocky" Maxson, Potter and Jimmy Dugan played acceptably well against Poughkeepsie last week Coach Conwicke had other plans for Boice.

Saturday when the Maroons battle Johnny Bateman's strong Middies, Boice will be stationed at the guard slot in hopes of giving the local eleven additional line strength which it will need. Boice is a good blocker and his presence on the first line of defense should give the Maroons plenty of power.

Meanwhile, Coach Conwicke, who has watched his team go under three overwhelming scores this year said yesterday, "I don't think the people realize that we have boys on our squad around the ages of 15 and 16. It seems pretty young but with the draft now taking younger boys, our main hope is to start with these youngsters this year and keep them in readiness for 1943." A lot of time has been spent with these young gridders and in all probability the 1943 football campaign will find Kingston with a young but a somewhat experienced team, more so than the present outfit.

The Mayorettes, one of the up and coming teams in Emerick's Ladies' Bowling League, are pictured above. Although not in the upper standings of the league to date, the Mayorettes have a strong roster of some of the best female keglers in the city and critics point out that the club will soon hit its stride and establish itself as one of the teams to beat for league honors before the 1942-43 season comes to a close. In the above picture, reading from left to right, are Evelyn Jones, a member of the great bowling family of Jones; Mrs. Reta Frederick, Mrs. Kay Robertson, Doris Harvey and Madaline Schline. All are veteran keglers. Incidentally, after The Freeman photographer snapped this photo Tuesday night, the Mayorettes went out on the alleys and won two games. The Mayorettes have uniforms of red, white and blue, and are sponsored by Mayor William F. Edelmuth.

Federation League

In the Federation Bowling League at the "Y" alleys this week Austin Hitchcock of the Fair Street bowling team blasted out high triple of 556 on a string of 190, 220 and 146. Fair Street won three from the First Baptists. Vic Kane had a 382 series for the losers.

High single honors went to Dave Harris who bowls with the Port Ewen outfit. Dave poured out a 224 single and wound up with a neat 554 triple, only two pins minus Hitchcock's mark. Harris' efficient kegling brought the Port Ewen team to three wins in a row over the Comforters. The Rev. Russell Damstra bowled a 479 triple for the Comforters.

The Ahavath Israel combine won three from St. Johns behind Kessler's 205 single. Burr captured high triple for the losers' with a 532. However, it wasn't enough to turn the side. Irv Adner had 499 for the winners.

Catholic League Results

Ed Schupp of St. Peters, who stays on here to keep up the good work of his brother, Leo Schupp, took honors in the Catholic Bowling League last night at the Central Rec alleys. Ed had a 221 single and 559 series as St. Peters won one game from the St. Marys squad. Leo, in winding up his bowling activities before joining the U. S. Army Saturday, had a 124 and 161 for a 285 double.

F. Herschenroder's 205 single and 528 triple failed to help St. Anns as that club lost two games to the Immaculate Conception bowlers. F. Rylewicz had a 522 triple for the winners while S. Wojdan chipped in with a 203 single.

St. Peters of Rosendale copped two from the Knights even though "Bun" Rourke for the K. C. team had a high 205 single and 489 series. L. Yonnetti's 474 cluster was high for the winners.

Emerick's Ladies' Jottings

Emerick's Ladies' League Tuesday night at Emerick's Recreation alleys resulted in Williams Lake taking three games from Reinas as Evelyn Provenzano blasted a 215 single and 538 series to top high for the winners. Some think Miss Jones' good luck charm didn't help her while it was the opinion of others that on the Jersey side hits it worked . . . They say that Sally Kuehn is trying out signaling for the Navy. She converted the 1-3-10-8 split. Captain Phil Roosa made the 5-6 and 8-10 rolling a neat series of 508 to aid the winners make a 2233 series. When looking for bowling instruction ask Phil. She's consistent with 176. What is Alyce Riseley of the Reinas doing? Practicing for a try-out to be a cheer leader? Alyce rolled high 167 and 472. Helen Smart came through on those one pins and when it comes to hash, Tillie Clearwater sure can make it. Ethel Wetzel made the 1-3-10-8 while Bea Coddington must have been making notes for modesty is quite apparent . . . Schwenks took two from Standards as Captain Kubicek made her spares and if her soldier son gives the Japs the same type of cracks, the Nips will be no more . . . Lillian Buswell and H. Hayes ran into plenty of splits. Annabelle Markle made the 7-8-10 and can certainly clear off her corner pins as does Helen Styles . . . Rose Chamberland made the 3-5-8 and 3-5-8-7 split and came through with 169 and a 449 series for the losers. Although Ruth Bliss slid, sat and strut and stamped she seemed to run into hard luck. Could it be the soldier husband that has Ruth off her stride? and made the 1-5-8-9 and 5-9-7. Doris Wilson just couldn't make them count. The Standards are clicking and anything may happen. The Minasians took three from Elstons as Martha Minasian made the 2-3-8 and B. Hyatt rolled high 193 and 445. V. Carpenilli is showing up more like her old form. Elsa Relyea came through like a regular. Elstons came out in new uniforms. Marg Williams rolled high 176. Dot Holmes made her splits count and when it comes to mix-ups, Cora Emerick can make them. Mr. Engels, scorekeeper, drew attention to an unusual split on 5-6 alleys, it being the 8-9-10 . . . The Mayorettes in new red, white and blue uniforms took two from Kingston Coal. Captain Kay Robertson came through with four strikes in a row in her second game and some of the girls are wondering if the new hair-do, which is very becoming, has anything to do with Kay's breezy bowling . . . Although Madaline Schline seemed to be missing them she came through with a 400 series . . . Doris Harvey had four splits in five frames and converted the 5-6-10. I. Malone for Kingston Coal took honors with a 158 and 410. M. McCardle made the 7-5-9-10. C. Bannon the 3-5-7 and G. Breitfeller the 2-4-6-10. Gert also filled in her last frame to win the odd game . . . Becks took three from the Ertels as Captain Chris Wilson rolled high three of 435 and Loretta Miller a 162 single. Mary Callahan high 137 and R. Tiano's 348 for the losers. Phalen & Cahill took two from the Alpines as Rosemary Wiegand anchor for his squad, came through as usual when most needed to take the second game. Marge Trowbridge is trying hard for a 400 series, getting 397 triples for the last couple of weeks. Marge made the 7-9 . . . Who on the coal squad had their fortune told and were assured of two games for Tuesday night? Phil Gehringer and Rosemary Wiegand tied with 452 series for high while Rosemary had a nice 184 single. Evelyn Dolson took honors with a 194 single and 462 series for the losers. M. Jansen a nice 461, Dot Fleming 435. Where was Mary Meyers' smile Tuesday night? Don't tell us they are going to be rationed out, now too.

"Flavor-peaked"—for extra richness! This superb American blend has that expensive, "imported-whiskey" flavor because its foundation whiskies are specially distilled to give them individual qualities—then blended together to a delicate "flavor peak." Praises Newspaper's Scrap Metal Drive

Kingston Daily Freeman:

I feel that the nation owes the newspapers a debt of thanks for the invaluable service they have rendered through the newspapers' united scrap metal drive. I am reluctant to call on you further at this time. The results of the newspapers' campaign however have been so great and more industrial scrap is so essential to solve the nations' winter supply problem that I am asking you to give what effort you feel is appropriate towards its collection along the lines outlined recently to your national committee.

Bob King Elected To Succeed Schupp As C.A.A. Officer

Retiring Secretary Will Enter U. S. Army on Saturday; Worker Is Lauded for Duty

Robert King, present treasurer of the Catholic Athletic Association, was named secretary of that organization at a recent meeting. Mr. King has consented to act in the official capacity of secretary-treasurer due to the absence of the board members who are now in service or soon will be.

Edward Schupp was named as executive secretary of the association's bowling league. Both of these posts were formerly held by Leo Schupp.

Leo Schupp, who has been secretary of the Catholic Athletic Association for many years, has been given an honorable discharge from his duties which he has carried out faithfully during his term of office. Leo will be one of the inductees who leaves Kingston at noon Saturday for Camp Upton.

Although the entire history of Leo is not at hand at this time, the Catholic Athletic Association will surely lose a faithful and valuable worker when he leaves Saturday. He had been a cooperative worker with this publication in releasing news concerning his league and also has been efficient with his various statistics concerning the organization. Undoubtedly Leo will resume his duties as chief secretary of the C. A. A. when the war is won by the United States and her Allies.

Plans for Future

Meanwhile, arrangements for a program of athletics for the coming season were made at the last meeting. A new session will be called in the near future by the Board of Governors to organize a basketball league. Due to the drafting of youths of 18 and 19 this will be somewhat of a problem. Present plans call for a league of four or more teams which will probably consist of youths of school age. A meeting of the bowling captains also will be called soon.

Branch Rickey Is Named President of Dodgers; No Terms Are Disclosed

Cardinal Vice-President Signs for Five Years With Brooklyn; to Begin Nov. 1

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Branch Rickey today was named president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rickey was signed to a five-year contract, effective November 1. He succeeds Larry MacPhail, who resigned the position to take a commission in the armed services.

The board of directors declined to name the salary terms, but as vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cards, Rickey's salary and commissions were believed to have run as high as $75,000 annually.

Rickey comes to the Dodgers after a quarter-century with the Cards as president, field manager and then vice president and general manager of St. Louis' farm system, which he inaugurated around 1920.

He is referred to as the "father" of baseball's farm system, which yielded the Cards four world championships and six national league pennants starting in 1926. He closed out his career at St. Louis with a World Series victory over the New York Yankees this fall.

Signing of Rickey climaxed weeks of negotiations with the Dodgers, who also were understood to have had under consideration such other baseball leaders as George Weiss, head of the New York Yankees farm system, and Leslie Mann, president of the Atlanta, Ga., club of the Southern Association.

One of Rickey's first tasks probably will be the selection of a manager. It is understood that Leo Durocher, Dodger manager for the last four years, is seeking a commission in the armed forces, and thus will not be available even if Rickey would want to keep him on the job.

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Branch Rickey was back in town today for the second time within a week and may sign as the new president of the Brooklyn Dodgers before he darts away again.

The latest visit of the vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals was surrounded in as much secrecy as was the case last week. He arrived yesterday unannounced, registered at a midtown hotel but didn't answer his telephone, and even his son's family said they were unaware of his presence here.

However, there was reason to believe that he had come to conclude negotiations which have been going on ever since the World Series, when the board of directors of the Dodgers set out to find a successor to Larry MacPhail, who resigned to accept a lieutenant-colonelcy in the army.

When he was last here Rickey, although refusing to acknowledge that his presence had any connection with the Brooklyn vacancy, did say he hoped to "know something definite within the next week."

The fact that he returned seven days later, on the dot, was therefore accepted to mean that he knew something definite and there seemed to be no occasion for his making a trip here if the "definite" were negative.

When Rickey was here last week it was understood he had to straighten out his Cardinal contract, which would not normally expire until December 31. This pact provided for him to share in the profits of the club in addition to his salary and the sum involved may be measured by the approximately $75,000 he received last year. In addition Rickey was believed to have owned some stock in the Cardinals, which he would have to sell before becoming associated with any other Major League club.

These problems may have been solved.

In addition, when Rickey was here a week ago one of the four Dodger directors, Joseph A. Gilleadeau, was out of the city. Today they were all accounted for—Gilleadeau, James Mulvey, George Barnewall and William L. Hughes—making it possible for the board to take action.

11 Cases—All Sad

Ayden, N. C. (AP)—Night Police Chief Walter Hamilton had a new one for the records when he logged his night report: "Helped two men load 11 cases of liquor, stolen from the A.B.C. store." Hamilton said the men surprised him on his beat, disarmed him, and then forced him at the point of a gun to help them load the stolen liquor.

Steuber and Sinkwich Top High Gridiron Offensive

A. F. S. B. Releases New Figures on College Elevens; Tulsa 'U' Captures Honors

Chicago, Oct. 29 (AP)—Collegiate football is streaking to new offensive heights this year on the backs of Missouri and Georgia.

Missouri, paced by Bob Steuber, the nation's leading scorer, has averaged 434 yards a game for six contests. Georgia, led by Frankie Sinkwich, has rolled along at a 431 clip in the same number of encounters.

The American football statistical bureau, in releasing today's figures, said that it believed it had some imposing figures three years ago when Cornell, in six games averaged 409 yards before bumping into Dartmouth and Pennsylvania.

But today Missouri and Georgia not only are far ahead of that pace, but are being pushed by two other elevens. In five games, Tulsa has a 419 total offensive average and Ohio State, 414.

Missouri and Ohio State, incidentally, are the two top running teams of the nation, Missouri having gained 2,023 of its 2,605 total yardage by rushing and Ohio State 1,646 of its 2,070.

Georgia, 13th in rushing, is making up its difference in passing where it continues to run third behind Columbia and Tulsa. Columbia has averaged 212 yards a game. Tulsa 209, and Georgia 184, with Maryland right behind at 182.

Tulsa Takes Honors

All around honors, however, go to little Tulsa, undefeated in five games. In addition to being third in total offense and second in passing, the Golden Hurricanes are first in total defense (allowing opponents an average of 84 yards a game), first in pass defense (permitting 25 yards a game), third in punting and 11th in rushing.

Tulsa's pass defense has been so good that the Hurricanes have intercepted more aerials (11) than their foes have completed (10). Harvard, in the last six years probably the nation's most consistently strong team against forwards also yielded only 25 yards, but the percentage of enemy pass completions has been greater (.314 to .167).

In total offense, Detroit trails Tulsa with a 95.5 average yield; Vanderbilt has given up 96.6 and Alabama and William and Mary each 108.

Texas came all the way from 11th place to take over the punting leadership from Tulsa. Texas in six games has averaged 41.55 yards in 31 kicks; Tennessee 41.44 in 43, Tulsa 41.26 in 23, Rice 40.73 in 37, and North Carolina 40.68 in 50.

Boston College held its position as top defensive team against rushing with an average yield of 25.5 yards, with Hardin-Simmons second, with 32.3, followed by Vanderbilt's 36 and Detroit's 40.

Figures on the first seven total offense leaders:

Missouri, 6 games, 2,023 yards rushing, 582 by passing, 2605 total; Georgia 6-1,480-1.107—2,587; Tulsa 5-1,049-1,048-2,097; Ohio State 5-1,646-424—2,070. Texas 6-1,739-590—2,329; Vanderbilt 5-1,347-559—1906; Boston College 4-1,021-379—1,400.

New U. S. Planes Harass Enemy

British Reveal the Deadly Work of Avenger and The Mustang.

NEW YORK.—The American Flying Fortress was much talked of in the country of its origin before it took part in RAF raids on the continent, but other American air apparatus have not received similar publicity here, torpedo-carrier Avenger and the fighting plane called the Mustang, for example.

The Avenger was mentioned as of the battle of Midway island by subsequent authorized dispatches from Washington, but there appears to have been nothing about the Mustang until London papers produced its picture with a guarded but sufficiently informing description.

From the same source it is learned that when the unprovoked attack on Pearl Harbor took place on December 7, the then unnamed Avenger was being tentatively made in parts "somewhere" in this country, while waiting for the navy's aeronautical board to approve the working model it was testing.

With the news of Pearl Harbor and without waiting for the official O. K., the manufacturers hastened to assemble the parts, to launch completed planes as rapidly as possible, and to name the apparatus, on account of the inspiring news mentioned, "The Avenger."

Interesting Feature.

The Times of London has two views of it—one of the port side and the other a view of the under part. Neither shows any floats or land gear. The caption says:

"Two views of the United States navy's newest torpedo bomber, the Gruman Avenger. These aircraft were used with success against the Japanese at the Battle of Midway Island, and an interesting feature of them is the provision of two backward-firing guns."

With the pictures in the Daily Telegraph is this added information: "Speed 240 miles per hour, radius 1,400 miles, weight of torpedo 2,000 pounds."

Much more is allowed to be told in regard to the Mustang, so far used by the RAF army co-operation command, and declared by the London Times air expert to be "the fastest machine in the world." In design, it is said to have been developed from the British Hurricane, which 18 months ago superseded the Gladiator as a fighter, but surpasses the British apparatus point by point—speed, radius, weight and mobility of armament. The writer in the Times says:

Powerfully Armed.

"Squadrons of the Command are now being re-equipped with one of the latest and best American fighters, the Mustang, which is fast and maneuverable at its operational heights and is powerfully armed.

"Compared with the early part of the war when Lysanders were used for spotting, the speed of RAF reconnaissance machines has now been increased enormously. The advantages of a fast machine for this purpose are obvious. It can get back news of enemy movements much more quickly and, because of its speed, it is much less likely to be intercepted.

"The Mustang has already proved its worth in low-flying attacks against land targets in occupied territory. Its powerful armament has played havoc with anti-aircraft posts, power and radio stations, goods trains and squads of enemy troops. The army co-operation pilots are delighted with their "new mount."

Dempsey's 'Long Count'

This occurred in the seventh round of the fight on September 22, 1927, in Soldier Field, Chicago, when Dempsey was seeking to regain the championship lost the previous year. The referee explained the delay in counting as due to the Illinois law making it mandatory that when a fighter was knocked down his opponent should retire at once to a neutral corner, and that the count must not proceed until he did. He contended that Dempsey was warned to do this but failed to do so. The referee was backed up in his action by the Illinois boxing commission.

New Construction Bolt Speeds Up Shipbuilding

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—John O. Phelps, Mare Island navy yard employee at Valejo, is the inventor of a new type of construction bolt, said by authorities at the yard to surpass in many ways the type of bolt now used to construct and repair ships so vital to the national war program.

Phelps explained that instead of the ordinary head of a bolt he has invented a "lock member" which takes its place. The member, one of two identical pieces, fits securely into a notch below the tapered head of the bolt.

"A quick tap of the workman's hammer, or any piece of metal, releases the bolt, and saves valuable time ordinarily used in unscrewing the nut by wrench," he said.

"Instead of the workman on the other side of the plate carrying many sizes of nuts, one would do. Bolts and lock members could be used over and over, more than 2,000 times, instead of the present rate of three or four.

"When you realize that each bolt costs 25 cents, this adds up to a big saving."

Dealer Pays and Pays For the Same Old Scrap

COLUMBUS, NEB.—Sam Kavich, scrap dealer, had to pay twice for this junk.

About 23 years ago the Columbus Light, Heat and Power company sold two engines to Kavich, who stripped them of removable parts and buried the remaining heavy pieces which he couldn't handle.

Scrap hunters, however, recently dug up the heavy pieces and sold them to Kavich again.

By Junius

Fundamentally the world has no need of a new order or a new plan, but only of an honest and courageous application of the historical Christian idea.

A Reminder

Returning kindness, like a loan,
Pays in after years;
But negligence will not atone
For favors in arrears.
—Ethel M. Dunham

A photographer who did excellent work and had just opened a studio in the town, had a case of his best work on display in front of his studio.

A farmer and his wife came by, and, after carefully examining the pictures, went inside the studio.

Farmer—We want the wife's picture took.

The photographer, after carefully arranging the lady for the picture, turned to the husband and said:

Photographer — Full length or bust?

Farmer (Giving a hearty laugh, slapping the photographer on the back)—All right make it full length, young fellow, and if she busts I'll pay for the machine.

SAVE AMERICA, while you save for yourself, BUY WAR BONDS.

A Mississippi River steamboat was stopped in the mouth of a tributary stream, owing to a dense fog. A passenger inquired of the captain the cause of the delay.

Passenger—But I can see the stars overhead.

Captain—Yes, but unless the boilers burst, we ain't going that way.

Sixty miles apart in California are the highest point, Mount Whitney, and the lowest, Death Valley desert, in the entire United States.

A preacher (stopping at a fish market)—Throw me a dozen of those best mackerel—one by one, high and fast.

Clerk—What on earth for?

Oddity of U. S. History

Of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence, 48 were born in this country, which of course, corresponds with the number of states in the Union today, although at the time of the signing there were only 13 colonies.

Friend—Why did you change daughter's name to Alice?

Mother—Because she is always wondering when she is going to land him.

Pastor (Sternly, at the end of one Sunday's sermon)—Jimmie, I've been paying you 25 cents to keep your uncle awake, and he was positively snoring today.

Jimmie—I know he went to sleep and I'm not charging you anything this week. Uncle Cuthbert paid me $1 to let him sleep.

HOW TO VOTE—Democracy is the rule of the majority, exercising respect for the rights of the minority. But democracy realizes its full possibilities only when its citizens vote their convictions, not their prejudices. Ballot casting is a serious responsibility.

Potatoes are native to South America but were introduced to North America by way of Europe.

Two of the Nation's Vital Needs

The "best dressed" man in the world today is probably the American soldier. Almost everything he wears is the result of long hours of skilled planning and work. He, together with the millions of other young Americans in our armed forces, is proud that the textile industry has gone to war.

This industry is working day and night to produce the millions of yards of fine wool, cotton and silk products for our fighting men.

As a result the great number of telephone calls that textile men are making to speed up production has contributed heavily to the record-breaking telephone traffic. Calls, such as these, are essential to our war effort. Because of them, you are asked to cooperate in your own use of the telephone.

Your Use of the Telephone in War Time

You can help us serve both you and the war effort if you will keep in mind these simple suggestions:

1. Don't make Long Distance telephone calls to important war-activity centers, particularly Washington and Chicago, unless your call is urgent—and directly connected with the war effort.
2. If you must make Long Distance calls, please do so during these Seven-Duty Hours—

Before 10 o'clock in the Morning
Around Noon
After 9 o'clock in the Evening

3. Call by number (station-to-station) wherever you can. And make your conversations brief.
4. If you have party-line service, please remember that others may be wanting to make or receive a call. Help make your party-line a good neighbor line—let's be considerate of the other fellow.

Fliers' Whim Given As Cause of Crash Near Palm Springs

Los Angeles, Oct. 29 (AP)—The whim that led two fliers to arrange a meeting high over a rugged mountain pass is blamed by a congressional investigating committee for the mid-air collision of an army bomber and an airliner near Palm Springs last Friday, resulting in death for all 12 aboard the latter plane.

The aerial rendezvous, said Rep. Jack Nichols, Oklahoma, committee chairman, was disclosed yesterday by 2nd Lt. W. N. Wilson, 25, pilot of the bomber, who is held for court-martial on manslaughter charges.

Nichols said Lieutenant Wilson testified that he had encountered the liner's co-pilot, L. F. Reppert, at a party in Los Angeles the night before the crash, and that Wilson had arranged to time his takeoff from the ferrying command base at Long Beach, Calif., so that he would meet the eastbound commercial transport in the vicinity of San Gorgonio Pass.

The meeting took place, the planes collided and the transport an American Airliner, crashed in flames.

Nichols' statement came a few hours after the army, from its Long Beach ferrying command headquarters, had announced that formal military charges of manslaughter had been placed against Lieutenant Wilson, of West Los Angeles. The bomber's co-pilot, Staff Sgt. Robert Leicht, also is under arrest, but the army said nothing of any charges against him.

The Civil Aeronautics Board also launched an inquiry into the crash. Capt. Archer Fitzgerald, Fort Worth, Tex., American Airlines chief pilot, testified both pilot and co-pilot of the airliner had 27 hours off duty before starting the trip. Pilot of the airliner was Capt. Charles F. Pedley, veteran of 14 years with the company and a pilot for 20 years.

Bresnick, New York, against the U. S. Vitamin Corp., New York, has been concluded here, with decision reserved by Judge Alfred C. Coxe. They claimed that the corporation manufactured without license a medicinal preparation on which they hold patent rights. Damages in an amount to be determined by the court are asked.

HAIR TONIC PROPELS CAR

Hair tonic is but just one of the many gasoline substitutes being used in Europe today, a London survey reveals. Utilization of the scalp vigorizor to propel an auto is attributed to a Frenchman. A Swedish baker collected alcohol for motor use from the fumes of his bakery. Grapes also have been used to provide alcohol for autos, while city or compressed gas and gasogene, or fumes from burners stoked with briquettes, are being used in South Africa.

Legislative Manual Is Being Distributed

Albany, Oct. 29—The first copies of what will be a heavy distribution of the 1942 Legislative Manual were mailed today to members of the Legislature, state officials and newspapers. Within the next few weeks, Secretary of State Michael F. Walsh, under whose direction the Manual is compiled, will exert every effort to speed the mailing of the book and meet the demand for copies which are already reaching the Department of State.

The Manual, familiar to those who are interested in the administrative and personnel of state offices, is a compendium of information relating to the national government, state departments, the Legislature, Judiciary, and major county offices. Its political section lists the membership of the offices of major political parties, national, state and county; and its tabulation of the votes cast for statewide officers produces the answer in many a political discussion.

In this year's Manual, there will be found a list of the Federal agencies directing the National War Effort; the New York State War Council, its organization and purposes in the mobilization and utilization of state resources in the war program; the State War Ballot Commission, authorized by the Legislature to provide the means of voting the state's electorate in service; the Post-War Public Works Planning Commission, created to keep pace with the progress of design in the planning of post-war projects.

He Blows Nose, Eye Falls

Mrs. Theodor Oxholm, president of the Public Health Nursing Committee of Ulster county, presided at the meeting. Annual reports were made from the 14 towns. Cooperation in the war civilian defense projects was reported. Many of the towns have made arrangements for emergency hospitals, cots and care. Loan closets have been completed and in some of the smaller communities the work is done in conjunction with the Red Cross units.

During the morning periods several discussion groups were conducted on the general organization of the committees and their work. The five forums were as follows: presidents' group, leader, Mrs. Theodor Oxholm; new committees, leaders, Mrs. Hubert Brink and Miss Anne Cassidy; Nurses Aid, leaders, Mrs. Reginald Every and Miss Marie Deyo; ways and means, leaders, Mrs. Louise Miller, Miss Hilda Hart; publicity, leaders, Mrs. Walter Perret and Mrs. Marion Richards.

Ulster's Scenic Wonders

The beauties of Ulster county which nature so bountifully provides, was depicted on the screen through slides shown by Harry Halverson at the Rotary Club Luncheon Wednesday. A hobby of the local architect, he has devoted time to secure a remarkable collection of scenic wonders of the county and of the Catskills. The countryside in the different seasons of the year was portrayed and disclosed ability on the part of the photographer.

Treasury Official Says Raises Not Necessarily Out

Sullivan Says Program Offers Many Chances for Increases Due to Promotions

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—The Treasury and War Labor Board promised swift action today on their joint task of stabilizing wages and salaries, and a Treasury official made the point that raises for the average citizen are not necessarily out for the duration.

John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary of the Treasury, told a press conference discussion of the Treasury's part that the program offered many opportunities for increases by promotions, merit increases, etc., but that most of these would have to be decided individually by the Internal Revenue Commission.

"When in doubt," he said, "better consult the commission or some internal revenue office."

Decentralized administrative machinery will be operating within 10 to 15 days, the War Labor Board said, to handle its part of the work—control of wages and salaries up to $5,000 in the case of employes represented by a labor organization or those not employed in an executive, administrative or professional capacity.

The Treasury has been assigned control of all other salaries. Sullivan said complete regulations covering most cases would be ready in about two weeks.

A formula for limiting salaries to a maximum of $25,000 a year, after reduction of federal income taxes, customary charitable contributions, life insurance premiums and fixed obligations, must also be worked out by the treasury.

Sullivan noted that state income taxes may not be deducted in arriving at the $25,000 net.

Dividends to employes will not be included in their salaries, he added, and some form of small customary company bonuses may also be exempt. Bonuses based on accomplishments of employes, however, will be considered part of their salaries, unless otherwise decided in individual cases by the commission.

Sullivan said there was now no regulation which would prevent an employe from leaving one job for a better-paid job of the same type, but added that this might be covered by future regulations.

He reported that seven regional offices of the Internal Revenue Bureau would be set up within ten days at Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and New York. Additional offices—from two to six more—are to be announced later.

Convoy Men Take Ordeals Casually In Arctic Region

"We were lucky. We had a mate who knew what it was all about and we had a good navigator. We had plenty of supplies and cigarettes on the boat and that helped a lot—especially the cigarettes.

"We had a good wind and were able to sail on a direct course for two full days. That saved a lot of rowing."

This calm tale of heroism under torturous conditions can be matched a thousand times by the U. S. Navy gun crews and merchant seamen who risk death constantly from bombs, bullets and ice to deliver armaments and supplies to the hard-pressed Russian armies.

Some convoys have had to pay a price for the attempt to get through, while recent ones have had notable successes against the German air force and submarines.

But almost to a man the survivors of bombings and sinkings in the Arctic expressed a warm desire to continue the battle—there or in whatever other ocean an assignment took them.

The most blood-chilling story from the convoy survivors came from Ensign William Roy Kirby of Coffeyville, Kas., in relating his experiences of September 13 when German torpedo bombers made a mass attack.

"We were the leading ship in the convoy's starboard column," he said. "The leading ship in another column blew up with flames shooting up about 300 feet—and then we got it. A torpedo hit in the hatch where we were carrying ammunition."

Two more torpedoes crashed into the vessel, which went down in three minutes. All had to take to the water and swim for it for only one liferaft was launched.

"I dived for that one," Kirby said, "but when I came up it wasn't there. I remember thinking I might become too numb to tie a knot so I wrapped a line they threw me round my wrist about eight times. I felt a pressure on the rope and then I don't remember more."

By that time he had been in the water, estimated to have been about 28 degrees, for 40 minutes.

"Later they told me that someone on the rescue ship climbed down and grabbed me around the shoulders and pulled me aboard," he said. "I sure thought I was a goner."

The last thing that Lieut (J. G.) Stanley C. Dalbec of New York city did before abandoning the ship on which he was serving was to go below for "lassie," a little brown dog. Two torpedoes had struck the vessel and it sank rapidly.

Men serving with him included Joseph F. Lynch, Framingham, Mass.; Leon T. Baldewicz, Shelton, Conn., and Allard I. Malphrus, Lynbrook, N. Y.

U. S. Fighters Hit Hard at Axis

10 Attacks Reported

Red Star said tank-led German troops attacked ten times, charging into a gap between two factories, and were finally stalled by a murderous crossfire of machine-guns after losing five battalions killed or wounded.

Soviet dispatches acknowledged that the Germans were gaining in their new drive down the land bridge to the middle east after they had been blocked in the Mozdok sector and thrown back in the battle for Tuapse, on the Black Sea coast, in the northwest Caucasus.

Fighting in primeval, snow-clad forests and on slopes threatened by avalanches, German and Russian ski troops met in sharp skirmishes high in the mountains while caravans of horses and donkeys floundered to the front with food and munitions.

Soviet reports said blizzards had been raging in the Caucasus mountains and that bitter cold had now set in. Many German soldiers said to have been frozen to death in caves.

Difficulties of the campaign were emphasized by a Russian dispatch reporting that Red Army artillerymen carried their heavy guns 10 miles forward across territory impassable for animals.

In the 66-day-old siege of Stalingrad, the Soviet command admitted that the Germans scored another 200-yard gain in the city's northside factory sector yesterday, but declared the Nazis sacrificed 2,000 troops in this limited advance—100 dead men for each yard won.

At noon today, Red Army headquarters said German infantrymen pressing the attack in the factory district had been repulsed and thrown back to their initial positions.

Soviet gains were reported on both flanks of the shattered Volga metropolis as Marshal Semeon Timoshenko sought to relieve the city's hard-pressed garrison.

Height Is Attacked

In the north, Red Army troops attacked a height along the 40-mile corridor between the Don and Volga rivers and wiped out two enemy infantry companies; while on the southern flank the Russians were credited with destroying seven blockhouses and several dugouts in a trench raid.

Southwest Pacific—Dispatches from the South Seas battle zone said the fight for the Solomon Islands was spreading out over a vast area as a powerful Japanese armada of battleships, aircraft carriers, heavy cruisers and submarines was reported moving eastward to menace other American positions.

While U. S. Troops and planes battled savagely to hold Guadalcanal air base, superior enemy seaborne forces were mobilizing at the approaches to American bases in the New Hebrides and Fiji Islands, threatening vital Allied communications between the Hawaiian Islands and Australia.

Japanese sea and air attacks have already been made on American positions in the New Hebrides, which lie immediately southeast of the Solomons.

Dispatches from Pearl Harbor said it was the first time since the Philippines campaign that the Japanese had massed such superiority in power and declared there was no doubt it was an all-out attempt to destroy American footholds in the South Pacific.

On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Australian troops continued to press the Japanese back toward their north coast invasion base in a drive across the Owen Stanley Mountains.

As the whole South Seas campaign flamed toward a climax, Gen. MacArthur himself sounded an indirect appeal for a unified command over the embattled area.

At his headquarters in Australia, Gen. MacArthur declared that he had "no political ambitions whatsoever" and planned to retire to private life once more if he survived the war, and then he added significantly:

"I have noted the statement . . that 'political Washington was largely responsible for the establishment of two separate commands in the Pacific, partly because of the conservative opposition which launched the MacArthur-for-president campaign.'

"I started as a soldier and a shall finish as one," he said.

For having lost 719½ working hours in the first six months of this year, William Mogie, 19-year-old shipyard worker, was sentenced in Jarrow, England, to one month's hard labor.

Spain is estimated to have less food than at any time during its Civil War.

Dr. Heiser Says 46,000 War Workers Are Killed

Boston, Oct. 29 (AP).—Dr. Victor G. Heiser, medical consultant and author, said today that 42,600 American war production workers had been killed, either on or off the job, since Pearl Harbor.

"If to this you add the number of injured," he declared, "the record is this: 11,000 workers in war industries killed or injured on and off the job every day since Pearl Harbor. This in spite of industry's best efforts to forestall every possibility for accidents on the job."

"If present estimates are correct," he continued, "121,000,000 man days—or 968,000,000 man hours—will be lost to vital war work this year alone because of absence from the job from all causes."

Dr. Heiser, medical consultant to the committee on healthful working conditions of the National Association of Manufacturers, gave his figures in an address prepared for a conference sponsored by the associated industries of Massachusetts.

Marines Reach Britain

London, Oct. 29 (AP) — United States marine units in the British Isles have been reinforced by the arrival of additional contingents under the command of Col. William T. Marine units have been training in conjunction with the royal marines for some time.

W.S.C.S. To Conduct Service This Evening

Methodist Women all over the world are observing the Week of Prayer and Self Denial; the second series of services since the unification of all Methodist churches.

This evening the Woman's Society for Christian Service will have charge of the mid-week prayer service at Clinton Avenue Methodist Church. Mrs. H. A. Miner will conduct the service and will be assisted by the officers and other members in a round table discussion. The activities of the Women of Methodism are world wide; however, this particular program will cover work being done at Wood Junior College, Mathiston, Miss., Crandon Institute, Montevideo, Uruguay, Granbery Institute, Juiz de Fora, Brazil, Bennett Junior College, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Wesley Community House, Oklahoma City, Okla.

The meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock is for the public and all members of the church and congregation are urged to attend.

Republican Club Card Party

The card party sponsored by the Women's Republican Club Tuesday evening was a decided success with tables arranged to fill the Crystal Room and the Junior Dining room. During the evening Frederick Stang, assistant district attorney, introduced the Republican candidates and Roscoe Ellsworth, chairman of the county, who brought greetings to the party.

Ballads and Literature Are Topics of Atharhacton Club

Atharhacton Club met yesterday at the home of Miss Ethel M. Hull, Smith avenue. The topic for the day was "American Ballads and Folk Literature," and the paper was presented by Miss Hull.

She explained that ballads are more apt to thrive in communities where there are no radios and means of communication for the people will then rely upon their own forms of entertainments. The ballad is usually the product of a group of singers rather than one person.

In the southern mountains there is a group of Scotch-Irish settlers who because of their secluded settlements have kept alive the ballads and folk literature brought from the old country. These mountaineers together with the Negroes have contributed many original songs many of which mark happenings in their communities.

Miss Hull also discussed the spirituals, work songs and camp meeting hymns. She felt that the rhythm and mood of the songs were more important than the words and must be sung to be appreciated. She spoke of the cowboy ballads, those of the Erie Canal days and also played and sang several examples of the songs.

The club will meet next Wednesday with Miss Lillias Nelson, 21 Main street. She will present a review of the book, "Lord of Alaska."

W. C. T. U. Meets at Home Of Mrs. Charles Niese

The Ulster Park-Port Ewen Women's Christian Temperance Union held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Niese, Wednesday afternoon. The subject for discussion was "Steps Toward Solution of Alcohol Problems." Readings were given by several members regarding the subject. It was decided that one most important "step" is education of the people concerning the real nature of alcohol and its influence on mind and body.

At the business meeting, the following were appointed as directors of departments by the president, Mrs. Leslie Herring: peace, Mrs. Floyd Beesmer; press, Mrs. John Lynn; Sunday School, Mrs. William F. Cole; temperance and missions, Mrs. E. H. Wheeler; Christian citizenship, Mrs. Leslie Herring; flower mission, Mrs. Etta Corbett; scientific temperance, Mrs. Clarence Wells; temperance publications, Mrs. S. T. Van Aken.

Members present were Mrs. Leslie Herring, Mrs. William Cole, Mrs. S. T. Van Aken, Miss Anna Terpening, Mrs. Clarence Wells, Mrs. William F. Cole of Ulster Park; Mrs. Etta Corbett of Kingston, Mrs. Elvin Hutching, Mrs. Floyd Beesmer, Mrs. Joseph Snyder, Mrs. George Berens, Mrs. Maude Stratton, Mrs. E. H. Wheeler, Mrs. B. T. Van Aken, Mrs. Tillie Osborne, Mrs. Phoebe Ostrander, Mrs. Charles Niese, Mrs. John Lynn of Port Ewen; Mrs. McClean of Esopus and a visitor, Mrs. Frank Munn of Poughkeepsie.

Honored Following Enlistment

A party was held, Thursday, October 22, for Henry Fisher, Jr., who enlisted in the United States Army. He left Monday morning for Fort Dix, N. J., where he is now stationed. Leaders Attend Training School

Freeman Photos

Representatives of the Eastern District of Home Bureau and 4-H Clubs are meeting at School No. 6, for a three-day training school in home improvements. The meeting was opened yesterday with about 30 leaders and agents in attendance. This is the first time that the two groups have united for training and also the first time the school has been here. Previously the leaders would go to Ithaca for the training but this year the meetings are being held in the districts to save the traveling.

Shown in the top photograph left to right are Mrs. Katherine Wisseman, Mrs. Nancy Roman, professor of Household Arts at Cornell University, instructor; Mrs. David Du Bois and Mrs. Frederick Hessinger. They are working in the group which is remodeling out-of-date and unused furniture into useful modern styles. The group in the lower picture with Mrs. Charlotte Robinson also professor of household arts at Cornell, is repairing furniture by fixing broken springs, gluing sections, and general repair work. These classes are being trained for leaders in the home units which will stress the importance of care of furniture at the present time.

Minister of Commerce Scully is called on to finance a wheat harvest of 153,000,000 bushels. The project is under full government control. Milk Strike May Hit New York Soon

Independent Group Calls Milk Delivery Losing Business Under O.P.A.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Joseph O. Eastlack, secretary of the New York Metropolitan Milk Distributors, says that if the delivery strike threatened by the Independent Milk Marketers, Inc., materializes, there will be no way for other companies to fill the gap.

Eastlack agreed yesterday with Isadore Eisenstein, president of the independent group of milk companies, that the distributors would operate at "considerably less loss" if they sold their milk to manufacturers of milk products instead of selling it in fluid form under the current price setup.

Eisenstein announced Tuesday his group would strike in a "week or 10 days" unless the federal milk subsidy were withdrawn and the O.P.A. price ceilings removed or raised.

Eastlack, a vice-president of The Borden Company, declared there was no profit either way, but the companies represented by Eisenstein would gain financially by withdrawing from the fluid milk business.

He asserted, however, that Borden's would continue to sell fluid milk because the company regarded it as a "responsibility to the public." He added that he expected other companies in his organization to follow suit, but that it was up to each to decide.

Borden's Eastlack said, would be unable to increase its fluid milk sales if the independents withdrew because at this season the company's regular fluid milk customers required all the milk Borden farmers produced in the New York milkshed. He said he thought other companies were in the same position.

Eisenstein said the independents would pasteurize "a couple of cans a day" to meet a technicality whereby health department licenses expire if dealers stop operating.

He scoffed at the possibility of city action, declaring:

"What can the health department do to me? They can't compel me to sell milk if I don't want to. And there is no law compelling a man to stay in business if he loses money."

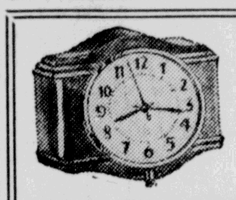

Eisenstein said small dealers had "lost all the money they can" in the squeeze between higher farm prices ordered by the Department of Agriculture and the O.P.A. ceiling prices.

RETURNING RING AFTER BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

It maybe that her reason for wanting to keep the ring was because he asked for it. At least that was in my mind when I read the following letter: "I'd like your opinion of a man who could ask for the return of an engagement ring when he decides to have a change of heart about girls? Do you think the jilted one should make it easy for him by meekly complying? Naturally if a girl and man agree to disagree she should be willing to hand back his ring, but I'm referring to a case where the break was caused by the man alone."

It is difficult to imagine that a man would ask for the ring, but on the other hand it is more difficult to understand why he should have to ask for it. The first thing a girl is expected to want to do is to send back the ring as fast as possible.

Fourth Not In Direct Line

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband is John H. White. Our youngest son, now in the armed forces, is the junior. A year ago our eldest son had a son and named him John H. White, 3rd. Now our youngest son—the junior—is expecting a child, and they are hoping very hard for a boy. His wife insists that it must be named for my son, the child's father. This will mean the fourth John H. White. Is this the suffix that should be used? I've never seen it and therefore don't know.

Answer: This is unusually complicated because John H. White, Jr., is not the oldest son. Let us say that the oldest son is named Arthur and his son is therefore the collateral descendant of his uncle, who is Junior. Arthur's son should have been called, and should now be called, "2nd" (which means nephew of the man of identical name). The new baby who is the son of Junior should be called "3rd." Then if "2nd" should sometime have a boy, he also will be "3rd" and then the only way to separate them would be to give him a different middle name.

Remembering Those Who Serve Us

Dear Mrs. Post: In what manner shall the dining-room waitress and in what manner the chambermaid be given their tips when the end of our two-weeks' stay is up? The hotel is an American plan one.

Answer: You give them each a tip the last time you see them. You give the waitress hers just before you leave the dining-room. You call the chambermaid just before you leave and give her your tip. If she isn't findable at the time, it is best to put the amount in a sealed envelope addressed to her and leave it at the desk. If you leave it lying on the bureau it may very well be found by someone who has done little for you, and the one who gave you especially good service would receive nothing.

So many requests have been made for copies of Mrs. Post's article on details concerned with training camps (behavior of visitors and presents for the men), that it has been printed as a leaflet and will be sent to anyone who sends a self-addressed three-cent stamped envelope to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

General MacArthur Denies Any Political Ambitions

attributing the two separate commands in the Pacific chiefly to "political Washington" and a "MacArthur-for-president campaign," the 62-year-old leader of United Nations forces in Australia disavowed any "political ambitions whatsoever."

From his headquarters last night (Washington time), MacArthur declared that any contrary suggestion "must be regarded as merely amiable gestures of goodwill dictated by friendship."

"I started as a soldier and I shall finish as one," he said. "The only hope and ambition I have in the world is for victory for our cause in the war."

This, topping louder and louder demands from Capitol Hill for better teamwork in the Pacific war theatre, was interpreted by some sources here as at least an indirect appeal to eliminate any political considerations that might be hampering his direction of the war effort in that part of the world.

These sources pointed out that such a statement from a commanding officer in the field was highly unusual and was almost bound to provoke some decisive action.

The congressional protests became more vocal this week after Vice Admiral Robert H. Ghormley was replaced as commander of the Southern Pacific area embracing the Solomon islands by Vice Admiral William H. Halsey.

There was no explanation for the change but it was recalled that United States naval operations in that area had cost three cruisers, the aircraft carrier Wasp, five destroyers and four other ships.

Recently, Rep., Wadsworth (R-NY) observed "there is an inevitable lack of teamwork when matters common both to the army and navy are handled separately," and joined representatives Maas (R-Minn) and Dirksen (R-Ill) in suggesting creation of a congressional "high command" to coordinate military legislation.

Rep. Costello (D-Calif) has contended that the Solomons battle "is crying out for redress" and deplored the arrangement under which MacArthur was given command over Australia, New Guinea and islands to the north of Australia, while Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is in general command of much of the rest of the Pacific.

Maas, ranking member of the house naval committee who returned recently from a four-months tour of duty in the Pacific as a flying colonel of marines, asserted "there is an imperative need for unity and cooperative action between all branches of the armed forces." He proposes consolidation of all fighting services into a single unit.

The newspaper comment that drew MacArthur's statement was written by the Christian Science Monitor's Washington correspondent, Joseph C. Harsch, who remarked that "so great has been the dissatisfaction with progress in the Solomons that Washington opinion has veered somewhat away from its strong anti-MacArthur bias."

"Political Washington," he wrote, "was largely responsible for setting up two separate American commands in the far Pacific, and it did this partly because of jealousy of MacArthur's great public popularity and partly because the conservative opposition press launched a 'MacArthur-for-president' campaign without any encouragement from the general himself."

Bennett Charges Votes Sought on Intolerance Basis

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—John J. Bennett, Jr., says that Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent for the governorship, is campaigning like a demagogue, trying to be "all things to all men."

The Democratic nominee told a Queens rally and a statewide radio audience last night that Republican Party workers were distributing pamphlets upstate to gain votes for Dewey "on the basis of religious intolerance."

Bennett, who renewed his demand that Dewey declare his stand on the prohibition issue, declared that Republican committee members had distributed two pamphlets to voters at an Elmira rally Tuesday at which Dewey denounced the author, the Rev. O. R. Miller, as a professional bigot.

He added, however, that Dewey could have prevented that distribution which went on "right under his nose."

"Now, Mr. Dewey," the attorney general asserted, "since you dare not answer my question as to whether you are a wet or a dry, I am going to show again to the people of this state that as late as yesterday your breast-beating denunciation of the libelous and bigoted publication of the 'Civic Bulletin,' and of the publisher x x x was in its very essence a falsehood.

"I am going to do this, Mr. Dewey, by quoting from the account of your visit to Elmira yesterday and of your meeting there last night, as it appeared in the columns of 'The Elmira Advertiser' of today.

"It is pertinent to the case against you that 'The Elmira Advertiser' is owned and published by Frank Gannett, vice-chairman of the Republican national committee and one of your supporters in this campaign.

"Referring to the pamphlets x x x 'The Advertiser' reports as follows: 'Dewey, in his statement, termed Miller a cheap professional bigot and added, 'I denounce and despise this person and all his works.'

'There Is Your Statement'

"There, Mr. Dewey, is your statement as it appeared in 'The Elmira Advertiser.' You spoke there last night in Federation Hall, 24 hours after I made known the distribution of these pamphlets by your ministry of propaganda, and 12 hours after you claimed you knew nothing about the circulation of these scurrilous sheets by your upstate emissaries.

"x x x. You could not have helped knowing about this and you could have stopped it if you wished."

Bennett said 'The Advertiser' carried this paragraph: "'Despite Dewey's denouncement of the Rev. Mr. Miller, copies of the Civic Bulletin were distributed by local Republican committee members with other campaign literature at the door after last night's rally at the Federation building.'

"There, Mr. Dewey, in the cold black type of a supporting newspaper you are convicted of tolerating the distribution of October and November pamphlets of the Civic Bulletin right under your nose.

"The facts convict you of hypocrisy and falsehood."

Bennett said this "single paragraph of its poison" was in the bulletin: "'It is said that the report comes from over the state that a greater number of Catholic Sisters have registered this year to vote than at any year since 1928, when Al Smith was a candidate for President. Al Smith has recently come out strongly for Mr. Bennett for governor. It is even hinted that these sisters in some cities may have registered many times'."

The attorney general said this was "the least offensive item in the November pamphlet," adding: "I leave it to your imagination what over scurrilous and lying statements are contained in those pamphlets which the Dewey ministry of propaganda has distributed in order to gain votes on the basis of religious intolerance."

Bennett declared that Dewey was "campaigning for the presidency in 1944" and wanted "to stand before the south as a supporter of prohibition to get the support of the delegates of the dry states."

"To do that," Bennett continued, "he would not be against a Sunday closing law so as to use it for gaining dry delegates.

"But if he did not also have on the record something sarcastic about the poll tax bill, he might lose some of those southern delegates. That is why he is sarcastic about my forthright stand against the poll tax."

Democratic State Chairman James A. Farley told the rally that on the basis of polls conducted in New York city Bennett's plurality here would be at least 335,000, while upstate would give Dewey a plurality or less than 250,000.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, who is well known among upstate farmers, was scheduled to speak in favor of Bennett tonight over a statewide radio hookup.

Fire Damages Kitchen

A pot stove that had been disconnected from the boiler, set fire to the flooring of the kitchen at 1:57 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the home of James DeCicco at 294 Fourth avenue. The fire department was called on a still alarm and extinguished the fire with chemicals. At 12 o'clock last night the firemen were called to fight a fire in the Sterling street dump, and worked all night before the fire was extinguished.

Ex-Convict Is Guilty Of First Degree Murder

Miami, Fla., Oct. 29 (AP)—Vincent J. Christy, 37, ex-convict on parole from a New York prison, was convicted today of first degree murder for one of four slayings last July 17.

The circuit court jury verdict, without recommendation, provides for the death penalty under Florida law for the death of Irving Leopold, 37, meat market operator.

Christy denied from the witness stand that he shot Leopold; Mrs. Leopold; her son, Stephen, 6, and a motorist, Ralph J. Morin, Jr.

He admitted signing a confession which told of a desire to kill Leopold because of an old grudge, but said he did so "for the simple reason I would rather burn than go back to prison" to complete a term from which he had been paroled.

Lord Howard Is Prisoner

London, Oct. 29 (AP) — Lord Howard, who succeeded to the title of Baron Howard of Penrith in 1939 from his father, who had been known in Washington as Sir Esme Howard while he was ambassador to the United States, is a prisoner of war in Germany, it was disclosed today. He was a captain in the royal artillery and was wounded at the time of his capture.

N. B. A. Rates Conn, Pastor 'Logical Contenders' for Crown Held by Joe Louis

Abe Greene States List Is Good During War; Titles of Service Men 'Frozen'

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Private Billy Conn and Bob Pastor are the "logical contenders" for Corporal Joe Louis' heavyweight championship crown, the National Boxing Association reported today in announcing that top-ranking fighters now in the army services would be placed in a special "honorary class."

Abe J. Greene, N.B.A. president, said that in December the association would announce plans for listing "duration champions and contenders."

These ratings, Green declared, will be based on a policy of "freezing" for the duration the titles of men in the service. He added that such a system would prevent "injustice" to champions now in uniform and would prevent appropriation of boxing crowns by self-declared champions or by dictum of any individual athletic commission.

In again listing Conn as the No. 2 heavyweight, the N.B.A. made no reference to the scheduled Louis-Conn scrap of three weeks ago, which Secretary of War Stimson cancelled.

Pastor Is Ignored

The N.B.A. ranking Pastor as the leading "out-of-the-service" heavyweight, ignoring both his recent defeat at the hands of Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland and Bob's announcement three days ago that he was retiring from the ring and planned to enter some branch of the armed forces.

The N.B.A. explained that Bivins' win over Pastor was registered after the October 19 deadline for contests to figure in the rankings. Bivins was listed as the No. 2 light heavyweight.

Melio Bettina was placed at the top of a group of five "outstanding boxers" in the heavyweight class, but the N.B.A. noted that his army service probably would prevent any ring activity on his part "which leaves competition principally in the hands of Lee Savold and Tami Mauriello," who are booked to meet tomorrow night.

Manuel Ortiz, whose victory over Lou Salica has been recognized by the N.B.A. was ranked the No. 1 bantamweight for the only change in title classification in the new ratings.

Henry Armstrong, the old "perpetual motion" specialist, came back to gain the fourth slot among the N.B.A.-ranked welterweights, coming behind Freddie Cochrane, Ray Robinson and Fritzie Zivic. Armstrong whipped Zivic in San Francisco last night in the most significant step of an amazing comeback campaign.

The ratings:

Heavyweights: Champion Louis, army. Logical contenders, Conn, army; Pastor, New York. Outstanding boxers, Bettina, army; Savold, Des Moines, Ia.; Mauriello, New York; Roscoe Toles, Michigan; Pat Valentino, coast guard. Honorable mention, Turkey Thomson, California; Buddy Bear, California; Tony Musto, Illinois; Connie Nordon, California; Harry Bobo, Pennsylvania; Buddy Scott, Texas.

Light heavyweights: Champion, Gus Lesnevich, coast guard. Logical contenders, Bivins and Ezzard Charles, Ohio. Outstanding boxers, Billy Soose, navy; Tommy Tucker, navy; Freddie Mills, England; Ken Overlin, navy; Anton Christoforidis, Greece.

'Red' Cochrane Champs

Return of Regular Back Gives Maroons More Power on the Line for Middie Game

Coach Ted Conwicke received some heartening news yesterday when it was announced that Leland Boice, regular fullback for his Kingston High School football team, would be ready for starting action Saturday. Kingston travels to Middletown on that day for the second 1942 DUSO League tilt.

However, the return of Boice doesn't mean his return to the secondary where he started operations this year. After his backfield of Will Harrell, "Rocky" Maxson, Potter and Jimmy Dugan played acceptably well against Poughkeepsie last week Coach Conwicke had other plans for Boice.

Saturday when the Maroons battle Johnny Bateman's strong Middies, Boice will be stationed at the guard slot in hopes of giving the local eleven additional line strength which it will need. Boice is a good blocker and his presence on the first line of defense should give the Maroons plenty of power.

Meanwhile, Coach Conwicke, who has watched his team go under three overwhelming scores this year said yesterday, "I don't think the people realize that we have boys on our squad around the ages of 15 and 16. It seems pretty young but with the draft now taking younger boys, our main hope is to start with these youngsters this year and keep them in readiness for 1943." A lot of time has been spent with these young gridders and in all probability the 1943 football campaign will find Kingston with a young but a somewhat experienced team, more so than the present outfit.

The Mayorettes, one of the up and coming teams in Emerick's Ladies' Bowling League, are pictured above. Although not in the upper standings of the league to date, the Mayorettes have a strong roster of some of the best female keglers in the city and critics point out that the club will soon hit its stride and establish itself as one of the teams to beat for league honors before the 1942-43 season comes to a close. In the above picture, reading from left to right, are Evelyn Jones, a member of the great bowling family of Jones; Mrs. Reta Frederick, Mrs. Kay Robertson, Doris Harvey and Madaline Schline. All are veteran keglers. Incidentally, after The Freeman photographer snapped this photo Tuesday night, the Mayorettes went out on the alleys and won two games. The Mayorettes have uniforms of red, white and blue, and are sponsored by Mayor William F. Edelmuth.

Federation League

In the Federation Bowling League at the "Y" alleys this week Austin Hitchcock of the Fair Street bowling team blasted out high triple of 556 on a string of 190, 220 and 146. Fair Street won three from the First Baptists. Vic Kane had a 382 series for the losers.

High single honors went to Dave Harris who bowls with the Port Ewen outfit. Dave poured out a 224 single and wound up with a neat 554 triple, only two pins minus Hitchcock's mark. Harris' efficient kegling brought the Port Ewen team to three wins in a row over the Comforters. The Rev. Russell Damstra bowled a 479 triple for the Comforters.

The Ahavath Israel combine won three from St. Johns behind Kessler's 205 single. Burr captured high triple for the losers with a 532. However, it wasn't enough to turn the side. Irv Adner had 499 for the winners.

Catholic League Results

Ed Schupp of St. Peters, who stays on here to keep up the good work of his brother, Leo Schupp, took honors in the Catholic Bowling League last night at the Central Rec alleys. Ed had a 221 single and 559 series as St. Peters won one game from the St. Marys squad. Leo, in winding up his bowling activities before joining the U. S. Army Saturday, had a 124 and 161 for a 285 double.

F. Herschenroder's 205 single and 528 triple failed to help St. Anns as that club lost two games to the Immaculate Conception bowlers. F. Rylewicz had a 522 triple for the winners while S. Wojdan chipped in with a 203 single.

St. Peters of Rosendale copped two from the Knights even though "Bun" Rourke for the K. C. team had a high 205 single and 489 series. L. Yonnetti's 474 cluster was high for the winners.

Emerick's Ladies' Jottings

Emerick's Ladies' League Tuesday night at Emerick's Recreation alleys resulted in Williams Lake taking three games from Reinas as Evelyn Provenzano blasted a 215 single and 538 series to top high for the winners. Some think Miss Jones' good luck charm didn't help her while it was the opinion of others that on the Jersey side hits it worked . . . They say that Sally Kuehn is trying out signaling for the Navy. She converted the 1-3-10-8 split. Captain Phil Roosa made the 5-6 and 8-10 rolling a neat series of 508 to aid the winners make a 2233 series. When looking for bowling instruction ask Phil. She's consistent with 176. What is Alyce Riseley of the Reinas doing? Practicing for a try-out to be a cheer leader? Alyce rolled high 167 and 472. Helen Smart came through on those one pins and when it comes to bash. Tillie Clearwater sure can make it. Ethel Wetzel made the 1-3-10-8 while Bea Coddington must have been making notes for modesty is quite apparent . . . Schwenks took two from Standards as Captain Kubicek made her spares and if her soldier son gives the Japs the same type of cracks, the Nips will be no more . . . Lillian Buswell and H. Hayes ran into plenty of splits. Annabelle Markle made the 7-8-10 and can certainly clear off her corner pins as does Helen Styles . . . Rose Chamberland made the 3-5-8 and 3-5-8-7 split and came through with 168 and a 449 series for the losers. Although Ruth Bliss slid, sat and strut and stamped she seemed to run into hard luck. Could it be the soldier husband that has Ruth off her stride? and made the 1-5-8-9 and 5-9-7. Doris Wilson just couldn't make them count. The Standards are clicking and anything may happen. The Minasians took three from Elkins as Marilyn Minasian made the 2-3-8 and B. Hyatt rolled high 183 and 445. V. Carpenelli is showing up more like her old form. Elka Reinas came through like a regular. Elkins came out in new uniforms. Mary Williams rolled high 176. Pat Reinas made her splits count and when it comes to mix-ups, Cora Emerick can make them. Mr. Engels, scorekeeper, drew attention to an unusual split on 5-6 alleys, it being the 8-9-10 . . . The Mayorettes in new red, white and blue uniforms took two from Kingston Coal. Captain Kay Robertson came through with four strikes in a row in her second game and some of the girls are wondering if the new hair-do, which is very becoming, has anything to do with Kay's breezy bowling . . . Although Madaline Schline seemed to be missing them she came through with a 400 series . . . Doris Harvey had four splits in five frames and converted the 5-6-10. I. Malone for Kingston Coal took honors with a 158 and 410. M. McCardle made the 7-5-9-10. C. Bannon the 3-5-7 and G. Breitfeller the 2-4-6-10. Gert also filled in her last frame to win the odd game . . . Becks took three from the Ertels as Captain Chris Wilson rolled high three of 435 and Loretta Miller a 162 single. Mary Callahan high 137 and R. Tiano's 348 for the losers. Phalen & Cahill took two from the Alpines as Rosemary Wiegand anchor for his squad, came through as usual when most needed to take the second game. Marge Trowbridge is trying hard for a 400 series, getting 397 triples for the last couple of weeks. Marge made the 7-9 . . . Who on the coal squad had their fortune told and were assured of two games for Tuesday night? Phil Gehringer and Rosemary Wiegand tied with 452 series for high white Rosemary had a nice 184 single. Evelyn Dolson took honors with a 194 single and 462 series for the losers. M. Jansen a nice 461, Dot Fleming 435. Where was Mary Meyers' smile Tuesday night? Don't tell us they are going to be rationed out, now too.

★"Velveted"—for extra smoothness! Like IMPERIAL'S rare base whiskies, its choice spirits are made in the world's largest distillery—then "velveted" by a method similar to the softening of spirits used in making fine Scotch.

"Flavor-pecked"—for extra richness! This superb American blend has that expensive, "imported-whiskey" flavor because its foundation whiskies are specially distilled to give them individual qualities—then blended together to a delicate "flavor peak." Today—try the whiskey that's "Great—for two big reasons!"

Bob King Elected To Succeed Schupp As C.A.A. Officer

Retiring Secretary Will Enter U. S. Army on Saturday; Worker Is Lauded for Duty

Robert King, present treasurer of the Catholic Athletic Association, was named secretary of that organization at a recent meeting. Mr. King has consented to act in the official capacity of secretary-treasurer due to the absence of the board members who are now in service or soon will be.

Edward Schupp was named as executive secretary of the association's bowling league. Both of these posts were formerly held by Leo Schupp.

Leo Schupp, who has been secretary of the Catholic Athletic Association for many years, has been given an honorable discharge from his duties which he has carried out faithfully during his term of office. Leo will be one of the inductees who leaves Kingston at noon Saturday for Camp Upton.

Although the entire history of Leo is not at hand at this time, the Catholic Athletic Association will surely lose a faithful and valuable worker when he leaves Saturday. He had been a cooperative worker with this publication in releasing news concerning his league and also has been efficient with his various statistics concerning the organization. Undoubtedly Leo will resume his duties as chief secretary of the C. A. A. when the war is won by the United States and her Allies.

Plans for Future

Meanwhile, arrangements for a program of athletics for the coming season were made at the last meeting. A new session will be called in the near future by the Board of Governors to organize a basketball league. Due to the drafting of youths of 18 and 19 this will be somewhat of a problem. Present plans call for a league of four or more teams which will probably consist of youths of school age. A meeting of the bowling captains also will be called soon.

Branch Rickey Is Named President of Dodgers; No Terms Are Disclosed

Cardinal Vice-President Signs for Five Years With Brooklyn; to Begin Nov. 1

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Branch Rickey today was named president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rickey was signed to a five-year contract, effective November 1. He succeeds Larry MacPhail, who resigned the position to take a commission in the armed services.

The board of directors declined to name the salary terms, but as vice-president and general manager of the St. Louis Cards, Rickey's salary and commissions were believed to have run as high as $75,000 annually.

Rickey comes to the Dodgers after a quarter-century with the Cards as president, field manager and then vice president and general manager of St. Louis' farm system, which he inaugurated around 1920.

He is referred to as the "father" of baseball's farm system, which yielded the Cards four world championships and six national league pennants starting in 1926. He closed out his career at St. Louis with a World Series victory over the New York Yankees this fall.

Signing of Rickey climaxed weeks of negotiations with the Dodgers, who also were understood to have had under consideration such other baseball leaders as George Weiss, head of the New York Yankees farm system, and Leslie Mann, president of the Atlanta, Ga., club of the Southern Association.

One of Rickey's first tasks probably will be the selection of a manager. It is understood that Leo Durocher, Dodger manager for the last four years, is seeking a commission in the armed forces, and thus will not be available even if Rickey would want to keep him on the job.

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Branch Rickey was back in town today for the second time within a week and may sign as the new president of the Brooklyn Dodgers before he darts away again.

The latest visit of the vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals was surrounded in as much secrecy as was the case last week. He arrived yesterday unannounced, registered at a midtown hotel but didn't answer his telephone, and even his son's family said they were unaware of his presence here.

However, there was reason to believe that he had come to conclude negotiations which have been going on ever since the World Series, when the board of directors of the Dodgers set out to find a successor to Larry MacPhail, who resigned to accept a lieutenant-colonelcy in the army.

When he was last here Rickey, although refusing to acknowledge that his presence had any connection with the Brooklyn vacancy, did say he hoped to "know something definite within the next week."

The fact that he returned seven days later, on the dot, was therefore accepted to mean that he knew something definite and there seemed to be no occasion for his making a trip here if the "definite" were negative.

When Rickey was here last week it was understood he had to straighten out his Cardinal contract, which would not normally expire until December 31. This pact provided for him to share in the profits of the club in addition to his salary and the sum involved may be measured by the approximately $75,000 he received last year. In addition Rickey was believed to have owned some stock in the Cardinals, which he would have to sell before becoming associated with any other Major League club.

These problems may have been solved.

In addition, when Rickey was here a week ago one of the four Dodger directors, Joseph A. Gilleadeau, was out of the city. Today they were all accounted for—Gilleadeau, James Mulvey, George Barnewall and William L. Hughes—making it possible for the board to take action.

11 Cases—All Sad

Ayden, N. C. (AP)—Night Police Chief Walter Hamilton had a new one for the records when he logged his night report: "Helped two men load 11 cases of liquor, stolen from the A.B.C. store." Hamilton said the men surprised him on his beat, disarmed him, and then forced him at the point of a gun to help them load the stolen liquor.

Steuber and Sinkwich Top High Gridiron Offensive

A. F. S. B. Releases New Figures on College Elevens; Tulsa 'U' Captures Honors.

Chicago, Oct. 29 (AP)—Collegiate football is streaking to new offensive heights this year on the backs of Missouri and Georgia.

Missouri, paced by Bob Steuber, the nation's leading scorer, has averaged 434 yards a game for six contests. Georgia, led by Frankie Sinkwich, has rolled along at a 431 clip in the same number of encounters.

The American football statistical bureau, in releasing today's figures, said that it believed it had some imposing figures three years ago when Cornell, in six games averaged 409 yards before bumping into Dartmouth and Pennsylvania.

But today Missouri and Georgia not only are far ahead of that pace, but are being pushed by two other elevens. In five games, Tulsa has a 419 total offensive average and Ohio State, 414.

Missouri and Ohio State, incidentally, are the two top running teams of the nation, Missouri having gained 2,023 of its 2,605 total yardage by rushing and Ohio State 1,646 of its 2,070.

Georgia, 13th in rushing, is making up its difference in passing where it continues to run third behind Columbia and Tulsa. Columbia has averaged 212 yards a game. Tulsa 209, and Georgia 184, with Maryland right behind at 182.

Tulsa Takes Honors

All around honors, however, go to little Tulsa, undefeated in five games. In addition to being third in total offense and second in passing, the Golden Hurricanes are first in total defense (allowing opponents an average of 84 yards a game), first in pass defense (permitting 25 yards a game), third in punting and 11th in rushing.

Tulsa's pass defense has been so good that the Hurricanes have intercepted more aerials (11) than their foes have completed (10). Harvard, in the last six years probably the nation's most consistently strong team against forwards also yielded only 25 yards, but the percentage of enemy pass completions has been greater (.314 to .167).

In total offense, Detroit trails Tulsa with a 95.5 average yield; Vanderbilt has given up 96.6 and Alabama and William and Mary each 108.

Texas came all the way from 11th place to take over the punting leadership from Tulsa. Texas in six games has averaged 41.55 yards in 31 kicks; Tennessee 41.44 in 43, Tulsa 41.26 in 23, Rice 40.73 in 37, and North Carolina 40.68 in 50.

Boston College held its position as top defensive team against rushing with an average yield of 25.5 yards, with Hardin-Simmons second, with 32.3, followed by Vanderbilt's 36 and Detroit's 40.

Figures on the first seven total offense leaders:

Missouri, 6 games, 2,023 yards rushing, 582 by passing, 2605 total; Georgia 6-1,480-1,107—2,587; Tulsa 5-1,049-1,048-2,097; Ohio State 5-1,646-424—2,070. Texas 6-1,739-580—2,329; Vanderbilt 5-1,347-559—1906; Boston College 4-1,021-379—1,400.

New U. S. Planes Harass Enemy

British Reveal the Deadly Work of Avenger and The Mustang.

NEW YORK.—The American Flying Fortress was much talked of in the country of its origin before it took part in RAF raids on the continent, but other American air apparatus have not received similar publicity here, torpedo-carrier Avenger and the fighting plane called the Mustang, for example.

The Avenger was mentioned as of the battle of Midway island by subsequent authorized dispatches from Washington, but there appears to have been nothing about the Mustang until London papers produced its picture with a guarded but sufficiently informing description.

From the same source it is learned that when the unprovoked attack on Pearl Harbor took place on December 7, the then unnamed Avenger was being tentatively made in parts "somewhere" in this country, while waiting for the navy's aeronautical board to approve the working model it was testing.

With the news of Pearl Harbor and without waiting for the official O. K., the manufacturers hastened to assemble the parts, to launch completed planes as rapidly as possible, and to name the apparatus, on account of the inspiring news mentioned, "The Avenger."

Interesting Feature.

The Times of London has two views of it—one of the port side and the other a view of the under part. Neither shows any floats or land gear. The caption says:

"Two views of the United States navy's newest torpedo bomber, the Gruman Avenger. These aircraft were used with success against the Japanese at the Battle of Midway Island, and an interesting feature of them is the provision of two backward-firing guns."

With the pictures in the Daily Telegraph is this added information: "Speed 240 miles per hour, radius 1,400 miles, weight of torpedo 2,000 pounds."

Much more is allowed to be told in regard to the Mustang, so far used by the RAF army co-operation command, and declared by the London Times air expert to be "the fastest machine in the world." In design, it is said to have been developed from the British Hurricane, which 18 months ago superseded the Gladiator as a fighter, but surpasses the British apparatus point by point—speed, radius, weight and mobility of armament. The writer in the Times says:

Powerfully Armed.

"Squadrons of the Command are now being re-equipped with one of the latest and best American fighters, the Mustang, which is fast and maneuverable at its operational heights and is powerfully armed.

"Compared with the early part of the war when Lysanders were used for spotting, the speed of RAF reconnaissance machines has now been increased enormously. The advantages of a fast machine for this purpose are obvious. It can get back news of enemy movements much more quickly and, because of its speed, it is much less likely to be intercepted.

"The Mustang has already proved its worth in low-flying attacks against land targets in occupied territory. Its powerful armament has played havoc with anti-aircraft posts, power and radio stations, goods trains and squads of enemy troops. The army co-operation pilots are delighted with their 'new mount.'"

Dempsey's 'Long Count'

This occurred in the seventh round of the fight on September 22, 1927, in Soldier Field, Chicago, when Dempsey was seeking to regain the championship lost the previous year. The referee explained the delay in counting as due to the Illinois law making it mandatory that when a fighter was knocked down his opponent should retire at once to a neutral corner, and that the count must not proceed until he did. He contended that Dempsey was warned to do this but failed to do so. The referee was backed up in his action by the Illinois boxing commission.

New Construction Bolt Speeds Up Shipbuilding

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—John O. Phelps, Mare Island navy yard employee at Valejo, is the inventor of a new type of construction bolt, said by authorities at the yard to surpass in many ways the type of bolt now used to construct and repair ships so vital to the national war program.

Phelps explained that instead of the ordinary head of a bolt he has invented a "lock member" which takes its place. The member, one of two identical pieces, fits securely into a notch below the tapered head of the bolt.

"A quick tap of the workman's hammer, or any piece of metal, releases the bolt, and saves valuable time ordinarily used in unscrewing the nut by wrench," he said.

"Instead of the workman on the other side of the plate carrying many sizes of nuts, one would do. Bolts and lock members could be used over and over, more than 2,000 times, instead of the present rate of three or four.

"When you realize that each bolt costs 25 cents, this adds up to a big saving."

Dealer Pays and Pays For the Same Old Scrap

COLUMBUS, NEB.—Sam Kavich, scrap dealer, had to pay twice for this junk.

About 28 years ago the Columbus Light, Heat and Power company sold two engines to Kavich, who stripped them of removable parts and buried the remaining heavy pieces which he couldn't handle.

Scrap hunters, however, recently dug up the heavy pieces and sold them to Kavich again.

Fliers' Whim Given As Cause of Crash Near Palm Springs

Los Angeles, Oct. 29 (AP) The whim that led two fliers to arrange a meeting high over a rugged mountain pass is blamed by a congressional investigating committee for the mid-air collision of an army bomber and an airliner near Palm Springs last Friday, resulting in death for all 12 aboard the latter plane.

The aerial rendezvous, said Rep. Jack Nichols, Oklahoma, committee chairman, was disclosed yesterday by 2nd Lt. W. N. Wilson, 25, pilot of the bomber, who is held for court-martial on manslaughter charges.

Nichols said Lieutenant Wilson testified that he had encountered the liner's co-pilot, L. F. Reppert, at a party in Los Angeles the night before the crash, and that Wilson had arranged to time his takeoff from the ferrying command base at Long Beach, Calif., so that he would meet the eastbound commercial transport in the vicinity of San Gorgonio Pass.

The meeting took place, the planes collided and the transport an American Airliner, crashed in flames.

Nichols' statement came a few hours after the army, from its Long Beach ferrying command headquarters, had announced that formal military charges of manslaughter had been placed against Lieutenant Wilson, of West Los Angeles. The bomber's co-pilot, Staff Sgt. Robert Leicht, also is under arrest, but the army said nothing of any charges against him.

The Civil Aeronautics Board also launched an inquiry into the crash. Capt. Archer Fitzgerald, Fort Worth, Tex., American Airlines chief pilot, testified both pilot and co-pilot of the airliner had 27 hours off duty before starting the trip. Pilot of the airliner was Capt. Charles F. Pedley, veteran of 14 years with the company and a pilot for 20 years.

HAIR TONIC PROPELS CAR

Hair tonic is but just one of the many gasoline substitutes being used in Europe today, a London survey reveals. Utilization of the scalp vigorizor to propel an auto is attributed to a Frenchman. A Swedish baker collected alcohol for motor use from the fumes of his bakery. Grapes also have been used to provide alcohol for autos, while city or compressed gas and gasogene, or fumes from burners stoked with briquettes, are being used in South Africa.

Treasury Official Says Raises Not Necessarily Out

Sullivan Says Program Offers Many Chances for Increases Due to Promotions

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—The Treasury and War Labor Board promised swift action today on their joint task of stabilizing wages and salaries, and a Treasury official made the point that raises for the average citizen are not necessarily out for the duration.

John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary of the Treasury, told a press conference discussion of the Treasury's part that the program offered many opportunities for increases by promotions, merit increases, etc., but that most of these would have to be decided individually by the Internal Revenue Commission.

"When in doubt," he said, "better consult the commission or some internal revenue office."

Decentralized administrative machinery will be operating within 10 to 15 days, the War Labor Board said, to handle its part of the work—control of wages and salaries up to $5,000 in the case of employes represented by a labor organization or those not employed in an executive, administrative or professional capacity.

The Treasury has been assigned control of all other salaries. Sullivan said complete regulations covering most cases would be ready in about two weeks.

A formula for limiting salaries to a maximum of $25,000 a year, after reduction of federal income taxes, customary charitable contributions, life insurance premiums and fixed obligations, must also be worked out by the treasury.

Sullivan noted that state income taxes may not be deducted in arriving at the $25,000 net.

Dividends to employes will not be included in their salaries, he added, and some form of small customary company bonuses may also be exempt. Bonuses based on accomplishments of employes, however, will be considered part of their salaries, unless otherwise decided in individual cases by the commission.

Sullivan said there was now no regulation which would prevent an employe from leaving one job for a better-paid job of the same type, but added that this might be covered by future regulations.

He reported that seven regional offices of the Internal Revenue Bureau would be set up within ten days at Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and New York. Additional offices—from two to six more—are to be announced later.

Convoy Men Take Ordeals Casually In Arctic Region

side of things, too, explained:

"We were lucky. We had a mate who knew what it was all about and we had a good navigator. We had plenty of supplies and cigarettes on the boat and that helped a lot—especially the cigarettes.

"We had a good wind and were able to sail on a direct course for two full days. That saved a lot of rowing."

This calm tale of heroism under torturous conditions can be matched a thousand times by the U. S. Navy gun crews and merchant seamen who risk death constantly from bombs, bullets and ice to deliver armaments and supplies to the hard-pressed Russian armies.

Some convoys have had to pay a price for the attempt to get through, while recent ones have had notable successes against the German air force and submarines.

But almost to a man the survivors of bombings and sinkings in the Arctic expressed a warm desire to continue the battle—there or in whatever other ocean an assignment took them.

The most blood-chilling story from the convoy survivors came from Ensign William Roy Kirby of Coffeyville, Kas., in relating his experiences of September 15 when German torpedo bombers made a mass attack.

"We were the leading ship in the convoy's starboard column," he said. "The leading ship in another column blew up with flames shooting up about 300 feet—and then we got it. A torpedo hit in the hatch where we were carrying ammunition."

Two more torpedoes crashed into the vessel, which went down in three minutes. All had to take to the water and swim for it for only one liferaft was launched.

"I dived for that one," Kirby said, "but when I came up it wasn't there. I remember thinking I might become too numb to be a knot so I wrapped a line they threw me round my wrist about eight times. I felt a pressure on the rope and then I don't remember more."

By that time he had been in the water, estimated to have been about 28 degrees, for 40 minutes.

"Later they told me that someone on the rescue ship climbed down and grabbed me around the shoulders and pulled me aboard," he said. "I sure thought I was a goner."

The last thing that Lieut (J. G.) Stanley C. Dalbec of New York city did before abandoning the ship on which he was serving was to go below for "Justie," a little brown dog. Two torpedoes had struck the vessel and it sank rapidly.

Men serving with him included Joseph F. Lynch, Framingham, Mass.; Leon T. Ballowsky, Sheldon, Conn., and Allard L. Malphrus, Lenbrook, N. Y.

U. S. Fighters Hit Hard at Axis

10 Attacks Reported

Red Star said tank-led German troops attacked ten times, charging into a gap between two factories, and were finally stalled by a murderous crossfire of machine-guns after losing five battalions killed or wounded.

Soviet dispatches acknowledged that the Germans were gaining in their new drive down the land bridge to the middle east after they had been blocked in the Mozdok sector and thrown back in the battle for Tuapse, on the Black Sea coast, in the northwest Caucasus.

Fighting in primeval, snow-clad forests and on slopes threatened by avalanches, German and Russian ski troops met in sharp skirmishes high in the mountains while caravans of horses and donkeys floundered to the front with food and munitions.

Soviet reports said blizzards had been raging in the Caucasus mountains and that bitter cold had now set in. Many German soldiers said to have been frozen to death in caves.

Difficulties of the campaign were emphasized by a Russian dispatch reporting that Red Army artillerymen carried their heavy guns 10 miles forward across territory impassable for animals.

In the 66-day-old siege of Stalingrad, the Soviet command admitted that the Germans scored another 200-yard gain in the city's northside factory sector yesterday, but declared the Nazis sacrificed 2,000 troops in this limited advance—100 dead men for each yard won.

At noon today, Red Army headquarters said German infantrymen pressing the attack in the factory district had been repulsed and thrown back to their initial positions.

Soviet gains were reported on both flanks of the shattered Volga metropolis as Marshal Semeon Timoshenko sought to relieve the city's hard-pressed garrison.

Height Is Attacked

In the north, Red Army troops attacked a height along the 40-mile corridor between the Don and Volga rivers and wiped out two enemy infantry companies; while on the southern flank the Russians were credited with destroying seven blockhouses and several dugouts in a trench raid.

Southwest Pacific—Dispatches from the South Seas battle zone said the fight for the Solomon Islands was spreading out over a vast area as a powerful Japanese armada of battleships, aircraft carriers, heavy cruisers and submarines was reported moving eastward to menace other American positions.

While U. S. Troops and planes battled savagely to hold Guadalcanal air base, superior enemy seaborne forces were mobilizing at the approaches to American bases in the New Hebrides and Fiji Islands, threatening vital Allied communications between the Hawaiian Islands and Australia.

Japanese sea and air attacks have already been made on American positions in the New Hebrides, which lie immediately southeast of the Solomons.

Dispatches from Pearl Harbor said it was the first time since the Philippines campaign that the Japanese had massed such superiority in power and declared there was no doubt it was an all-out attempt to destroy American footholds in the South Pacific.

On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Australian troops continued to press the Japanese back toward their north coast invasion base in a drive across the Owen Stanley Mountains.

As the whole South Seas campaign flamed toward a climax, Gen. MacArthur himself sounded an indirect appeal for a unified command over the embattled area.

At his headquarters in Australia, Gen. MacArthur declared that he had "no political ambitions whatsoever" and planned to retire to private life once more if he survived the war, and then he added significantly:

"I have noted the statement . . that 'political Washington was largely responsible for the establishment of two separate commands in the Pacific, partly because of the conservative opposition which launched the MacArthur-for-president campaign.'

"I started as a soldier and a shall finish as one," he said.

For having lost 719½ working hours in the first six months of this year, William Mogie, 19-year-old shipyard worker, was sentenced in Jarrow, England, to one month's hard labor.

Spain is estimated to have less food than at any time during its Civil War.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, who reported to the nation Monday on his recent journey to United Nations fronts, is scheduled to return to the radio tonight. Dr. Heiser Says 46,000 War Workers Are Killed

Boston, Oct. 29 (AP).—Dr. Victor G. Heiser, medical consultant and author, said today that 42,600 American war production workers had been killed, either on or off the job, since Pearl Harbor.

"If to this you add the number of injured," he declared, "the record is this: 11,000 workers in war industries killed or injured on and off the job every day since Pearl Harbor. This in spite of industry's best efforts to forestall every possibility for accidents on the job."

"If present estimates are correct," he continued, "121,000,000 man days—or 968,000,000 man hours—will be lost to vital war work this year alone because of absence from the job from all causes."

Dr. Heiser, medical consultant to the committee on healthful working conditions of the National Association of Manufacturers, gave his figures in an address prepared for a conference sponsored by the associated industries of Massachusetts.

Marines Reach Britain

London, Oct. 29 (AP) — United States marine units in the British Isles have been reinforced by the arrival of additional contingents under the command of Col. William T. Clement, a veteran of action at Bataan and Corregidor in the Philippines. Their arrival was announced last night after the troops had been safely disembarked and had taken up their new stations. Marine units have been training in conjunction with the royal marines for some time.

Many fields in unoccupied France now lie fallow for lack of seed.

Milk Strike May Hit New York Soon

Independent Group Calls Milk Delivery Losing Business Under O.P.A.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Joseph O. Eastlack, secretary of the New York Metropolitan Milk Distributors, says that if the delivery strike threatened by the Independent Milk Marketers, Inc., materializes, there will be no way for other companies to fill the gap.

Eastlack agreed yesterday with Isadore Eisenstein, president of the independent group of milk companies, that the distributors would operate at "considerably less loss" if they sold their milk to manufacturers of milk products instead of selling it in fluid form under the current price setup.

Eisenstein announced Tuesday his group would strike in a "week or 10 days" unless the federal milk subsidy were withdrawn and the O.P.A. price ceilings removed or raised.

Eastlack, a vice-president of The Borden Company, declared there was no profit either way, but the companies represented by Eisenstein would gain financially by withdrawing from the fluid milk business.

He asserted, however, that Borden's would continue to sell fluid milk because the company regarded it as a "responsibility to the public." He added that he expected other companies in his organization to follow suit, but that it was up to each to decide.

Borden's Eastlack said, would be unable to increase its fluid milk sales if the independents withdrew because at this season the company's regular fluid milk customers required all the milk Borden farmers produced in the New York milkshed. He said he thought other companies were in the same position.

Eisenstein said the independents would pasteurize "a couple of cans a day" to meet a technicality whereby health department licenses expire if dealers stop operating.

He scoffed at the possibility of city action, declaring:

"What can the health department do to me? They can't compel me to sell milk if I don't want to. And there is no law compelling a man to stay in business if he loses money."

Eisenstein said small dealers had "lost all the money they can" in the squeeze between higher farm prices ordered by the Department of Agriculture and the O.P.A. ceiling prices.

Dog Waits for Duke

Mouffle, the chow that accompanied the Duke of Kent on his peacetime journeys, took up his quarters in the garage housing the Duke's empty car two days after the plane accident fatal to his master. He remained there for 10 days, refusing to leave even for food. Every time the garage door opened he looked up expectantly, hoping his beloved master would return.
